The natural gas pinch

Domestic and non-domestic customers brace for harsh effects of shortage

BY SANDY FOSSON
Record-Herald Staff Writer

During the last five years the natural gas reserves from the supplies of the Dayton Power and Light Co. have declined from 289 trillion cubic feet to less than 218 trillion cubic feet.

To the average person, that doesn't make much sense, but to the industrial and commercial customers of the Dayton Power and Light Co., the effects are all too clear.

IN OCTOBER, DP&L was forced to request all commercial and industrial customers to curtail their natural gas usage 14 per cent due to the shortage. In November, they were again informed to reduce their consumption to 18.5 per cent.

If this was not enough, Jerry Morgan, public relations director for the Dayton Power and Light Co., stated that industrial and commercial customers will again be notified this week they must now reduce their natural gas consumption 22 per cent beginning Dec. 25.

Morgan, who said the DP&L is acting under orders from its principal supplier, Columbia Gas Transmission Corp., Charleston, W. Va., said the reason behind the large deficiency of natural gas was the low price of natural gas at the well-head.

"The federal government regulates the price of natural gas at the well-head. The government has held that price very low and thus, has not encouraged any further exploration for natural gas.

"The reason it happened so fast," he continued, "is that the price of oil started rising with the oil embargo last winter while the price of natural gas remained the same, causing more demands for natural gas."

Even though the Federal Power Commission has just recently allowed the price at the well-head to increase from 42 cents to 50 cents per 100 cubic feet, it will take between three and five years to balance out the demand with the supply of natural gas.

"Our supplier has already told us that through 1978 our allocations will be lowered each year depending on the severity of the previous winter," Morgan said.

"This winter has been colder than usual and has resulted in enforcing more curtailments in consumption of gas," he added.

Many commercial and industrial users feel they are being singled out and forced to carry the burden of the natural gas shortage rather than residential users.

Being forced to restrict their consumption to 78 per cent of their 1972 usage is not an easy task, especially for drycleaning businesses and large factories.

Robert Fulwider, of the Armco Steel Corp. maintenance office here, said that although the natural gas used at the steel plant is mostly for heating purposes and would not impair the manufacturing, the plant may be forced to close down if the shortage gets bad enough.

He said that being cut to 80 per cent of its 1972 usage has caused the plant to turn off some of the heaters and alternate to other heaters.

"AT PRESENT, we think we can cut down our usage to 80 per cent of the 1972 level without impairing manufacturing," Fulwider said. "We have no other choice but to comply."

But DP&L does not determine which customers are the domestic and non-domestic users. The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio sets the priorities of what customers must receive the most gas consumption.

The present DP&L ratio of gas consumption is 51 per cent by industrial and commercial users and 49 per cent from residential customers. The PUCO has stated the domestic and residential users where human welfare is involved are at the top of the priority list and those users who utilize natural gas to make hard goods are the lowest and therefore, must shoulder the burdens of curtailment.

Even the commercial and industrial customers are broken into domestic and non-domestic users. For the DP&L, 5,000 of these customers are classified as domestic users, including apartments, hotels, bakeries and other places where human welfare is involved.

The remaining 16,000 are termed non-domestic customers and include all commercial, industrial and governmental customers.

According to Morgan, DP&L is now conducting monthly checks on the consumption by the commercial and industrial users. If a company is above its prescribed allocations, it is contacted by letter and must give the DP&L concrete proposals being planned to curtail its usage; should the next month's check also reveal the company is over its allocation, DP&L will be forced to shut off the natural gas supply.

Rocky takes oath today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller is headed for final congressional confirmation and then a televised inauguration today as the nation's 41st vice president.

The House set aside six hours of debate but was not expected to take that much time before voting on Rockefeller's confirmation.

The inauguration was scheduled an hour later in the Senate chamber, with live television coverage permitted for the first time in the Senate's history.

Rockefeller was to be sworn in by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger. House members, senators, Cabinet members and Supreme Court justices were to be in attendance.

With Rockefeller's swearingin, the nation for the first time will be under the leadership of both a president and vice president not elected by the voters.

Speaker Carl Albert said there was no doubt that the 435-member House would vote to confirm Rockefeller, although no official nose count had been taken.

President Ford predicted two weeks ago that would be overwhelming, although there might be as many as 100 House votes against Rockefeller. House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. has predicted 120 against.

Rockefeller planned to fly to Washington early in the afternoon with a party of officials including New York Gov. Malcolm Wilson and New York City Mayor Abraham Beame and their wives.

He planned to spend most of the afternoon at his Washington home and then go to the White House to ride with Ford to the Capitol for the inauguration ceremonies.

Rockefeller was to attend a reception tonight for the White House press corps.

The former New York governor's confirmation was cleared Wednesday by the House Rules Committee for final action over last-minute appeals by three House members to delay it until the new Congress convenes in January.

Liberal Democratic Reps. Bella S. Abzug and Elizabeth Holtzman of New York and Jerome R. Waldie of California contended that if Rockefeller is not to be elected by the voters, he should be approved by congressmen most recently elected by them.

The three also contended more investigation is needed of potential conflicts of interest from Rockefeller's wealth, and to determine if his gifts and loans to public officials violated New York law.

Reps. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio and John H. Rousselot of California, conservative Republicans, also urged more investigation.

The Senate already has approved the nomination. The House Judiciary Committee recommended confirmation 26-12 after nine days of hearings, focusing primarily on the conflict-of-interest question.

THE FAMILY REUNITED—Heidi, a black Labrador Retriever, which Luetta Brown raised from a puppy for Pilot Dogs, Inc., in Columbus, is once again at home with the Brown family on Albin Avenue. Heidi was returned home last week when Pilot Dogs informed the Browns she had failed the program due to fearful reactions upon meeting her blind master. Lu's identical twin sister, Joetta, posed with Heidi at the left, will work with her as her 4-H club project this year. Lu, who worked with Heidi last year for 4-H, will work this year with the family Keeshond (pictured with her at the right), named "Kola."

Pilot dog, family reunited

Heidi returns

By MARK THELLMANN

The telephone call from Pilot Dogs Inc., brought tears of joy, along with disappointment to the Brown family on Albin Avenue last Wednesday.

Sarah Brown, mother of Luetta and Joetta Brown, waited until after dinner that evening before she broke the news to the identical twins. "Heidi didn't make it. We can pick her up in Columbus tomorrow."

Lu said she really wanted her back. She had received the black Labrador Retriever from Pilot Dogs in early October of last year after applying and deciding to make the dog her 4-H club project; understanding full well that after Heidi's obedience training, which Lu provided, she and the dog would have to part.

"I cried with joy when mom told me," Lu admitted, "but after thinking about all the money and time which had been invested in Heidi so she could become someone's eyes, I was really disappointed in her."

No one really knows what happened. Heidi completed her intensive training at Pilot Dogs over the last couple months and was then introduced to her blind master.

"The people at Pilot Dogs told me her master took her into a store and she started acting very frightened," Sarah Brown explained, "and that did the trick - she was expelled from the program."

Unfortunately, Heidi had no comment, but she seemed pleased to be home again with the people who raised her and loved her as pup.

Jo is planning on working with her this year for 4-H and Lu will work with the family's Keeshond named "Kola."

About 75 county residents attend

Drainage problems of U.S. 35 project eyed at public meeting

Approximately 75 Fayette County residents attended a public hearing Wednesday and expressed their concerns over the proposed improvement of U.S. 35 across Fayette County, which is to be constructed at an estimated $28,456,000.

One major question voiced by the audience was over the problems of drainage and concern that the highway construction from the western end of the Frankfort bypass in Ross County through Fayette County to the Greene County line would disturb existing farm drainage tile systems.

SEVERAL FARMERS related unpleasant experiences from the construction of the Interstate 71 freeway with some drainage effects still showing up.

Fayette County engineer Charles P. Wagner and four representatives of the local engineering office explained some of the drainage problems encountered during the I-71 project.

Richard Keiser, of the county engineer's office, cited various instances in the interstate highway construction where the drainage system problems could have been avoided and expressed his desire for closer cooperation between the U.S. 35 project engineers and contractors with the county engineer's office in studying drainage systems.

Wayne Kauble, of the Ohio Department of Transportation, assured those attending that if the department could receive the cooperation of local officials and farmers who knew where the drainage systems were, the department engineers would restore the systems to their former conditions.

The first of several public hearings to be held on the proposed route and various planning aspects of U.S. 35 through Fayette County was well received by the public, according to J. Herbert Perrill, chairman of the Fayette County Commissioners and Fayette County Action Plan group.

The two-hour hearing was the culmination of a two-day session at the Mahan Building on the Fayette County Fairgrounds in which over 100 persons attended afternoon sessions to view charts, engineering drawings and speak with officials from the Ohio Department of Transportation over the proposed highway construction.

Although transportation officials stated the project would take a minimum of four years to complete plans for construction, it could be set back another four to five years due to a questionable section in the Greene County portion of the proposed route.

Members of the Greene County Historical Society just recently expressed opposition to a section of the project in that county due to a covered bridge situated in the proposed routing, said Bernard Hurst Jr., deputy director of the Ohio Department of Transportation.

He said should the bridge and area be declared an historical site, the project could be set back another four to five years for rerouting.

The engineering project of the total U.S. 35 route is divided into three parts through Fayette County: extending from the Greene County line to Harmony Road; from Harmony Road to the present U.S. 35 bypass at Palmer Road; and from the eastern end of the bypass to the Ross County line. These three portions of the project were outlined by engineers: William Young of Eriksson Associates, H.H. Bohm of Rackoff Associates, and W.K. Wallace, representing Berger Associates.

The overall proposed route is expected to be completed at an estimated cost of $28,456,000 with $3,400,000 expended on the Greene County section.

The proposed U.S. 35 will be a four-lane divided highway with a 60 foot median strip and an overall width of 300 feet. The total length of the highway is to be 32.04 miles, including 2.56 miles in Greene County. It is expected to increase the traffic capability almost two-fold, according to calculations made by the transportation department.

Officials explained that roads being affected by the proposed route in Fayette County would be Pleasant View Road, which will go over the new highway according to present plans; West Lancaster Road, also to go over the new road; Interstate 71, where the proposed U.S. 35 will be located ½ mile north of the interchange with direct access to the I-71 highway; Ohio 729, proposed to go over the new road; Milledgeville-Octa Road, which plans have not yet been completed but is not expected to be closed off; Fichthorn Road, also not yet planned and not expected to be closed off; Harmony Road, proposed to go over the new road; Ford Road, to go under the proposed route; Bush Road, to go over; Palmer Road, to be under the new road; Old Chillicothe Road, to be shut off; Bogus Road, to go under the new road; Camp Grove Road, to be shut off; Cisco Road, to go over the new road; Mills Road, to be shut off; and Fairview Road, to go over the proposed U.S. 35.

Several streams would also be affected with riverways to be bridged and one railroad in the proposed course of the highway to be located under the new U.S. 35.

Other concerns expressed on the proposed highway were over the planned closing of the Old Chillicothe Road. One farmer explained that it would be difficult to reach a portion of his farm on the north side of his property and continue his farming operations if the new route shut off the Old Chillicothe Road.

Another remark over the school bus route on Old Chillicothe Road was answered by stating it could easily be rerouted.

SEVERAL OFFICIALS of the Miami Trace School District, being represented by transportation coordinator Cecil Coates, pointed out their concerns over the intersection of Fichthorn and Milledgeville-Octa Road that neither should be closed with the proposed U.S. 35 project. The Ohio Department of Transportation officials assured school officials that the major access route from Milledgeville to the new high school would remain open.

Perrill said the Wednesday hearing was only one of several public hearings to be held by the Ohio Department of Transportation in making a final

Grandma wins $300,000

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP)— Jacqualyne C. Hall, a Dayton grandmother, won the $300,000 grand prize in the Ohio lottery's Buckeye 300 drawing today and said she would use part of the money in helping the needy.

She actually was $300,000.01 richer after the draw. Someone in the crowd found a penny on the ground and gave it to her just before the drawing was made.

"This is my lucky penny," she said.

Mrs. Hall, who has two children and two grandchildren, has been helping needy people on a regular basis most of her life.

The $60,000 second prize went to Carl D. Augustine of Malta and $30,000 went to Merritt Q. Colton of Union.

The other five contestants in the draw each won $15,000. They were Sally I. Antral, Barberton; James J. Schroeder, Lima; Gerald E. Roth, Defiance; Ralph M. Nicastro, Warren, and Ralph E. Gang, Salem.

The lottery's weekly winning single number selected today was 429 and the winning double number was 008 345.

Economic distress signals fly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economy has turned in another set of distressing signals as more Americans are going to lose their jobs, paychecks shrunk and the balance of payments deteriorated.

The gloomy economic indicators Wednesday were led by an announcement that the government was hit with the second largest deficit ever in the U.S. balance of payments in the third quarter, largely as a result of the high cost of foreign oil. The deficit of $3.6 billion compared with $2.5 billion for the second quarter and an all-time high of $3.9 billion in the first quarter of 1972.

In the midst of the new woes, President Ford appealed to steel producers not to boost prices as high as the 8 per cent hike announced by the industry leader, U.S. Steel. Acting under Ford's order, the Council on Wage and Price Stability has asked U.S. Steel to justify its price increase.

Some industry leaders say U.S. Steel may be forced to roll back at least some of its increase in light of the White House pressure.

Meanwhile, the government reported that 693,000 persons began filing new claims for unemployment insurance benefits during the first week of December. The claims, representing an increase of 169,500 over the previous week, were in addition to the 2,982,600 persons who already were receiving jobless benefits during the last week in November.

With more persons out of work, overall personal income declined two-tenths of one per cent during November, or $2.2 billion at an annual rate, according to the Commerce Department. That compared with an increase of six-tenths of one per cent, or $7 billion, the previous month.

The Commerce Department also said that industrial payrolls fell 2.5 per cent last month, representing a $7 billion drop at an annual rate. The falloff was blamed on the coal strike and job layoffs in auto and other industries.

By the end of January about one-fourth of the blue-collar work force of the biggest automaker, General Motors, will be let go indefinitely. GM announced 6,000 more layoffs Wednesday, which will put 91,-000 of its employes out of work by the end of January.

The number of hourly auto workers now set for indefinite layoff throughout the industry in January is at least 141,000. Their troubles are compounded by rapidly shrinking unemployment funds that will leave thousands of jobless workers with fewer benefits than expected.

The government's latest estimate of U.S. unemployment is for 7.5 per cent next year. But a group of Western economists predicted Wednesday that U.S. unemployment will hit 8 per cent by the end of the 1975 as part of a pattern of economic stagnation for most countries in the non-Communist world.

In another development, negotiators for striking coal construction workers and the industry reached tentative agreement on a new contract, which later was approved by a union bargaining council. The agreement now faces a vote by rank-and-file workers Saturday, a union official said. Results may be known as early as Sunday night.

Picketing by the 4,500 constructions workers, members of the United Mine Workers, has kept nearly half the nation's soft-coal miners away from their jobs.

Natural gas pinch

George Winkle, manager of the Dayton Power and Light Co., office in Washington C. H., said that some commercial and industrial customers in the Washington C. H. area have already received notification they are over their allocations.

However, he could not give an exact number of these customers, which includes churches, schools and the commercial and industrial customers.

"It is difficult to say how many were over their allocations with letters going out from several departments to customers in a 6,000-square mile area," Winkle said.

"Now, we are encouraging everyone to conserve. If the home owners use less natural gas, it means that much more for industries. When you're talking about shutting down a plant for using too much gas, you're talking about taking away jobs," Morgan said.

He added that home owners can not reduce their natural gas consumption by turning off extra lights but by turning down the thermostats in their homes.

"It is very difficult for people to understand there seems to be an adequate supply of gas and electricity but a great shortage of natural gas. It is even more complex to comprehend that the same company (DP&L) has an adequate supply of coal to produce electricity for this winter and yet not enough natural gas," Morgan said.

"All sources of energy are controlled differently and these controls and the supplies of the sources must determine the price," he continued.

Morgan said he knows the natural gas shortage is real and not contrived and the only recourse can be made by using alternate sources of fuel and energy.

Not only must the price of natural gas at the well-head be raised to compete with other fuels but newer sources of energy will also be required so there will not be a great demand for one single source, he said.

The DP&L is now in the process of constructing a nuclear energy plant on the Ohio River, 35 miles southeast of Cincinnati in Moscow.

MORGAN BELIEVES there is a very bright future for nuclear power. "Nuclear power now supplies six per cent of electrical power in the United States — it is projected to supply over 50 per cent by the year 2000," Morgan said.

He noted other sources of energy were also being experimented to provide a supplemental energy system, such as by solar energy, geothermal energy (tapping geysers in the western U.S. and using the steam stored in the earth to operate power plants), wind power, hydropower, and a few exotic methods of "harnessing tidal waves" and bettering storage batteries.

But these are all in the future and this winter, domestic and non-domestic users alike of natural gas will be feeling the harsh effects of the gas shortage in the present.

Watergate trial ending

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate cover-up trial is about to hear final arguments from opposing lawyers, the last step before the historic case goes to the jury.

Chief Prosecutor James F. Neal was scheduled to lead off with a summation expected to take at least three hours.

But first, defense attorneys planned today to question Kenneth W. Parkinson, the last of the five defendants to testify. Then the trial will hear brief testimony from six character witnesses for Parkinson and two rebuttal witnesses for the prosecution.

Parkinson, former White House aides H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, exAtty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former assistant Atty. Gen. Robert C. Mardian are charged with conspiring to obstruct the investigation of the Watergate break-in.

Parkinson testified Wednesday that officials of Richard M. Nixon's re-election committee, particularly Mardian and Mitchell, didn't tell him all they knew about the Watergate break-in.

"I did not have facts. I didn't know certain things, all I had was third-or fourth-hand information, much of which was hearsay," Parkinson testified under cross examination by Assistant Special Prosecutor Jill Wine Volner.

Parkinson said that Jeb Stuart Magruder, deputy director of the Nixon campaign committee, told him on July 13, 1972, less than a month after the break-in, that he was involved, along with Mitchell, Haldeman and White House aides John W. Dean III and Gordon C. Strachan.

But Mitchell and others later told him Magruder's story was untrue, Parkinson said.

At the time, Parkinson, a Washington lawyer who said he'd never been involved in politics, was representing the Nixon re-election committee in civil suits stemming from the break-in.

Steel price rollback seen

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Many steel industry leaders say privately that they feel U.S. Steel Corp., in the face of White House anger, may have to roll back at least some of its newly announced price hikes.

And one insider said President Ford's angry reaction staved off — at least for the moment — similar price hikes planned by several other major producers, including No. 3 National, No. 6 Jones & Laughlin and No. 7 Inland Steel.

So far, only 13th-ranked CF&I Steel Corp. of Pueblo, Colo., has followed top-ranked U.S. Steel in raising prices.

"It's a bad time for price increases," one source said. "The market is softening, and I just thought U.S. Steel's new prices were out of line."

Another source said, "I would expect some time in the next few days that U.S. Steel will reconsider at least some of its new prices and withdraw them."

No top steel company executive would speak for attribution, although many agreed to talk after being assured they would not be identified.

The price hikes average about 8 per cent over two-thirds of U.S. Steel's line, and Board Chairman E.B. Speer said Monday that "the largest portion of the increases represents a catchup of U.S. Steel's prices with those already being charged in the market."

But a comparison by The Associated Press shows the new prices have vaulted U.S. Steel past its major competitors on most lines.

U.S. Steel said Wednesday it would respond by letter on Friday to the President's request for justification for the price increases.

A spokesman insisted increases were "fully justified," but other industry leaders disagreed.

"From a public point of view, I don't think they can make it stand up, and I don't think they'll be able to convince the President they needed it now," said one.

Another steel executive explained that the steel industry generally plays "follow-the-leader" in announcing price increases.

"You move and then you wait to see who follows," he said. "I think U.S. Steel is going to find its limb a lonely one this time."

6 Ohio cities eyed for test of water supply

WASHINGTON (AP)—Six Ohio cities are among 80 selected by the U.S Environmental Protection Agency for tests aimed at learning the organic chemical content of their public drinking water supplies.

The EPA said Wednesday that tests will be conducted in detail in 10 cities but only for certain chemicals in the others, including those in Ohio.

The tests were prompted by recent discoveries of chemicals in the water supplies of Cincinnati and New Orleans that are suspected of causing cancer, said EPA Administrator Russell Train.

The Ohio cities are Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton, Indian Hill, Piqua and Youngstown (Mahoning Valley Sanitary District).

Snow spread across Ohio Wednesday night, but was expected to end today as quickly as it began. A low pressure center moving out of the southwest touched off the snow.

The low center formed in Oklahoma Wednesday, and by dawn it was in southwest Michigan and was weakening. Cooler, drier air was drawn eastward in the wake of the low, and the drier air had begun to end the precipitation this morning. All significant snow was expected to end by early this afternoon.

But another storm was expected to develop in Oklahoma or northern Texas today.

Mass slaying suspect dies in shootout

DOUGLASVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Paul John Knowles, charged with seven murders in three states, was shot to death when authorities said he grabbed a gun and tried to escape from a police car. His lawyers claim he was executed.

Authorities said the 28-year-old Florida native was killed Wednesday as he drove with two officers to show them where he had disposed of a gun allegedly used to murder a Florida state trooper.

Douglas County Sheriff Earl D. Lee said he and Ron Angel, an inspector for the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, were escorting Knowles when their prisoner got free from his handcuffs. Authorities later said he had picked the lock, possibly with a paper clip.

Knowles reached over the seat and "jerked my sidearm from the holster," Lee said. He said he grabbed Knowles' hand and the gun went off. As the car swerved off the highway, several more shots were fired "which resulted in the death of Paul John Knowles." Lee did not say who fired the fatal shots.

Knowles' two Miami lawyers rejected the official explanation and headed for Atlanta today to discuss the incident with authorities.

"The least they could have done was to wait until he was convicted to execute him," said attorney Ellis Rubin.

"I can't believe he attempted to escape," said attorney Sheldon Yavitz. "He didn't want to die. Where would he go with chains on?"

Knowles, arrested Nov. 17 in rural Georgia, had been charged in Georgia with killing a Florida state trooper and a Delaware businessman, a Milledgeville, Ga., man and his teen-aged daughter; a Lima, Ohio, accountant in that state; and women in Jacksonville Beach and Atlantic Beach, Fla.

In addition, Connecticut authorities said Wednesday they had been preparing to charge Knowles with the Oct. 15 strangulation deaths of Mrs. Karen Wine of Marlborough and her 16-year-old daughter, Dawn.

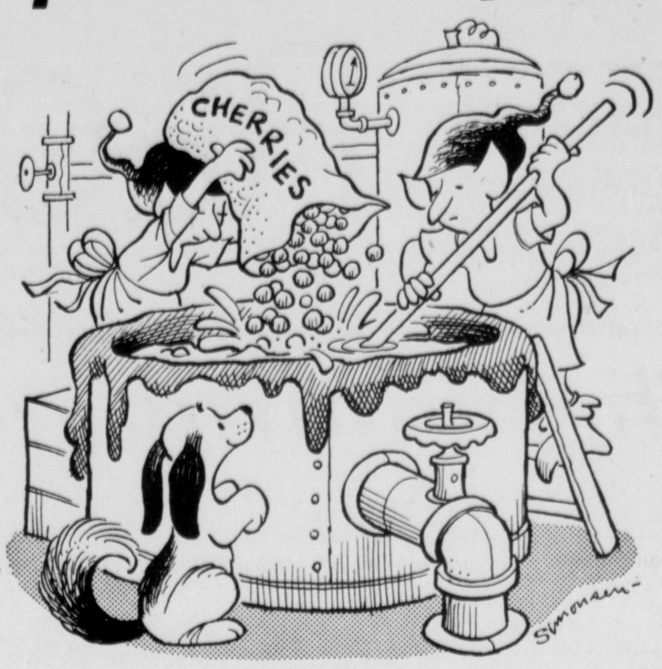
Santa's problem pup

CHAPTER 9
By Bob Boyle



Peako started to beg.

Santa put Peako on the floor and said, "Come on, Peako, you can come with me this morning as I make my rounds. I don't believe you ever have been around the North Pole."

The elves wiped their mouths with the napkins, placed the napkins on their plates, and then marched out singing "Santa Claus is Coming to Town."

Mrs. Claus laughed and said to Santa, "They're certainly happy now that Peako will stay with us."

"I know," Santa said. "But when we give Peako away to some good boy or girl on Christmas Eve they'll be sad. I think Miss Kay Nihn is right. It's not good to get too attached to a dog that you will have to give away."

He turned to Peako and said, "Come on, pup, let's start our rounds."

Santa opened the huge heavy door and Peako ran out ahead of him. He jumped into a snowbank and worked his way up.

Santa laughed. "Peako, you have a big snowball on your head."

He reached down and gave the dog a loving pat.

Peako raced to a chocolate brown building.

Peako ran to the door and started to lick it.

"Peako, that isn't candy," Santa said. "It just looks like candy. Come on inside."

Santa opened the door and Peako followed him in.

Inside vats of rich, creamy chocolate were cooking. Orange, cherry, lemon, apple and banana trees were growing along side the vats. Nearby were strawberry and raspberry plants.

"These elves are making candy," Santa said to Peako.

The dog ran toward one of the elves.

"What do you want, Peako," the elf Jandy said.

Peako started to beg. He sat up and licked his lips.

"I think you want a piece of my candy," the elf said as he picked up a strawberry cream cluster.

Peako gobbled it up.

He then ran to the cherry man and gobbled up another piece. And then to the banana mixer where he had a chocolate chip banana drop, and then to the pineapple pincher where he chewed on a chewy pineapple carmel.

"If Miss Kay Ninh knew we were giving Peako candy, she would hit the roof," Jandy said.

"Come on, Peako," Santa said. "We better leave the candy factory. It's too much temptation for you here."

"Let's visit the superscopes room now," Santa said.

They walked over to a huge building with a round dome. Inside the elves kept a watch for good boys and girls. In a big book they wrote the names of the children who weren't behaving.

Peako looked into the superscope.

He saw a little girl playing with a worn out doll.

"Would you like to live with her?" Santa asked.

Peako turned up his nose.

Peako looked again as the elf switched the channel to "boys."

A rough little boy was pulling his sister's hair.

"That's Billy," Santa said. "He wants a puppy, but I believe he would be too rough. Look at the way he pulls his sister's pigtails."

Turning to an elf he said, "Did you write that down?"

The elf said, "I sure did, Santa. I hope that little Billy begins to behave or his Christmas list will be quite small."

"We've seen enough here," Santa said to Peako. "Let's go over to the Christmas ball factory and see Juniperperper.

Santa pushed open the door of the Christmas ball factory.

Inside balls of all descriptions and colors were greeting them.

Peako ran to Juniperperper and started to beg.

"What's he want?" Juniperperper asked Santa.

"I think he believes the Christmas balls are candy," Santa laughed.

Peako went from table to table looking at the Christmas balls. Finally his nose told him they weren't meant to eat so he went to the front door.

"He wants to go," Santa said to Juniperperper. "I guess he is a little disappointed because those Christmas balls do look good enough to eat."

Santa went to the door, turned and said, "You're doing a good job, Juniperperper."

"Thanks, Santa," the elf replied.

Santa and Peako started toward the ski lift and toy factory.

They were walking along when Peako stopped, sniffed and started to growl.

"What's that," Santa said. "What could that be?"

Stock list takes dip

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined slightly today, wavering inconclusively in a pattern it has followed most of the past several weeks.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 1.41 at 602.08, and declines outstripped advances by about 3-2 in quiet trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said a good many investors had settled back to wait until after the holidays for indications of what steps the government might take to counteract the recession.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index slipped .05 to 60.16.

Market watchers said what activity there was mainly represented tax-selling and portfolio adjustments by investing institutions with the end of the year approaching.

John M. Stackhouse, 45, of Wakeman, director of agriculture under Rhodes from 1963 to 1971, will again head the Agriculture Department.

Howard L. Collier, 41, of Toledo, former budget director and finance director under Rhodes and now vice president of the Medical College of Ohio at Toledo, will serve as director of budget and management.

Gordon Peltier, 57, of Columbus commerce director under Rhodes from 1963 to 1971 and a key Rhodes' campaign aide this year, will head the Commerce Department.

Miss Scholz has been with Rhodes' industrial development firm, James Rhodes & Associates since 1971.

Other appointments announced were:

James A. Duerk, 44, communications consultant for the Rhodes campaign and former aide to Saxbe in Washington, will direct the Department of Economic and Community Development.

Duerk served as press secretary to Rhodes from 1969 to 1971. He is also a former public relations director for Republican state headquarters.

Helen W. Evans, 69, of Marysville, who was deputy director of industrial relations in the previous Rhodes administration, will serve as director of the department. Mrs. Evans has served as executive secretary of the Ohio Republican Council since 1952.

Opinion And Comment

Aiken will be missed

Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont is a man who will be missed. The aged solon's departure after 34 years in the Senate occasions sadness.

Characteristically, Senator Aiken offered interesting reflections and some good advice in his farewell speech. We find ourselves somewhat consoled by his remark that the problems the nation faces today "are not new but are far more expansive than ever before." The happy implication is that the problems can be dealt with if only we attack them sensibly.

Congress must be the spearhead. It can be a good one if it acts on Aiken's counsel: don't try to recover authority from the executive branch unless you're willing to assume the responsibility that goes with it.

A WORD EDGEWISE. . .By John P. Roche

Missile superiority strategy

The more we learn about that great Vladivostok "breakthrough," the more it sounds as though President Ford got tackled behind his own goal line. However, one of the problems is: What precisely did he sign? Apparently the Soviets were to prepare a memorandum, but then some snags developed over the exact wording of certain sections which — government spokesmen said — did not "deal with matters of great consequence." These snags required a supplemental aide-memoire (a sort of clarifying footnote). Press Secretary Ron Nessen allowed as how the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. had agreed to the wording of the aide-memoire (which was supposed to clarify the wording of the memorandum), but later a White House official said "The language of the aide-memoire is still under discussion." Next perhaps there will be a mini-aide-memoire to clarify the aide-memoire to clarify the. . . well, let's drop it.

To drop the drunken fire drill that concerns the language is not, however, to pass over the substance of the "breakthrough." Although the complexifiers are busy trying to make the issue seem impenetrable and attacking critics for their frivolity in disputing how many warheads can sit on the head of a missile, a commonsense reading of the terms makes it clear that either (1) we had better launch a crash program in strategic weapons systems, or (2) genially permit the Soviets to gain preponderant strategic power. Each side is permitted to have 1,320 missiles with multiple warheads, but no reference was made to the crucial matter of throw-weight. To use an oversimple analogy, but one that is nonetheless accurate: "Strategic parity" under these ground rules could amount to the U.S. having 1,320 BB guns and the U.S.S.R. 1,320 hunting rifles.

This vital difference is a consequence of the different ways that we and the Soviets have developed our nuclear arsenals. Unrealistically assuming that we would hold a monopoly of MIRV technology for some time to come, we have never gone in for the huge missiles the Soviets have specialized in. We assumed that our qualitative lead would compensate for their quantitative advantage in throw-weight. This was the underlying premise of the SALT I agreement, a premise which a number of us, led by Senator Henry Jackson, treated with great skepticism at the time.

A missile that is MIRVed is capable of carrying a number of warheads, each one independently targeted. That is, one missile with four MIRVs is the equivalent of four discrete missiles. Thus, if we assume that each of our 1,320 missiles carries four MIRV passengers, we end up with a total of 5,280 warheads for potential use. On the other hand, if we assume that each of the Soviet missiles carries eight to 10 MIRVs, they wind up with a total somewhere between 10 and 13 thousand of those technological monstrosities. Given the fact that they have always specialized in giant missiles (their first ICBM was so heavy, it was an operational disaster), there is every reason to believe they can carry this load.

As if this wasn't bad enough, there is another variable to be considered: The tonnage of the MIRV, i.e., its destructive power. While the data here is inconclusive, experts (who have to assume the "worst case") hypothesize that each Soviet MIRV will be much larger than its U.S. equivalent. So, as we move to SALT II, we are confronted by the Soviets potentially holding both quantitative and qualitative strategic superiority. There are no restraints on their "military-industrial complex": They are busy replacing the huge SS-9 missiles with huger SS-18s.

The reaction of a number of people is, "So what? Doesn't this merely amount to increased, useless overkill? How many times can they kill every American?" In the literal sense, the answer is, "Yes," if one thinks only on the military level. But if you understand the Leninist concept of war, you realize that force or the threat of force is firmly placed in a political context. With the U.S.S.R. holding overwhelming strategic superiority, what would the U.S. do in the event of an invasion of Western Europe? Even more inportant, perhaps: What would the NATO powers think the U.S. would do? To get closer to home, if the Soviets launched a preemptive first strike against our missile installations, would the President — knowing their reserve power — order the Polaris subs to let go at Soviet population centers? This interrelationship between political and military goals should never be forgotten.

Safe drinking water bill approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has signed a bill setting up the first U.S. safe drinking-water standards, and environmentalists want its emergency powers invoked in five communities whose water systems may contain cancer-causing chemicsls.

After Tuesday's bill-signing ceremony, the Environmental Defense Fund petitioned the Environmental Protection Agency to use the emergency powers because of the "imminent health hazard" posed by chemicals found in the drinking water of the five communities.

The chemicals were found in the water supplies of New Orleans and Jefferson Parish, La.; Evansville, Ind.; Cincinnati, Ohio; and Duluth, Minn.

"Emergency action by the EPA is clearly warranted and urgently needed in the communities named in our petition," said Dr. Robert H. Harris, an environmental group staff member.

After the suspected carcinogens were found, the EPA began a nationwide survey of the nation's water supplies to determine the extent of the problem. The new law requires that study be completed within six months.

The law also directs the agency to promulgate interim drinking water standards and arrange with the National Academy of Sciences for a study leading to establishment of permanent standards.

In Pittsburgh, an EPA team of investigators is testing the drinking water drawn from the Monogahela River after hundreds of suburban South Hills residents became ill.

The West Penn Water Co.'s President, William Harris, says no one has proven the water caused the sickness.

State Democrats face difficulties

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democrats in the 111th General Assembly may well have difficulty next month in shoving through within a cramped six days three major pieces of legislation, including a congressional redistricting plan.

Even some of their own legislative leaders have begun squawking publicly about the bills that party chieftains would like to see pushed through between Jan. 6 and Jan. 13—the period in which Democrats will control both houses and the governor's office.

Rep. Barney Quilter, D-47 Toledo, already has told newsmen he doesn't like most of the package or the hurry-up approach necessary to ram it through.

Quilter will be second-in-command of the House in the upcoming legislative session.

"I think that as far as ramming a congressional redistricting bill through, it would leave a bad taste in everybody's mouth," he said.

If district boundaries should be redrawn, said Quilter, Democrats should do it in a routine, orderly manner and send it to the governor. If James A. Rhodes is in office and vetoes the bill he would have to justify his actions, Quilter said.

Many lawmakers have complained privately that they believe outgoing Gov. John J. Gilligan's advisors are "thinking with their blood rather than their heads."

One target is John E. Hansan, Gilligan's chief of staff.

"He blew the election and now wants to get us in trouble," said a representative from northeast Ohio. "Hell, he and the rest of that crew down there (in the governor's office) will be gone from the state in three months. If Gilligan keeps listening to them he'll be lucky ever to be elected county commissioner."

Besides redistricting, Democrat partisans want to take income tax collection from the administration and give it to Democratic Treasurer Gertrude Donahey, securing jobs for at least 300 Democrats.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

She has yellow teeth and a heavy heart

DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married, 28-year-old woman with a problem I've never seen in your column.

All my life I've been unhappy with my teeth. They are strong and healthy, but very yellow. I can't tell you how much I want lovely white teeth. Abby! I've tried everything I've seen advertised, but nothing has worked for me.

Last evening I sat next to a dentist at a dinner party, and I mentioned that I would love to have my teeth capped for vanity's sake. He laughed and said, "Forget it. No ethical dentist would destroy healthy teeth for cosmetic reasons."

Abby, why not? They're MY teeth, and if I want them capped for cosmetic reasons, why wouldn't an ethical dentist do it? After all, plastic surgeons "destroy" healthy noses every day to reshape them to make people happier with their appearance. What's the difference?

HATES TO SMILE

DEAR HATES: Your dinner partner should have told you that some dentists are reluctant to tinker with Nature's original work, because it increases the possibilities of problems. However, my dental experts do not agree that "no ethical dentist would perform cosmetic dentistry on healthy teeth that are unsightly." When skillfully done, such dentistry does not "destroy" teeth. Many ethical dentists practice cosmetic dentistry to the delight of grateful patients who have learned to smile again.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, Jane, is 25, attractive and holds a responsible position. She is also quite naive and unsophisticated.

For that last two years Jane has been seeing a young man who could easily get married if he wanted to. He has Jane eating out of his hand, but this relationship seems to be going nowhere.

Jane refuses to date anyone else, but this young man openly dates others, which hurts Jane deeply.

Every time we attempt to discuss this one-sided relationship with Jane, it results in an emotional outburst and she tells us to please stay out of her affairs.

What can we do? My husband would like to tell this young man to either fish or cut bait, but I don't think we should interfere. What do you think?

JANE'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I think you're right. Any pressure on father's part would send the young man running for the hills. Let Jane handle it, and don't compound her problem by attempting to discuss it.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Second Thoughts" prompts me to write. (She wanted to know whether to go ahead and marry a man who had beaten her up in a fit of jealousy because she danced with another man.)

I'm glad you advised her against marrying him. I spent 20 years as a detective with Scotland Yard, and as such I've had a lot of experience with emotionally unstable persons.

Obviously, a man who would beat a woman is in need of help, and he should be helped, but it is definitely wrong for a woman to be legally chained to such a person.

My own observations have led me to believe that persons with uncontrollable tempers have a basic emotional defect, and the certainly will not improve after marriage. They sometimes improve, however, when thay see someone with a slighter bigger stick than the one they wield.

URSA: LUGANO, SWITZERLAND

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1946, the Indochina War broke out as troops under Ho Chi Minh launched widespread attacks against the French.

On this date:

In 1675, British colonists defeated Narragansett Indians in Rhode Island in the last battle of King Philip's War.

In 1732, Benjamin Franklin began to publish his "Poor Richard's Almanac" in Philadelphia.

In 1842, the United States recognized the independence of Hawaii.

In 1939, in World War II, the crew of the German liner, "Columbus," scuttled the ship in mid-Atlantic to avoid capture by the British.

In 1950, General Dwight Eisenhower was named commander of military forces under the North Atlantic Treaty organization.

In 1968, a Socialist who had run for President six times, Norman Thomas, died at the age of 84.

Ten years ago: Representative Gerald Ford of Michigan announced his candidacy for Minority Leader of the House, attempting to depose Charles Halleck of Indiana.

Five years ago: Thirteen U.S. servicemen were injured when militant students in Turkey stoned American cars in a protest against a visit by U.S. Navy ships.

The Blue Lines

A commercialized Christmas

By SUE MOORE

What is Christmas? Is it tinsel and toys and the bright glitter of the shop windows? Is it the frenzied people running up and down the streets in an effort to complete their last minute shopping? Or is it the artificial Christmas trees that people have stuck in their windows for their neighbors to see?

Is the true meaning of Christmas really any of these things? Christmas should be a celebration of the day that Christ was born. But people seem to forget this.

The holy message, "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men," seems to get lost in the artificial brightness and glitter. People think more about presents than peace, and "Good Will" is just some organization that helps needy people. Stickers bearing the message, "Merry Xmas," also cause us to forget what Christmas is all about.

This year let us not have an artificial Christmas. When you say, "Merry Christmas," say it from your heart. And when you sing carols, truly sing for "Joy to the World."

Don't be an Ebenezer Scrooge and think about how many presents you want. Instead, remember that this is the day Christ was born so that peace and good will shall reign over the earth.

Sock hop rules changed

By BRIAN COOK

Because of some recent discrepancies in dress codes and procedures concerning sock hops at WSHS, the Student Council felt it necessary to change regulations governing social activities.

The following new rules were approved by the faculty and supported by the council to be in the best welfare of the students and guests:

For all remaining sock hops, either the date or guest must be signed up one day prior to the dance; the number of dates or guests will be limited to one per dance, per student due to limited space; two doors will be opened at the dance — one for students of WSHS only and the other for WSHS students with guests or dates; all guests, regardless of other school dress codes or personal dress codes if out of school, must conform to the WSHS dress code for admittance; and all those attending must pay the admission charge except varsity athletes participating as a team member for the activity.

Olive PTO buys 2 tape recorders

A Christmas program was presented by the Olive Elementary School at the recent Olive PTO meeting held at the school.

Mrs. Sue Rockhold, president, presided over the meeting and made the motion for the purchase of two tape recorders at a cost of $150 for the Olive School. Treasurer Mrs. Shelby Greenlee reported the group had received $204 from the bake sale.

The club also voted to donate $25 to the advertising committee for advertisements on the recent operating levy.

Mrs. Rockhold announced volunteers would be needed Jan. 5 to paint fifth grade classrooms at Olive School and bring materials such as ladders, paint brushes, etc.

Four drivers volunteered to take underprivileged children from the school to the American Legion Christmas party Friday and members agreed to sponsor a chili supper in January.

Lions roar

He who has not christmas in his heart will never find it under a tree.

Seniors of the Week

Four Washington Senior High School students have been selected to be featured as seniors of the week. Those chosen were Tammy Walls, Doug Wheat, Kevin Blair and Mary Ann Rudduck.

Tammy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Walls, 511 Comfort Lane. She lists her main school activities as AFS and Y-Teens.

Tammy attends the First Christian Church and enjoys reading but is still undecided about her future plans after graduation. She had just one comment for the underclassmen, "Good Luck."

Doug Wheat, the second featured senior, is very active in school and extracurricular activites. The son of the Rev. and Mrs. Gerald Wheat, he is vice president of the National Honor Society, secretary-treasurer of the Lettermans Club, a member of Hi-Y and athletic trainer for the football and basketball teams.

Doug lists his main interests as "basketball, riding the strip and air hockey at the bowling alley." He plans to attend Miami University following graduation.

Kevin Paul Blair, son of Kenneth Blair, 846 Kohler Drive, is chaplain of Hi-Y, a member of the Lettermans Club and reporter for the Blue Lines and enjoys playing football, basketball and baseball. He is also a member of the South Side Church of Christ.

After graduation Kevin plans to continue his education either through college or joining one of the armed forces. His advice to underclassmen: "Take advantage of your high school years because you only go around once in life and these are the greatest years you will have."

The last featured senior is one of the most active seniors at WSHS, Mary Ann Rudduck. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Rudduck, Mary has been active in Y-Teens three years, AFS two years, National Honor Society, GAA, two years on the Sunburst staff, four-year cheerleader serving as varsity captain her senior year and the girl's interscholastic softball and volleyball teams.

She was also selected to be honored in the latest edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students and enjoys all types of sports.

Although she is yet undecided of her plans after graduation, Mary cautions underclassmen, "Be an individual because you learn a lot about yourself and others. Make the best of high school because it is over before you are ready for it to be."

Telephone calls on Yule eyed

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Bell telephone system officials expect their Ohio customers to place 1.3 million calls Christmas Day.

Christmas is the busiest time of the year because of the volume of calls and because many of the calls are made from homes instead of businesses, overloading normally low-volume routes, explained J. E. Ensign, assistant vice president for network operations. Christmas calls also average twice as long, he said.

Bell experts suggest placing calls before 5 p.m. Christmas Eve or after 11 p.m.; before 10 a.m. or between 3 p.m. and 6 p.m. Christmas Day. If that's not possible, they suggest calling the next day.

NHS rules altered

Fred Cluff, National Honor Society advisor at WSHS, has announced a higher grade point average will be necessary for admission in the society.

Several other qualifications have also been modified in order to raise the standards for those chosen as members in the honor society. New adoptions approved by the WSHS faculty and the honor society include:

—each candidate must have completed two semesters at WSHS;

—each candidate must be a member of the junior or senior class;

—any student who has been adjudged an unruly child by a juvenile court is ineligible for membership;

—any student who has been suspended from school and the suspension is recorded in the student's permanent school record is ineligible;

—and student who has received a legal notice and warning on attendance is ineligible; and

—juniors must maintain a 3.25 accumulative average on all credits excluding physical education, band and choir through the first five semesters of high school.

The new standards become effective for the class of 1976 when they first become eligible for membership in 1975 and will continue for each succeeding class.

Fayette Garden Club topic 'Christmas is sharing'

The December meeting of the Fayette Garden Club took place in the home of Mrs. Edwin Thompson, with Mrs. Robert Meriweather, Mrs. Wash Lough and Mrs. Ralph Hays assisting. There were 24 members and three guests present. Guests were Mrs. Howard Perrill, Mrs. Gerald Wheat and Miss Cindy Thompson.

Mrs. Thompson conducted the business session, and read the poem "Christmas Lullaby." Reports were made by Mrs. Maryon Mark and Mrs. C.S. Kelley, and Mrs. A.L. Fishback was welcomed as a new member of the club.

Mrs. Kenneth Craig gave the horticulture report, and spoke of the winter care for begonias, poinsettias and evergreens.

Mrs. George Stitt will be responsible for making two Christmas door swags for the Fayette County Children's Home.

Mrs. George Trimmer gave Christmas devotions and said that the real purpose of giving is giving one's self. She suggested sharing one's talents and being thoughtful in giving gifts people really need.

Mrs. Larry Lehman announced the afternoon would be for sharing Christmas music, poems, traditions and memories.

A vocal trio composed of Mrs. Wheat, Mrs. Milbourne Flee and Mrs. Thompson, sang several Christmas selections. They were accompanied by Mrs. Donald Schwaigert at the piano. Songs included Roundelay Noel, the Bells on Christmas Day, A Christmas Folk Song-Christmas Is and We Wish You a Merry Christmas.

Members and guests told what they remembered or liked about Christmas. Some said they liked the time of sharing, the old traditions such as caroling; the belief of children in Santa Claus, the music of Christmas, religious Christmas services, remembering of Christ's birthday, receiving news from friends at Christmas time, and being home with one's family to celebrate the holiday.

The club enjoyed the exchange of homemade gifts. The hostesses served refreshments from a beautifully decorated table.

'Impressions of Christmas' holiday party theme

Wagner Circle No. 1 and the True Blue Class of Grace United Methodist Church met in the home of Mrs. C.F. Lucas for the annual holiday party. The home was aglow with Christmas candles, wreaths, holly and a tree decorated with white doves and red birds.

Mrs. Wagner welcomed the 43 present. Mrs. Cecil VanZant gave impressive devotions and read Scripture from the Book of Luke. She gave interesting comments pertaining to the theme, "Inside of Christmas" and closed with prayer.

Mr. Donald Riber presented a beautiful program, "Impressions of Christmas" which were slides and songs of many varieties depicting Christmas amid a background of organ music by Dennis James at the organ in the Ohio Theater.

A gift exchange followed.

Assisting hostesses during the evening were Mrs. Forest Ellis, Mrs. Jeannette Weaver, Mrs. Dena Haines, Mrs. Robert Case, Ms. Mina Gidding, Mrs. William Lovell, Mrs. McKinley Kirk, Mrs. Paul Elliott, and the Misses Helen Slavens, Lida Grace Wissler, Lena Smith, Leona Hewitt and Elizabeth Horney.

Twin Oaks Club dinner-party

The spirit of Christmas was everywhere when the Twin Oaks Garden Club members and guests arrived at the "Red Boot" for their annual Christmas Party and program. The banquet room was aglow with lights and a ceramic musical Christmas tree. The country-style dinner was served from a long beautifully appointed table with candles, and at each place setting was a Christmas napkin holder, a gift from Mrs. Willard Bonham.

After the meal, a program was presented by Mrs. James Braun, assisted by Mrs. Eugene Thompson, who read a Christmas Story. Two contests were conducted by Mrs. Braun and guests took part in the story "Twelve Nights of Christmas." She illustrated with a shadow box of figures, and when finished had a lovely gift.

Necklaces made of buttons were presented to each present. They were made by Mrs. Wilbur Hoppes, Mrs. Virgil Garringer and Mrs. Bonham

A gift exchange was held by all and Mrs. William McFadden was the winner of a special gift.

During the social hour Mrs. Hesler, owner, took all on a tour of the rooms, as all admired the lovely Christmas decorations. Mrs. Hesler was formerly a flower show judge.

Enjoying the event were Mrs. Harold Bonecutter and Mrs. Kenneth Bonecutter, Mrs. Jay Bonecutter, Mrs. Braun, Mrs. Ted Knisley, Mrs. Paul Pope, Mrs. Tom Braden, Mrs. Harold Bakenhester, Mrs. Bonham, Mrs. James Bonham, Mrs. Joe Bonham, Mrs. Don Bonham, Mrs. Dana Kellenberger, Mrs. Walter Boyer, Mrs. Tony Hicks, Mrs. Everett Baird, Mrs. Howard Barney, Mrs. Virgil Garinger, Mrs. Charles Blizard, Mrs. Wilbur Hoppes, Mrs. William McFadden and Mrs. Francis Clark.

HOLIDAY FONDUE FUN

Planning some informal entertaining for the holidays? Give a fondue party! Build an entire meal around a main-dish fondue or serve a dessert fondue to start or finish an evening of entertainment.

You'll need one "fondue pot" for each 4 to 6 guests. Fondue must be served hot, so a "fondue pot" includes a container for the food plus a heating unit. This may range from a simple casserole dish on a candle-warmer stand to a specially designed fondue set. You might use Grandmother's old pewter chafing dish or even an automatic skillet. The heat source may be a sterno or a alcohol burner, a candle or electricity.

Everybody gets in the act at a fondue party. Each guests needs a long fork or pick to reach into the pot, a plate for the dipped or cooked food, and another fork for eating. That's to avoid licking the cooking fork and dipping it back into the fondue! Don't forget large sturdy napkins or fondue bibs — fondue is drippy!

For a main dish fondue, cheese is the number 1 choice — Swiss cheese, cheddar, cream cheese, or a combination of two or more cheeses. Most cookbooks have at least one or two cheese fondue recipes. Zooming into popularity are fondues using small meat items cooked in hot oil. Small meat balls or thin strips of beef or poultry are excellent. For this type of fondue, controlled electrically heated pots may be best to keep the fat at the proper temperature and to minimize any fire hazard resulting from dripping oil into a flame. Some recipes suggest using a seasoned meat broth instead of oil for cooking raw meat or heating cooking meat pieces.

If you are doing a whole meal, you might also cook frozen potato products in the hot oil. Large french fries and frozen balls of shredded potatoes can be cooked this way.

For dessert, try a chocolate or carmel fondue. Use either milk chocolate or semi-sweet chocolate, thinned with milk or cream. Chunky peanut butter makes a good addition to chocolate or try a little instant coffee for a mocha flavor. For a caramel fondue, melt caramel candies or butterscrotch bits in milk or thin cream.

The usual "dunker" for cheese and some meat fondues is cakes of French bread, each with a side of crust to help keep in intact in the dipping process. Or try unsliced dark rye bread, cut the same way, or English muffins. Chunks of boiled potatoes, good with many cheese fondues, are a nice alternate to bread.

For dessert fondues, try pieces of fresh fruits — apples, bananas, strawberries, peaches, oranges. Or use very well-drained canned fruits — mandarin orange pieces, pineapple chunks, peach slices. Angel food cake is a food dessert. "Soft, very tender cakes break too easily in the dipping process.

If a fondue fun-do appeals to you, try it. If you need gift ideas, consider the various fondue pots, forks, plates, and recipe books. Maybe you'd like to put these items on your own Christmas wish list!

Bookwalter Aid

Members of the Bookwalter Ladies Aid assembled in the home of Mrs. Marvin Stockwell for the annual holiday party, gift exchange and carry-in luncheon. A lighted Christmas tree was the focal point in the living room. The entire house was lovely with lighted candles and greenery.

Members and guests were seated at the beautifully decorated dining table for the luncheon.

The business meeting was conducted by vice president Mrs. Dan Warner, in the absence of Mrs. Russell Garringer. Mrs. Marvin Stockwell read "Christmas Spirit", "Faith for Today" and closed devotions with prayer.

Mrs. Marilyn Marks, secretary, called the roll which each member answered with a favorite carol. A Christmas card was received from Mrs. Mary Kessler Miller containing a check for $25.00 as a donation to the Aid.

Cards, fruit plates and flowers were to be sent to shut-ins in the community. A poem, "I Keep a Part of Christmas," was read by Mrs. Marks for the closing.

The gift exchange and visiting concluded the afternoon. Those present were Mrs. Jean Warner, Mrs. Leola Allen, Mrs. Esther Stockwell, Mrs. Leona Edwards, Mrs. Opal Ellers, Mrs. Louise Vannorsdall, Mrs. Faye Armstrong, Mrs. Lillian Ervin, Mrs. Florence Seibert, Mrs. Marilyn Marks and guests Mrs. Ocie Huffman and Mrs. Martha Allen.

Holiday treats prepared

The Missionary Prayer Band of the Rose Avenue Wesleyan Church met in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Johnson Tuesday for a covered dish luncheon. Mrs. Georgia Hidy led the devotions. After the luncheon, they packed the Christmas treats for the Sunday School scholars and a social hour followed.

Those present were Rev. and Mrs. Donald Pollock, Mrs. Joseph Martin, Mrs. Georgia Hidy, Mrs. Ethel Wilson, Mrs. Herbert Eckle, Brian Dunn, and the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson. Additional guests were Mr. and Mrs. Norton Burnett.

Good Hope MYF

The Good Hope United Methodist Women observed 'Family Night' at the annual Christmas get together in the social rooms of the church recently. Greenery and candles were on the decorated tables, from which a potluck supper was enjoyed.

A Christmas program was presented by the MYF (Methodist Youth Fellowship) afterwards. They presented the Christmas story from the Book of Luke in a candlelight service.

Comrades 'party' in Biddle home

The Comrades of the Second Mile held their annual Christmas meeting in the beautifully decorated home of Mrs. Gilbert Biddle in Bloomingburg. Mrs. Gordon Cowdrey and Mrs. Eli Craig were the assisting hostesses. Three guests and 19 members joined in the festive holiday party.

A social hour preceded the covered dish dinner with members being seated at tables throughout the home covered with red cloths and gaily decorated in keeping with the season. Mrs. Loren Noble gave the invocation.

Following dinner, members wrapped toys purchased by them for Church Women United to distribute to needy families under the direction of Mrs. Craig.

Mrs. Grace Iden, president, conducted a brief business meeting at which time many thank yous were read for Thanksgiving plates which had been distributed to shut-ins in the community.

Mrs. Mary Foster and Mrs. Craig were appointed to prepare Christmas baskets of food in connection with the Lions Club for needy families of the community.

Mrs. Noble was in charge of the program, and read a Christmas story. She reminisced of past Christmas meetings and of former members, and closed with the group joining in singing the familiar traditional Christmas carols, accompanied by her at the organ.

The meeting was closed with the Comrades benediction. To the surprise of all, Santa Claus made an unexpected visit in the person of Mrs. Biddle and each received a gift.

The hostesses served punch and the remainder of the evening was spent in visiting, and viewing the hostess' many beautiful antiques displayed throughout her home.

Guests sharing the evening were Mrs. Norman Schiering, Mrs. Joe Giebelhouse, and Mrs. Lucy Randolph, along with members Mrs. Jack Sollars, Mrs. Edgar McFadden, Mrs. Richard Snyder, Mrs. Glenn Heistand, Mrs. Charles Cunningham, Mrs. Richard Thompson, Mrs. Dale Thornton, Mrs. Roger Rapp, Mrs. W.P. Noble, Mrs. Hugh LaFollette, Mrs. Rex Bloomer, Mrs. Ervin Baumann, Mrs. Malcolm Bloomer, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Iden, Mrs. Noble, Mrs. Cowdrey, Mrs. Craig and Mrs. Biddle.

During the winter heating season, remember to keep house plants away from drafts, heat registers and heat radiated by fireplaces. Most blooming plants will do best in a cool room (about 70 degrees) with bright light, while foliage plants can usually take a somewhat higher room temperature.

Special gifts ready for Eastside pupils

A kindergarten teacher at Eastside Elementary School has a special Christmas gift for each of her 63 pupils.

Mrs. Avanell Zimmerman, who has been a kindergarten teacher at Eastside Elementary School for the past three years, had the opportunity to travel to Israel through the United Methodist Church in Jeffersonville, of which she is a member.

"Myself and Elizabeth Satterfield attended the Convocation for World Methodist Evangelism in Israel, representing our church, but a total of 500 people went from Ohio and a total of 2,500 people attended from all over the world," Mrs. Zimmerman explained.

It was on the trip, Nov. 16 through Nov. 23, Mrs. Zimmerman found camels made from olive wood for sale. She bought 70 of them and hung them on the Christmas tree in her classroom and she plans on giving them to her students right before vacation.

Mrs. Zimmerman also displayed a nativity scene of carved olive wood figures which she also purchased in Israel. She's not sure whether the camels are hand-carved or not, but the nativity scene definitely was and by a very skilled craftsman.

Lebanon won't rehire workers

LEBANON, Ohio (AP)—The 18 city workers who were fired for violating the state's law forbidding strikes by public employes will not be rehired.

City Personnel Director Karl Detwiler said the city would not take the workers back although it could under provisions of the Ferguson Act.

Detwiler said he will hire new employes to replace the strikers who, despite the firings Tuesday, maintained picket lines.

The strikers were all employed by the city power plant and waterworks. They walked out Nov. 19 demanding recognition of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers as their bargaining agent.

Copter crash kills Ohio man

NEW SMYRNA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Authorities sought today to determine what caused a helicopter crash near here Wednesday which claimed the life of an Ohio pilot.

Richard Lynn Riegger, 26, of Medina, Ohio, died in the accident. Witnesses said the craft, owned by Doan Helicopter Service of South Florida, appeared to come apart in flight.

The same company owned a sight seeing helicopter which exploded last summer off Daytona Beach, killing three persons, the sheriff's office said.

Mrs. Seiberling received a black eye when a youth struck her while another grabbed her purse on a Washington, D. C., street, capital police reported.

Religious group loses damage suit

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Two Toledo brothers who sued an Idaho religious group for alienating the affections of their wives were awarded $48,000 apiece in damages by a common pleas court jury Tuesday.

After five hours of deliberation, the eight-person jury awarded $33,000 compensatory and $15,000 punitive damages each to Joseph A. Radecki, an anesthesiologist, and Henry M. Radecki, vice president of Owens-Illinois Glass Co.

The verdict, against Bishop Francis K. Schuckardt, leader of the Tridentine Roman Catholics and Christ the King Priory, Inc., the corporate name of the religious group, followed two weeks of evidence and testimony.

The lawsuit alleged that Joseph's wife, Catherine, and Henry's wife, Emily, were induced by the group and its teachings to desert and abandon their husbands and destroy their marriages.

Evidence in the trial showed that the two Radecki women, after following the religious teachings of the group, left their husbands in 1973 and took their children to live and go to school in Coeur D'Alene, Idaho, home of the group.

The defense contended that the Radecki women merely were following their religious beliefs.

Bishop Schuckardt said the Christ the King Priory, Inc., would file an appeal asking that judgments won by the Radecki brothers be set aside.

The bishop said he was confident an appeals court would overturn the jury's findings on grounds that the church's beliefs were on trial, in violation of the constitutionally-guaranteed freedom of religion.

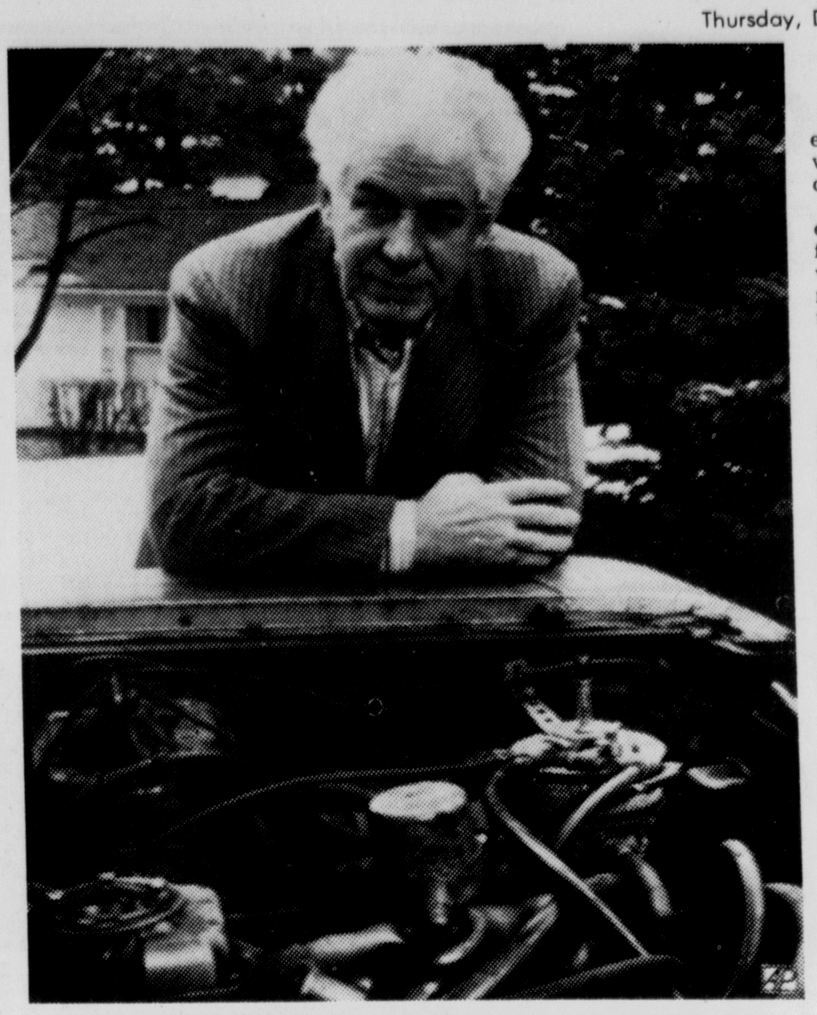
Judge Reno R. Riley Jr.'s action made Ohio the "first state that has allowed a church to be put on trial" for teaching its beliefs, he said.

Tridentine Roman Catholics adhere to the decrees and doctrines set forth by the mid 16th Century Council of Trent and reject modernism, including Pope Paul VI, Schuckardt said.

The bishop said the defense was hampered because the judge, jury and attorneys, including the group's own, were not knowledgeable in Tridentine doctrines.

Schuckardt said the Tridentines do not recognize divorce, nor counsel the breakup of marriages, but do recognize separations.

The Radeckis are "wealthy men" who are disappointed that their families did not choose to share their ways of life, he said.



LEANING WITH FORCE — Robert LaForce leans on the fender of his car and talks about one of the devices used on the engine that he and his brother have modified, which they say increases fuel economy. The engine, in his personal car at Beaver, Pa., contains the device, below his right arm.

News pact vote slated

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Striking editorial employes at The Plain Dealer will vote Friday on a new contract that could end their 48-day walkout.

The pact, which is being submitted to employes without a recommendation from the Cleveland Newspaper Guild, was hammered out after 11 hours of negotiations late Wednesday and early today.

A spokesman for The Plain Dealer said that if the package is approved, publication could resume Sunday.

Jack Weir, executive secretary of the Cleveland Newspaper Guild, said the package does not increase the basic wages over a contract offer which guild members rejected by a 111-94 vote last week, but does include some changes including a better cost-of-living package.

Negotiations continued today with The Cleveland Press in hopes a similar agreement could be reached with the city's other major newspaper.

Rubber rail ties wave of future?

ASHTABULA, Ohio (AP)—If Nelson K. Moses, 71, had his way, all the world's trains would ride on rails mounted on rubber—and his two firms here would be at the head of the world's largest industry.

Moses, who first put rubber under rails 33 years ago, sees vindication of his belief in the recent award of $1.76 million in contracts calling on him to do it again.

The larger pact, $1.36 million, is for track in a $200 million automated underground railroad in a molybdenum mine near Denver, Colo., being developed by Climax Molybdenum Co., a division of AMAX Inc. The other contract, for $400,000, came from the New York City Transit Authority for subway tracks.

Moses' concept involves fitting rails within a wide rubber pad and then bolting the whole assembly to concrete. Acceptance has been slow in coming, though Moses says Boston and New York subways have used the system successfully and that a main rail line in Florida has been without a derailment in the six years since it installed his design.

Railroad men "are terribly afraid to put rubber under rails," he says over the thunder of trains roaring past his office throughout the day. "They think the train is going to tip over."

But Moses, not only convinced they are wrong, argues that since their track failures cause 10,000 major derailments each year, use of rubber under rails would save railroad companies billions of dollars annually—and help return them to profitability.

Maintenance of "Liberty Tracks," as Moses calls his system, is inexpensive, he says. Moses believes their use would permit such reductions in freight rates as to make rails highly competitive with road and water freight.

A NICE PLACE TO WALK — Washington C.H. has proven to be a very nice place to walk — there have been no pedestrian fatalities in the city for the past five years. To commemorate this fact Robert A. Craig, left, president of the Fayette County Automobile Club, presented the two plaques shown to Dan Wolford, city manager. Wolford graciously accepted on behalf of the city and the Washington C.H. Police Department.

Demo leaders ready remap steamroller

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Democratic leaders have mapped a tentative congressional redistricting plan designed to destroy Republican strongholds in Cincinnati and Columbus.

An ad hoc House-Senate committee came up with the plan to create three or four new Democratic districts at a closed meeting Wednesday.

The key areas of interest to the Democrats are the 12th and 15th districts in Columbus and the 1st district in Cincinnati.

However, State Sen. Tony Hall, D-6 Dayton, who is coordinating the effort, said "as many as six or seven districts will be changed" substantially if the plan is adopted.

Democratic legislators will have to move with clockwork precision to get the bill through the 111th General Assembly during the second week in January while Gov. John J. Gilligan is still in office.

Gov.-Elect James A. Rhodes, who will be sworn in on Jan. 13, would presumably veto any plan that weakened Republican held districts.

Gilligan began pushing for a redistricting effort after Republicans maintained a 15-8 edge in Ohio congressional districts in the November election despite sweeping Democratic gains in the state legislature.

The secretary of state does not keep registration figures by party, but primary voting records indicate Democrats are in a majority in the state.

The Democrats believe they should have at least one congressman in Columbus and the plan would shove Republican Reps. Sam Devine and Chalmers Wylie into one district, probably in northern Franklin County. That would create a vacancy for a Democrat like Councilwoman Fran Ryan who narrowly lost to Devine last month.

Another priority for remapping is the 1st District in Cincinnati where Rep. Thomas Luken was defeated by Republican Willis Gradison in a close contest.

Luken had become the fourth Democrat this century to hold the seat after he won over Gradison last March in a special election with overtones of voter reaction against Watergate.

Gilligan who formerly held the seat claims that a Republican redistricting effort cost him his job in 1966.

The tentative plan would also further strengthen the already generally Democratic 3rd district in Dayton where Rep. Charles W. Whalen Jr., a liberal Republican, was unopposed in November.

The committee hopes to carve a new Democratic district north of Dayton stretching up to Mercer County and including parts of Springfield, Xenia and Fairborn.

Hall said several Democratic districts in northeastern Ohio would be "shored up," particularly the 23rd where State Sen. Ronald Mottl, D-24 Parma, has been elected to a seat vacated by Rep. William Minshall, a Republican who retired.

The problem for the committee, Hall conceded, is that the "adding to" also involves "some taking away" from Democratic districts. He estimated that at least minor adjustments will be made in fourfifths of the state's 23 districts.

Changes in Summit County, for instance, will likely weaken Rep. Charles A. Mosher, a Republican, in the 13th District, but also erode Democratic strength in Rep. John F. Seiberling's 14th District.

Hall was in Washington on Tuesday to discuss redistricting with Ohio's Democratic congressional delegation.

The 10 committee members will now take the proposal back to county leaders for consideration before meeting in caucus with fellow legislators for final shaping of the man.

If a consensus can be reached, Hall said, "by New Year's we should be ready to go." The legislature convenes on Jan. 6.

Traffic Court

Three persons were fined on traffic charges Wednesday by Municipal Court acting Judge Omar Schwart.

Larry V. Wilson, 21, Sabina, was fined $25 after pleading no contest to a charge of unsafe bumper height; Ernest L. Perry, 18, of 823 Conley Court, was fined $13 when he pleaded no contest to a charge of speeding; and Kim E. McCoy, 18, of 678 Robinson, was fined $18 after pleading guilty to a charge of speeding.

Those forfeiting bonds were: Eric M. Chester, 22, Jeffersonville, $35, unsafe vehicle; Bruce Butler, 20, of 711 S. Main St., $25, speeding; and Linda E. Cornett, 22, Greenfield, $25, unsafe vehicle.

Congress OKs jobs bill, pushes for adjournment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, acting to combat the unemployment that now affects nearly six million Americans, has passed a bill authorizing 330,000 public service jobs.

The $5.5 billion bill cleared both House and Senate on Wednesday and went to President Ford for his expected signature. The bill also extends unemployment compensation to those not covered by existing programs, such as farm laborers, domestics and government employes.

The House also passed a supplemental appropriations measure carrying $4 billion for the job program and for supplemental unemployment compensation benefits for the jobless.

The Senate is expected to act on this money bill promptly. The Senate Appropriations Committee approved it Wednesday night. The House is expected to take final action today on another measure authorizing $1.1 billion to extend the period for paying jobless benefits to 52 weeks.

Democratic leaders were pushing for final adjournment of the 93rd Congress by Friday night, with some expressing hope the windup might be possible late tonight.

The House plans to debate and vote today on confirming Nelson A. Rockefeller as vice president, with approval apparently assured by a big margin. Rockefeller is to take the oath in the Senate chamber soon after the House vote.

One of the major bills left for final action is the international trade measure, a top item on President Ford's agenda for this Congress.

Senate-House conferees late Wednesday tentatively approved the bill which includes a provision aimed at insuring freer emigration of minorities from Communist countries.

Both chambers also plan to complete action on legislation extending antipoverty programs but phasing out the Office of Economic Opportunity, the antipoverty agency.

The legislators sent to the White House a $2.7 billion foreign aid authorization bill, which would allow military aid for Turkey to continue until Feb. 5.

Slow delivery of materials stalls discotheque opening

By MARK THELLMANN

Slow delivery of materials has delayed the opening of the Sounds Unlimited Discotheque, 131 S. Fayette St., the former location of Washington C.H.'s only theater.

Owner and operator Harry Chakeres explained, "It's the lighting which is really holding everything up. It's coming in slowly from a place in New York called 'Capitol Stage Lighting' which handles stage lighting all over the world. In fact, I've had to delay the sound and lighting engineers who are coming from Cincinnati and Kentucky, three times now. I've decided just to call them everyday and let them know if the stuff has come in."

Chakeres was ready to go with all the sound equipment and various games at the end of last month.

"Most everything came in on time and I do have 75 per cent of the lights now, but I can only hope the rest arrives soon so we can open the first part of January," Chakeres stated and exclaimed, "I'll be more than happy to open New Year's Eve and have a one great big party if I can!"

A HOPEFUL SIGN — Although "Sounds Unlimited Discotheque" is running a month behind schedule due to the slow arrival of the lighting equipment from New York, owner and operator Harry Chakeres is shooting for a New Year's opening date. Pictured is Gary Grim, of Grim Sign Service in Washington C.H., installing the new name. Chakeres explained the arch which says "Fayette" will be replaced by curved musical staff lines with music notes running down them.

IF THAT should happen, don't be disappointed when you arrive — Chakeres will serve no alcoholic beverages on the premises. Instead he will stock three items which taste like the real thing but are impostors: Near Beer, Champaign-o and a non-alcoholic Cold Duck.

"I could have gotten the full license to serve anything, but I feel I'd be getting into unnecessary problems by serving alcoholic beverages. I want my patrons to have a good time without the crutch of alcohol," Chakeres stated.

He also feels alcoholic beverages would defeat his purpose and the image of the establishment he is creating. Sounds Unlimited Discotheque is aimed at no real age group, but is expected to draw much of the under 18 crowd, which can't drink legally under Ohio law.

"You remember how school functions became you're whole life before you were legally allowed in bars for social entertainment?" Chakeres asked and continued, "When my place is open, the kids will have an alternative. There's no other place which offers five solid hours of entertainment for the price of $2."

Chakeres' "solid entertainment" will consist of a multi-thousand dollar sound system playing all the latest hits, flashing lights, 35 games in the backroom and pizza and sandwiches served with soft drinks. An addition to this agenda will be occasional live bands and old-time movies shown on the walls.

Chakeres figures the whole remodeling job, together with the sound and lighting, will run him around $100,000.

Work release plan given court's OK

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— More inmates at Ohio corrections facilities may take advantage of community activities, and the State Corrections Department may establish similar work release programs under the provisions of a court settlement reached this week.

Imon Mobley, director of outside educational programs at Lebanon Correctional Institution, said he hopes settlement of a lawsuit filed by Franklin County Prosecutor George Smith—to halt work release programs of the state department of correction and rehabilitation—would set the stage for further inmate participation.

Corrections Department spokesman Joe Ashley said Smith had contended in the suit the department could not legally release inmates into the community without legislative amendment of state law.

Under one of the most rewarding community programs, Mobley says, nine inmates from Lebanon work five days a week with brain injured children.

"For the first time, the men believe they are doing something good, and they feel good about it. It gives them a new perspective. We have nine men working five days a week—I could use 25," he said.

Clinic work is one type of work release. Others include college and vocational courses, speaking engagements, athletic events, church activities and drug abuse programs.

Screening for the program is strict, and will get tighter under terms of the court settlement. The department will have to keep more detailed records, but won't necessarily restrict the programs, Ashley explained.

About 800 inmates took part in work release activities last year, out of 7,000-8,000 eligible, Ashley said.

Maximum security inmates at the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility are ineligible, he said.

The first transatlantic cable was landed at heart's Content, Newfoundland, in 1866.

MARRIAGE APPLICATION

Raymond D. Harlan, 19, of 710 E. Paint St., unemployed, and Cathy L. Haynes, 16, Rt. 4, London, at home.

JUVENILE COURT

A 17-year-old Fayette County girl was found to be unruly after her parents filed a complaint in Juvenile Court. The petition stated that the youth had run away from home and refused to be disciplined by her parents. Judge Rollo M. Marchant ordered that she be placed on probation.

PROCEEDS DISBURSED

Proceeds from the Sheriff's sale of four properties involved in a foreclosure suit have been disbursed by the court. Four parcels of land in Fayette County owned by Jim and Joyce Emrick, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., were sold by the Sheriff at public auction. Two parcels were purchased by Silver Dollar Inc., of Washington C. H., for $16,900; the other two were purchased by the plaintiff, Thurman W. Plummer, Rt. 4, Washington C. H., for $10,200.

Some $700 of the money from the sale was turned over to the clerk of Common Pleas Court to cover court costs. The remainder was given to Plummer toward the debt owed him by the defendants on a promissory note. Another $1,881 is still owed on the mortgage note.

The proceeds were insufficient to provide any revenue for William and Wanda Frasure, of Lucasville, who are owed some $5,000 by the Emricks on a second promissory note. The note held by the Frasures was found to be a second lein on the properties which could be paid only after Plummer received full payment of the first lien, according to the petition.

Ohio layoffs still rising

The number of Ohio workers furloughed or facing layoff after the first of the new year rose to 44,479 Wednesday with announcement that General Motors Corp. would cut back more jobs next month.

About 650 workers were scheduled to be laid off Jan. 20 at the Assembly Division plant at Lordstown, a GM spokesman said. In Dayton, Frigidaire Division was to release 514 employes Jan. 3.

Both layoffs were for indefinite periods, GM said.

The auto assembly plant was reducing production of Chevrolet Vegas and Pontiac Astres from 100 to 85 an hour, the spokesman said.

Frigidaire officials said it was necessary to bring inventories in line with sales and that duration of the layoffs in Dayton would depend on customer demand for appliances.

The Lordstown complex was to close for the Christmas holiday from Dec. 23 to Jan. 2. GM said 5,300 assembly division employes would be out of work again starting Jan. 13, when the lines are to be shut down again for one week.

Man must seek donations to provide lighted display

VIOLA, Del. (AP) — Last year the energy-shortage lighting ban almost ruined Olin Dill's annual message of Christmas cheer. This year he's worried about the cost of electricity for the 10,000 Christmas lights that adorn his home.

For the first time in more than two decades, Dill has been forced to ask for donations from the thousands who come to view his home, about eight miles south of Dover.

"Inflation's hit me just like everyone else," he said. "I called the electric company the other day and found out it's going to cost me three times as much to have my lights on this year."

Until now the most Dill and his family had accepted from the thousands who annually tour their 55 acres was a fruitcake and $2 from a drunk who stuffed it in Dill's pocket and refused to take it back, Mrs. Dill said.

In the pre-energy crisis years, Dill said he could run the lighting display for 120 hours from the week before Christmas until New Year's Day for about $120. If it is run at the same level this season, it would cost about $700, Mrs. Dill said.

Last year, because of a presidential request to forego decorative lights, the display was lit for only 44 hours and used 2,000 fewer lights. The electric bill was about $100, but that same display would cost about $350 this year, Dill said.

Since the display opened on Sunday, donations have been enough to meet the bills, Mrs. Dill said. Last year 9,500 cars and buses visited the farm grounds, but the Dills say they hope the donation box doesn't make anyone feel obligated to pay for the tour.

"If people want to pitch in a coin, maybe we'll run it longer," Dill said.

To face winless Wilmington

Lions search for confidence

BY LARRY WATTS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

"Being 2-4 at this point of the season is a big letdown for us," explained Gary Shaffer, head basketball coach at Washington. "I had expected our season mark to be better than this after six games. We are just going to have to buckle down and play a lot harder."

Before the Blue Lions take their holiday break, Wilmington will be in town for a Friday night visit. The young Hurricane will be looking for an upset as they are carding a mark of 0-4 on the season.

To pinpoint a starting lineup for the Hurricane is nearly impossible. Fighting through a rebuilding season, Wilmington coach Larry Bartram only has one senior on his squad. The remainder of his team is composed of six juniors, three sophomores and a freshman, who has been recently sharing his time between reserve and varsity duties.

Gary Williams, Wilmington's highly talented freshman, has just been brought up to the varsity level for experience in the last two contests. Williams has seen action in three quarters and scored a total of 17 points. It is very possible Williams will spend all four quarters with the varsity unit this week, since Wilmington does not have anyone averaging in double figures.

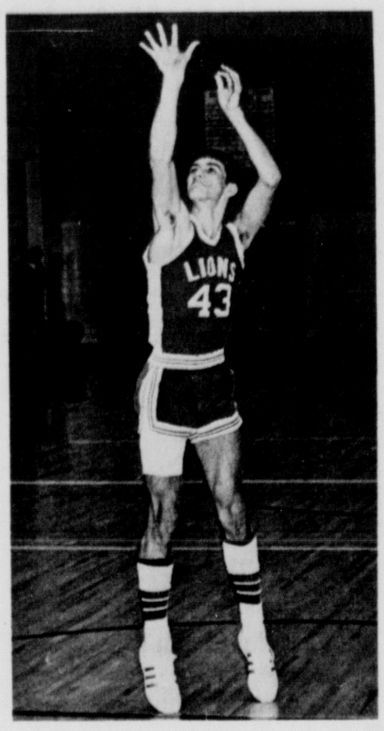
Lack of experience is quite evident on the Wilmington club as the Hurricane rank last in both offensive production and defense among the seven league teams. The Hurricane have been averaging 45.5 points per game, while their opponents have been blistering the nets for an average of 80.5.

"Confidence is the big thing we need right now," Shaffer indicated. "We can not afford to be down. This is a good shooting ball club and we are going to prove it once we become relaxed on the court."

Much of the offensive load has fallen on the shoulders of Doug Phillips, Chuck Byrd and Craig Shaffer this season. Coach Shaffer said if all three of them ever got hot one of these nights, they are going to blow some team right off the court.

At the present time, Phillips is leading the club in scoring with a 17.7 scoring average. He has scored 19 points or more in his last four games, but the junior forward is still not shooting up to his capabilities.

Byrd and Shaffer are each averaging in double figures. Byrd is collecting 13.8 points per game and Shaffer is scoring 11.5 points. Although he has been having problems running into foul trouble, Byrd is the only Lion to hit double figures in each game. With his leg showing a lot of improvement from the pulled thigh muscle, Shaffer is now starting to sharpen his shooting eye.



JOHN DENEN

Freshman center John Denen continues to show improvement with each game. Denen, who is averaging just over nine points per game, was impressive in the 73-60 loss to Greenfield. Showing some excellent moves inside, he picked up 11 points and hit the boards for 11 rebounds.

However, the fifth spot in the starting lineup has been a problem for coach Shaffer. As of yet, the Lion mentor has yet to find the right person to work in with the other four starters for the Lions.

"We just have not been able to figure out who can do the job," Shaffer replied. "We are in need of a defensive man who can rebound. Right now, our starting five depends on who we play. If we play a smaller team, we will use a third guard. If we play a bigger team, we will use another forward."

Shaffer has been trying several combinations with his lineup. Against Greenfield, nine players saw action. Shaffer feels that he has 10 players he can use at any time without hurting the team too much.

"Our defense has also been giving us a lot of trouble," remarked Shaffer in noting his team has given up over 66 points per game. "It is hard to run a full court or half court press when a couple of guys are not setting up."

In the Greenfield game, the Lions' defense broke down on several occasions and gave the Tigers layups. Many of the defensive mistakes were attributed to mental errors.

"The fourth quarter really got to us in Greenfield, but I still think we played good enough to win that game," he added. "It is just a matter of overcoming the things which get in our way."

With Circleville still undefeated and Greenfield and Miami Trace each with one loss, the Lions find themselves trailing the pack early in the season with a 1-2 record in the league. Although the Lions have two losses in league play, they can not be counted out as long as they start receiving some help from other teams in the SCOL.

Hayes admits Trojans stronger

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Woody Hayes is saying little about Southern California, but concedes Ohio State's Rose Bowl football opposition is improved over a year ago.

The explosive coach of the Buckeyes, who takes a 60-man squad to the West Coast Friday, said, "They (Southern California) are better defensively this year. They are a great team.

"I'm not going to say anything else about them," he said before the Big Ten cochampions wound up their home practices today.

Ohio State will practice nine times on the West Coast preparing for a third straight shot at the Pac-8 champions on the Rose Bowl Jan. 1.

Southern Cal won two years ago 42-14 and Ohio State prevailed last time 42-21.

Hayes, leading his seventh Rose Bowl team in 24 seasons, said of his 10-1-0 squad, "We're a little more versatile, but our defense wasn't as good until the last game."

In the finale, the Buckeyes Edged Michigan 12-10 to share the conference title with the Wolverines for the third successive season.

Hayes attributes his team's yield of 111 points to a rash of injuries. "We had six or seven regulars out at one time or another," he said.

The latest injury struck AllAmerican center-guard Steve Myers in practice this week. The 6-foot-2, 244-pound senior broke his right wrist in the same spot for the second time this season.

"He will play," Hayes said of Myers, "and you can be certain of that. He'll play damned well, too."

Myers has swapped positions again with right guard Dick Mack. The two pulled the same maneuver for five games of the regular season. Myers played the other six contests at center.

The son of the Kent, Ohio, police chief missed the 1973 Rose Bowl because of mononucleosis, but started the 1974 contest at center.

Hayes plans the first of his workouts Saturday at Citrus Junior College.

Ohio State turnovers spell 72-71 defeat

By The Associated Press

Virginia Tech's Gobblers made the most of costly Ohio State turnovers and the exit of Bill Andreas with a knee injury Wednesday night and emerged with a 72-71 interstate basketball victory.

Andreas, hurt late in the first half after scoring nine points, sat out the second and watched as the visiting Virginians broke open an attempted Buckeye stall with about three minutes left on the clock.

Virginia Tech, trailing 68-57, scored 12 straight points to overtake Ohio State, 69-68, and go ahead for the first time. Larry Cooke and Dave Sensibaugh had key baskets after stealing the ball from the slowed down OSU team.

Russell Davis, the Gobblers' 6-foot-5 forward, calmly laid in a pair of free throws to clinch the victory after being fouled by Mark Bayless with seconds left.

Elsewhere, Toledo came off losses to highly ranked Indiana and Marquette by belting California State at Hayward 97-61 on the Rockets' home court.

It was a warmup for Toledo's Mid-American conference opener Saturday night at Eastern Michigan.

Jim Brown, Toledo's 6-foot-9 center, scored a career high 36 points and pulled down 19 rebounds to lead both teams in that department. Stan Williams had 16 points to pace the Pioneer scorers.

Toledo won the game on the backboards. The Rockets nabbed a total of 65 rebounds, compared to only 26 for the shorter Californians.

In Cincinnati Xavier lost to Morehead 68-63. Contributing to the loss were 18 fouls called against the Cincinnati team in the second half compared with six against Morehead.

Panthers trip Marquette

The Marquette Warriors have been hard to swallow for an awfully long time, but the Pittsburgh Panthers gave them a taste of their own medicine Wednesday night.

The Panthers, looking more like Marquette than the Warriors themselves, gave their opponents a good dose of defense and then provided the knockout drops at the foul line.

The combination provided them with an upset 65-58 victory over the nation's seventh-ranked basketball team.

"This is kind of like Christmas coming early," said Pittsburgh Coach Buzz Ridl after the upset. "It was a great win for us."

An infrequent loser, Marquette has won more than 88 per cent of its games in the last five years — the top record among independents. The defeat was only the Warriors' 18th loss in that time.

The Panthers used the frantic Marquette style to pull off the upset, a clutching defense that barely allowed the Warriors breathing room. That's been Marquette's trademark under Coach Al McGuire.

Jim Bolla gave unheralded Pitt its triumph with two crucial one-on-one conversions in the final two minutes. When Bolla fouled out with a minute to play, he was given a standing ovation.

"I was happy but I don't think it was for me," said the 6-foot-8 senior. "I think it was more for the team."

In the only other game involving a ranked team, No. 4 Louisville routed Clemson 90-75.

Bolla, who dominated the backboards and scored 12 points, put the Panthers, 3-3, ahead for good at 52-51, despite several desperation comeback efforts by the Warriors, 3-1.

Pitt started strong, leading 16-4 early in the game, and owning a 40-30 halftime lead. But the Panthers fell victim to Marquette's pressure zone defense early in the second half, and with nine minutes to go in the game, the Warriors had grabbed a 49-46 lead.

Kenneth Starr and Kirk Bruce led the winners with 13 points apiece.

Lloyd Walton led Marquette with 17 points and Bo Ellis chipped in with 16.

Phillip Bond scored 12 points in the second half, rallying Louisville over Clemson. Bond's second-half surge after scoring only four points in the first half helped bring Louisville back from a 39-33 halftime deficit.

Wayne Rollins led Clemson with 14 points.

Louisville trailed by as many as 11 points in the first half, 25-14, but then in the next three minutes scored 12 straight points to take a 28-27 lead. Then Rollins scored six points in the last minute to send Clemson ahead at the half.

Elsewhere, New Mexico beat Abilene Christian College 85-63, Virginia Tech nipped Ohio State 72-71, Stanford whipped Wisconsin 89-67, LSU topped Tulane 84-82, Minnesota smothered Loyola of Chicago 66-53, Temple edged Navy 64-63 and Canisius downed LaSalle 70-69.

Komets rip Des Moines in IHL, 5-2

By The Associated Press

Brian Walker was a busy hockey player Wednesday night.

The Fort Wayne skater scored two goals and assisted on three others as the Komets swept past Des Moines 5-2 in International Hockey League play.

Pat Russell and Cam Botting scored the Capitols' goals, but their efforts were not good enough to touch the 3-0 lead held by Fort Wayne after one period. The lead was stretched to 4-1 after the second period.

In other games, Dayton and Flint played to a 4-4 tie and Columbus topped Muskegon 4-2.

Doug Manchak of Flint and Steve Self of Dayton turned in twin performances, each scoring two goals and getting credit for an assist in the tie game.

The tie keeps Dayton in first place in the IHL's Southern Division with a record of 20-7-2. Flint is 19-9-3.

Columbus never trailed, thanks to two goals from center Ed Kenty.

Muskegon did manage to tie the score at 2-2 in the second period on shots by Bill Kestell and Pat DeMarchi, but Owls winger Harry Casey put in what turned out to be the winning goal in the final period.

21 teams fishing for 'Catfish'

OAKLAND (AP) — Twenty-one major league baseball teams have their lures out for Jim "Catfish" Hunter. Twenty want to sign him and one wants to keep him.

And the teams trying to reel in the Catfish got the green light Wednesday from Alameda County, Calif., Superior Court ... at least until Jan. 3.

While one team after another was burning up the telephone lines to Hunter's lawyers in Ahoskie, N.C., Judge Spurgeon Avakian refused to grant Charles O. Finley a temporary restraining order that would have prevented the clubs from making Hunter offers he might not be able to refuse.

However, Avakian set Jan. 3 for a hearing of the case on its merits.

In refusing to grant the temporary restraining order, Avakian said:

"I don't think realistically any club will sign him with the court action still pending. I also think Hunter would want to wait to get the most he probably could out of any contract. I don't see enough basis to challenge the arbitration in the meantime."

On Monday, a three-man arbitration panel decided that Finley had failed to live up to a contract agreement with Hunter and ruled the star pitcher of the world champion Oakland A's a free agent. Hunter took his case to arbitration after the World Series, claiming Finley had failed to place $50,000 in a special deferred fund.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has ruled that no team can sign Hunter until midnight Sunday. However, 12 teams contacted Hunter's lawyers within three hours after the legal bidding war for his pitching services started at 9 a.m., EST, Wednesday. They were the New York Yankees, New York Mets, Kansas City Royals, Philadelphia Phillies, Montreal Royals, Atlanta Braves, Cleveland Indians, California Angels, Cincinnati Reds, Detroit Tigers, Pittsburgh Pirates and Boston Red Sox.

"We are making appointments to discuss the contract starting Thursday," said Joe Flythe, a partner in the law firm of Cherry, Cherry, Flythe and Evans. "He's not signing with anyone until we've had discussions with all teams showing interest."

Eight more clubs got into the act Wednesday afternoon but it was not disclosed which ones. However, two of the four teams which haven't been heard from — all teams have until Saturday to enter the race — are the A's and the Baltimore Orioles, American League East Division champs.

The Orioles have a club policy against multiple-year contracts and Hunter's lawyers told General Manager Frank Cashen one of the prime considerations being sought by the pitcher is a multi-year contract.

Hunter said he hoped to pick his new team — the courts permitting — by early next week.

"I'd like to give myself and my family a nice Christmas present," he said. "I want a cash bonus and I want a good salary and I want a guarantee that my family will be protected financially for the rest of their lives."

Hunter said he believes the bidding will go over $1 million.

12 new faces in Pro Bowl

NEW YORK (AP)—Twelve National Football Conference players, including St. Louis quarterback Jim Hart and Dallas receiver Drew Pearson, will be making their first appearance in this season's Pro Bowl.

Hart and Pearson, both having glittering seasons, were among those named Wednesday to the NFC's all-star team that will meet the AFC in Miami's Orange Bowl next January 20.

In addition to Hart and Pearson, the first-timers include, center Jeff Van Note of Atlanta; middle linebacker Bill Bergey of Philadelphia; receiver Mel Grey, tackle Dan Dierdorf and running back Terry Metcalf, all of St. Louis; guard Blaine Nye and free safety Cliff Harris, both of Dallas; defensive tackle Diron Talbert of Washington; cornerback Willie Buchanon of Green Bay and return specialist-safety Dick Jauron of Detroit.

Of the 12 new faces, Hart, Pearson, Van Note and Bergey will be in the starting lineup.

In addition to the 12 first-time selectees, six other players who were not on last year's NFC squad were chosen for the 40-man roster. There are 22 repeaters from last year's team.

The squad is chosen in balloting among the 13 NFC coaches, with none allowed to vote for players on his own team.

The AFC leads in the series, 3-1. The NFC won the inuagural game 27-6 in Los Angeles, but the AFC has won three straight times.

Tribe signs Perry; now look to Hunter

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The Cleveland Indians signed one top-flight pitcher Wednesday and jumped into a furious bidding war for the services of another.

Gaylord Perry, who had his fourth season with 20 or more victories last year, said Wednesday he was happy with a two-year "contract I can live with."

Other sources reported his salary would be $150,000 a year.

Meanwhile, General Manager Phil Seghi said he and Indians operating chief Ted Bonda would meet with Jim "Catfish" Hunter this weekend in Ahoskie, N.C.

Perry, who lives about 35 miles from Hunter, also was to talk to Hunter about joining the Tribe, the Indians said.

Hunter, top hurler in the American League last year, was declared a free agent Monday in a history-making baseball arbitration ruling. He is free to offer his services to the highest bidder.

The ruling said Oakland Athletics owner Charles Finley had failed to honor all terms of Hunter's contract for the 1974 season. Finley is expected to file suit to have the verdict set aside.

Perry, a former Cy Young award winner, said he signed his contract Wednesday.

"I'm relaxed and looking forward to playing a few more years with the Indians," Perry said.

The 36-year-old right-hander caused a furor last season when he insisted publicly he get $1 a year more in salary than new manager Frank Robinson.

In American League records, Perry's 2.51 earned-run average and 28 complete games placed him second in those categories. He was third in innings pitched with 322 and fourth in strikeouts with 216.

He won 15 games in a row last year after losing his first.

He and his brother, Jim, shared man of the year honors awarded by the Cleveland chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Cleveland Browns players win honor

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The Cleveland Browns, who just completed one of the worst seasons in their history, had two members named Wednesday to play in the National Football League Pro Bowl.

The two were defensive tackle Jerry Sherk and running back Greg Pruitt.

Frustrating seaway season ends

By The Associated Press

Winter has ended one of the most frustrating shipping seasons in the 16-year history of the Saint Lawrence Seaway.

The last scheduled freighter to pass through the American locks in Massena, N.Y., the Toronto-based Great Laker "Frank A. Sherman", headed for port Wednesday to close out the 1974 shipping season that interrupted the waterway's boom era.

The seaway was expected to finish the 1974 shipping season with its first decline in cargo and revenue after four-straight record-setting seasons, American seaway officials predicted.

"We had a real bad year, there is no question about that," David Oberlin said from his Washington, D.C., office. Oberlin is the administrator of the American governmental seaway agency, the Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corp.

The economic recession gripping the North American continent was not to blame for the seaway's troubles, according to Oberlin. The recession should not be felt on the seaway until next season, he said.

Instead, the seaway's bad year can be traced to a series of labor strikes that halted and slowed shipping throughout the season, as well as an accident that hampered traffic for two weeks on the Welland Canal, the American administrator said.

The labor disputes, which curtailed the 260-odd day shipping season for weeks at a time, were expected to result in a 23.8 per cent decline in cargo carried on the seaway after last season's record-setting 57.6 million tons, seaway officials said.

Revenues collected by the American seaway agency were forecast to drop $1.7-to $2.2 million from last season's record $7.7 million, Oberlin said.

The damaging strikes stretched from the seaway's Atlantic mouth to Lake Superior. The season opened with a seaway pilots' strike at the Atlantic entrance which prevented ocean-going vessels from entering the seaway.

Crew members of the Canadian Laker fleet struck during the seaway's peak months of August through October to further damage the seaway season.

And strikes by Canadian grain inspectors, Welland canal pilots and grain elevator workers in Duluth, Minn., added to the seaway's woes, Oberlin said.

In addition to the labor problems, a freighter rammed a bridge, jamming traffic on the Welland Canal for two weeks last summer, he said.

"It was one thing after another, all beyond our control," Oberlin said.

Corps wins financing for bridge

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate conferees have agreed to authorize additional financing to permit the Army Corps of Engineers to proceed with the Markland bridge project across the Ohio River.

The agreement came during a meeting to work out differences in federal highway-aid bills.

The Army engineers have authority under existing legislation to contract up to $3.7 million to erect the bridge over the dam, but the project was postponed by the corps because the amount was insufficient.

At the request of Kentucky Republican Rep. Gene Snyder, whose 4th District includes the bridge site, the House Public Works Committee provided an additional $2.5 million in contracting authority in the new legislation.

During the conference session Tuesday, the Senate members accepted the House position. The agreement virtually assures the corps that it can proceed with call for construction bids in early 1975.

The bridge, when completed, will provide the only Ohio River bridge crossing in the 55-mile stretch between Madison, Ind., and Cincinnati.

Screwdriver 'weapon' case killed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Engineer Henrich Gusek wants to clear his record after being charged with a felony, carrying a concealed weapon—a screwdriver.

The charge against Gusek of Valley Stream, N.Y., was dismissed Wednesday after the prosecution claimed a lack of evidence.

Gusek was arrested Dec. 6 for attempting to board an airliner at Port Columbus International Airport with the screwdriver in his pocket.

"I'd like to get the record cleared up, totally erased," said the 36-year-old Gusek.

Normally his arrest record would remain on file with local police. However, the municipal judge who heard his case said he would consider a motion to expunge the record.

Gusek was taken into custody by airport security officers after failing three times to pass a metal detector test.

Gusek contends he placed the screwdriver in his pocket while working on some equipment at a nearby plant and left it in his pocket as he was traveling.

Set Rhodes festivities

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio Republicans are planning a round of activities Jan. 13 in connection with the inauguration of Gov.-Elect James A. Rhodes.

Kent B. McGough, the state GOP chairman, said tentative plans call for a $50-per-person inaugural ball in the Lausche Building at the Ohio State Fairgrounds that night.

Rhodes, 65, is to be sworn into office at 11 a.m. on the west steps of the Statehouse, weather permitting. Otherwise, the ceremonies will be held in the Statehouse rotunda.

Later in the day, a reception is planned in the Neil House Hotel for Rhodes and Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, the only other Republican elected on the statewide ticket Nov. 5.

The Press Club of Ohio said it plans a $10-per-person reception for Rhodes in the downtown Ohio Theater in the afternoon.

Rapist sought in Cleveland area

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A man who sexually assaulted four women in four days after stopping their cars with policelike flashing red lights was the target of a police alert Wednesday, authorities said.

In incidents Saturday, Sunday and Tuesday, the man turned off the lights, entered the woman's car and forced himself on her, police said. He left with each woman's identification papers, threatening to kill her if she went to police.

Murder suspect takes witness stand

Powell admits shooting incident

WILMINGTON — A former Wilmington police officer admitted under oath Wednesday that he shot Randall B. Goldie, 22, of Martinsville, last April.

Dale Powell, 26, of Wilmington, said, "I saw Goldie in the car. He brought his hand to his right side as if he had a gun when he saw me. I fired in his direction from five or six feet." Powell also stated that he "did panic" and could not recall how many times he fired.

WHILE BEING questioned as to why he left the scene and failed to immediately report the circumstances to the department, Powell said "I still have this feeling that someone (in the police department) worked for the criminal element. I don't have the occasion to trust anybody in the department. I felt I wasn't going to get fair treatment from anybody connected with this."

Powell was arrested and charged with aggravated murder two days after Goldie was found dead in his car on the parking lot of Scottie's Restaurant, Wilmington. The Clinton County coroner testified the cause of death was repeated gunshot wounds to the face and head.

Earlier testimony had disclosed that Powell was planning to meet Goldie at the restaurant at 11 p.m. the night of the slaying. A fellow officer stated under oath that he took Powell, dressed in civilian clothes, to within a block of the restaurant shortly before 11 p.m. so that e could meet Goldie and possibly make an arrest for possession or sale of drugs.

The officer, Ursel Webb, also testified that he later returned and took Powell back to his (Powell's) home. Another officer testified that Powell returned to the restaurant less than an hour later and said "I don't know who shot him, but they didn't do it soon enough for me."

While on the stand Wednesday, Powell said he ran from the scene because he heard a noise behind him and was afraid that he had been set up to be slain by Goldie and others.

Clinton County Assistant Prosecuting Attorney James J. O'Grady attacked Powell's story during cross-examination.

"What was your intent when Goldie drove up?" O'Grady asked.

"My intent was to get him out of the car and frish him," Powell responded.

"By what authority?" asked the prosecutor, referring to the fact that Powell was wearing civilian clothing.

"I thought I had a case," Powell said.

"Did you say anything?" O'Grady questioned.

"No, there was no time," the defendant responded.

As if in summation O'Grady asked, "Then all Randy Goldie saw was a man in dark clothes approaching his car with a shotgun."

Although Powell gave no explanation for his distrust of other Wilmington police officers, he did explain his fear of being set up by Goldie.

He said that Judy Benlehr, an 18-year-old waitress at the restaurant, had approached him about a meeting with Goldie for a drug bust. Her only explanation for the generous offer was that she wanted to stop Goldie's influence on her brother who was allegedly being supplied with drugs by Goldie, the owner of a Wilmington novelty import shop.

Powell said she told him the meeting would have to take place almost immediately as Goldie was scheduled to leave town the next day. He, said he feared the meeting might have been arranged by Goldie himself as a means to kill him (Powell) because the office had been investigating Goldie's alleged activity in drug trafficing.

Although Powell said that when he fired the shotgun "There was no doubt in my mind that he had a firearm," officers investigating the slaying said they found no gun or drugs in the dead man's car.

AGENTS FROM the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, London, said that ballistics tests of the shotgun Powell had in his possession showed it to be the murder weapon. They also said that there was evidence that someone might have attempted to alter the markings left by the inside of the barrel. Powell denied having tampered with the gun.

Security has been tight throughout the trial, and Wednesday two young persons were taken into custody for the pendancy of the trial. Debbie Goldie, 16, and Jeff Goldie, 13, sister and brother of the slain shop owner, were taken into custody after they attacked Ms. Benlehr outside the courtroom. She had arranged the rendezvous of Goldie and Powell.

Final arguments by attorney for both sides were begun Thursday morning, and the jury of six men and six women are expected to begin deliberations this afternoon.

Forfeits bond

In only one non-traffic case heard Wednesday in Municipal Court, a Columbus man forfeited bond for failure to appear in court on a charge filed by state game protector, Jerry F. Cremeans.

Theodore A. Pegram, 29, forfeited $25 bond on a charge of hunting upland game at a time other than between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. during open season.

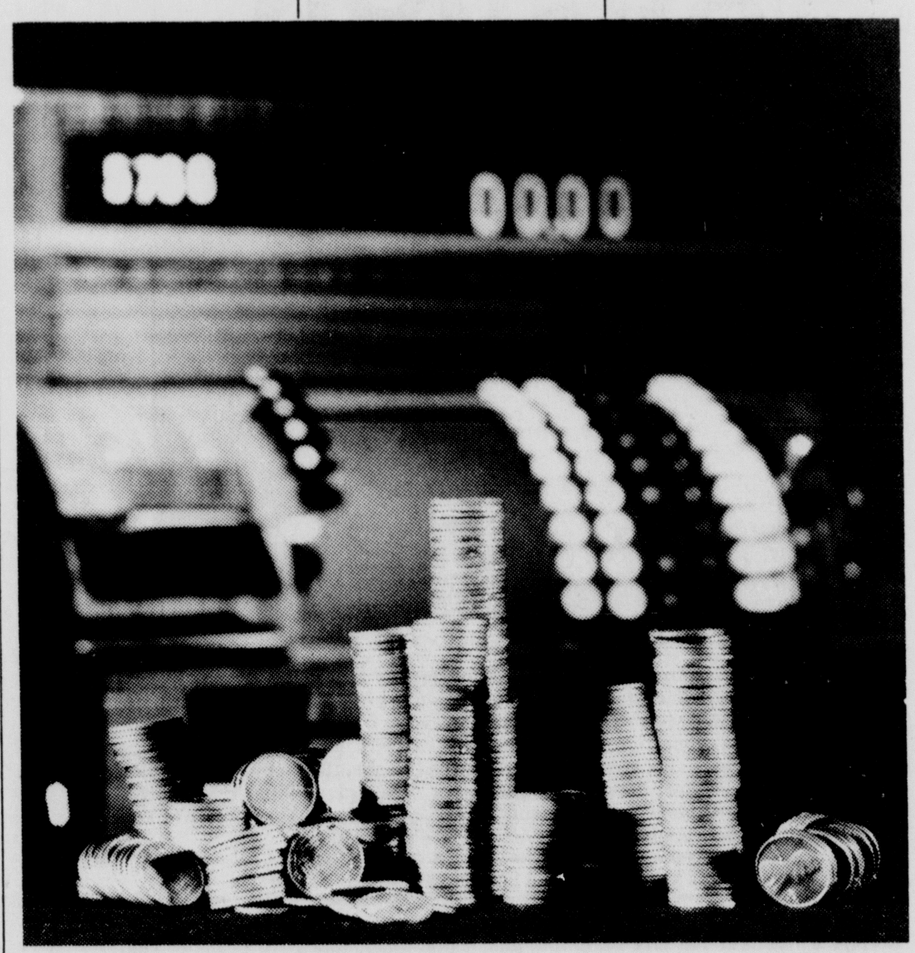
Wrong people get the 'red carpet'

LONDON (AP) — The British Airports Authority (a government agency) is worried that the wrong people are getting the red carpet treatment at London, Airport—at the taxpayers' expense.

It is investigating a case where one of the four VIP lounges was opened for the butler of a South American embassy who arrived with his ambassador's silver cutlerly. He got the full treatment, chauffeur-driven car from plane to lounge, preferential baggage handling and free refreshments.

Said a BAA official, "Sometimes, the people we are told to expect do not arrive, and others who do not really qualify come in their place. It could be embarrassing to point this out."



Every Penny Counts.

And when you put your cash on the counter, you may find things cost more than expected.

One reason is the price tag on shoplifting. Last year, shoplifting losses in Ohio totaled more than $488,000,000. Because stores are unable to absorb this entire loss, it costs your family $150 per year to pay for what shoplifters steal.

Half of all shoplifting occurs now, during the holiday season. How can you help? Simple. Just tell a store clerk if you see someone who may be shoplifting. You won't become involved.

Now more than ever we've got to make every penny count.

It's time to take shoplifting seriously.

Distillers deny use of grain heavy

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The distillery industry has disputed claims that lower consumption of alcoholic spirits would help solve world hunger problems.

Malcolm E. Harris, president of the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States, told a news conference Wednesday that a cutback in the liquor industry would produce a severe economic headache for the country.

Newsmen said suggestions that Americans should drink less so that more grain can be made available to needy countries has emotional appeal: "produce food, not liquor. Drink less and feed starving children."

He said the proposal has been made by Dr. Jean Mayer, Harvard University nutrition expert, and others.

"But this suggestion, in our opinion, is not the answer," Harris said. "It would just compound many of the economic problems we have in this country."

If distilleries were shut down, he said, nearly two million jobs worth $10 billion a year would be lost. He added that nearly all the 40 million bushels of grain used to make spirits is recycled back to farmers as livestock feed after distillers are through with it.

Harris said the amount of grain used by distillers represented only four-tenths of 1 per cent of the 1973 farm production of corn, wheat, and other grain.

The distilling industry recognized the problem of alcohol abuse and has recommended moderation, Harris said. "We're not urging people to drink, because we recognize that abstinence is an acceptible form of behavior — and that's a private, personal decision to make," he said.

Only coffee was served at the news conference.

Harris said there was no indication from industry figures that people are drinking more as a result of current unemployment and other economic problems.

"Some people say we're in a recession right now and our increase in sales is much lower than it was two or three years ago," Harris said.

Opening lead—queen of clubs.

Way back in the 30's a team known as the Four Horsemen, consisting of Willard Karn, Hal Sims, David Burnstine and Oswald Jacoby, dominated the world of bridge. For years they rode roughshod over all opposition, winning most of the important tournaments.

Karn, Sims and Burnstine have passed on to happier hunting grounds, but the memory of their exploits lingers on. Today's hand was played by Karn.

West led the queen of clubs, which held, and East won the continuation with the ten, cashed the ace and returned his last club. Karn ruffed with the jack as West discarded his second diamond in a row.

Karn played a spade to the queen and led a heart, winning with the queen. He now had the K-2 of trumps and guessed well to play the deuce and fell the ace.

East returned a spade to dummy's ace, on which South discarded a diamond, and Karn then made the key play of the jack of diamonds. East ducked and so did South, West contributing the ten to the trick. A heart to the king drew West's last trump and declarer's diamonds won the last three tricks.

When the play is analyzed, it is found that the deuce of hearts play, the spade finesse and the jack of diamonds lead were all absolutely essential. Furthermore, the timing also had to be perfect.

The spade had to be led at trick five so that trumps could be initiated from dummy, and the queen had to be finessed so that the South hand could not be ruffed down later on. Furthermore, the jack of diamonds had to be led to pin the queen and ten with one stroke.

No defense stops the contract. If West keeps his diamonds, South establishes the suit by ruffing one in dummy.

Stones in the Bladder

My brother and I have a tendency to develop stones in our bladders. What are the causes for this condition?

Mr. T. McF., Mich.

Dear Mr. McF..

I am sure that the thought has occurred to you that there may be some family tendency responsible. I doubt that there is any hereditary basis for this. Rather, I am inclined to believe that a dietary regime in the same household may, perhaps, predispose you both to the same problem.

Calcium and uric acid stones are frequently found in the urinary bladder Chronic infection and stagnation of urine may be responsible for the deposits of minerals and the formation of stones.

It is now possible, through a process known as "lithopaxy," to crush stones in the bladder. This is performed through a cystoscope introduced directly into the bladder.

Intensive study of the chemicals in the blood, in addition to X-ray studies of the kidneys, may reveal the underlying reason for stones in the bladder.

Preventive treatment can then be started to prevent the frequency and the severity of attacks.

* * *

Is it possible to eliminate wrinkles around the eyes with chemicals?

Mrs. E.C.P., Tenn

Dear Mrs. P.:

The use of harsh chemicals for this purpose has long been abandoned. And a good thing, too. Phenol, a harmful burning chemical, was formerly used by cosmeticians to "peel off" outer layers of skin.

Medical societies and Public Health officials have found legal means to restrain the use of this dangerous procedure.

Irreparable harm has been done to many people with this technique for "rejuvenation."

Extensive wrinkling of the skin can best be benefited by plastic surgery.

INJURY RESULTED — The driver of the car at left ran a red light at Clinton and Oakland avenues and struck the car at right which in turn rammed the home of Glenn Pettit, 731 Clinton Ave. Mrs. Lutricia Newton, 34, Jamison Rd., was injured during her collision with the porch and was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital where she was treated for a fractured collarbone and lacerations of the face. Dennest K. Thompson, 21, of Wilmington, was cited for failing to stop at a red light. The accident occurred shortly after 10 a.m. Thursday.

Two hurt in rural collision

Two persons were injured in a pickup truck-semi rig collision at 11:15 a.m. Wednesday, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Ohio 207 and Deer Creek Park Road No. 9, when a pickup truck driven by Thomas E. Adams, 52, Mechanicsburg, pulled in front of an oncoming semi driven by Lee McComas, 59, Delaware.

After the initial collision, the semi cab and trailer owned by General Casting Co., Delaware, jack-knifed in the roadside ditch, tieing up traffic on Ohio 207 for approximately one hour.

The semi driver, McComas, was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital by ambulance, where he was treated and released for upper leg injuries.

Adams' passenger, Ralph W. Garrison, 62, Rt. 1, who was riding in back of the pickup truck also claimed injury, but declined treatment. He suffered leg bruises.

Sheriff's deputies estimated severe damage to both vehicles and charged Adams with failure to yield right of way.

Washington C.H. police reported a minor mishap in the entrance driveway of the municipal parking lot on S. Fayette Street at 5:38 p.m. Wednesday.

The accident involved cars driven by Betty L. Penwell, 34, of 742 Washington Ave., and Helen L. Wagoner, 45, of Bainbridge. Neither driver was injured or cited for traffic violation.

Suicide attempt probed by police

A 19-year-old Washington C. H. man was treated and released at Fayette Memorial Hospital at 12:40 a.m. Thursday, after an apparent suicide attempt.

Washington C. H. police stated the man took valium tranquilizers because of despondency over personal problems.

Woman fined for false info

The natural gas pinch

Domestic and non-domestic customers brace for harsh effects of shortage

BY SANDY FOSSON
Record-Herald Staff Writer

During the last five years the natural gas reserves from the supplies of the Dayton Power and Light Co. have declined from 289 trillion cubic feet to less than 218 trillion cubic feet.

To the average person, that doesn't make much sense, but to the industrial and commercial customers of the Dayton Power and Light Co., the effects are all too clear.

IN OCTOBER, DP&L was forced to request all commercial and industrial customers to curtail their natural gas usage 14 per cent due to the shortage. In November, they were again informed to reduce their consumption to 18.5 per cent.

If this was not enough, Jerry Morgan, public relations director for the Dayton Power and Light Co., stated that industrial and commercial customers will again be notified this week they must now reduce their natural gas consumption 22 per cent beginning Dec. 25.

Morgan, who said the DP&L is acting under orders from its principal supplier, Columbia Gas Transmission Corp., Charleston, W. Va., said the reason behind the large deficiency of natural gas was the low price of natural gas at the well-head.

"The federal government regulates the price of natural gas at the well-head. The government has held that price very low and thus, has not encouraged any further exploration for natural gas.

"The reason it happened so fast," he continued, "is that the price of oil started rising with the oil embargo last winter while the price of natural gas remained the same, causing more demands for natural gas."

Even though the Federal Power Commission has just recently allowed the price at the well-head to increase from 42 cents to 50 cents per 100 cubic feet, it will take between three and five years to balance out the demand with the supply of natural gas.

"Our supplier has already told us that through 1978 our allocations will be lowered each year depending on the severity of the previous winter," Morgan said.

"This winter has been colder than usual and has resulted in enforcing more curtailments in consumption of gas," he added.

Many commercial and industrial users feel they are being singled out and forced to carry the burden of the natural gas shortage rather than residential users.

Being forced to restrict their consumption to 78 per cent of their 1972 usage is not an easy task, especially for drycleaning businesses and large factories.

Robert Fulwider, of the Armco Steel Corp. maintenance office here, said that although the natural gas used at the steel plant is mostly for heating purposes and would not impair the manufacturing, the plant may be forced to close down if the shortage gets bad enough.

He said that being cut to 80 per cent of its 1972 usage has caused the plant to turn off some of the heaters and alternate to other heaters.

"AT PRESENT, we think we can cut down our usage to 80 per cent of the 1972 level without impairing manufacturing," Fulwider said. "We have no other choice but to comply."

But DP&L does not determine which customers are the domestic and non-domestic users. The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio sets the priorities of what customers must receive the most gas consumption.

The present DP&L ratio of gas consumption is 51 per cent by industrial and commercial users and 49 per cent from residential customers. The PUCO has stated the domestic and residential users where human welfare is involved are at the top of the priority list and those users who utilize natural gas to make hard goods are the lowest and therefore, must shoulder the burdens of curtailment.

Even the commercial and industrial customers are broken into domestic and non-domestic users. For the DP&L, 5,000 of these customers are classified as domestic users, including apartments, hotels, bakeries and other places where human welfare is involved.

The remaining 16,000 are termed non-domestic customers and include all commercial, industrial and governmental customers.

According to Morgan, DP&L is now conducting monthly checks on the consumption by the commercial and industrial users. If a company is above its prescribed allocations, it is contacted by letter and must give the DP&L concrete proposals being planned to curtail its usage; should the next month's check also reveal the company is over its allocation, DP&L will be forced to shut off the natural gas supply.

Rocky takes oath today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller is headed for final congressional confirmation and then a televised inauguration today as the nation's 41st vice president.

The House set aside six hours of debate but was not expected to take that much time before voting on Rockefeller's confirmation.

The inauguration was scheduled an hour later in the Senate chamber, with live television coverage permitted for the first time in the Senate's history.

Rockefeller was to be sworn in by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger. House members, senators, Cabinet members and Supreme Court justices were to be in attendance.

With Rockefeller's swearingin, the nation for the first time will be under the leadership of both a president and vice president not elected by the voters.

Speaker Carl Albert said there was no doubt that the 435-member House would vote to confirm Rockefeller, although no official nose count had been taken.

President Ford predicted two weeks ago that would be overwhelming, although there might be as many as 100 House votes against Rockefeller. House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. has predicted 120 against.

Rockefeller planned to fly to Washington early in the afternoon with a party of officials including New York Gov. Malcolm Wilson and New York City Mayor Abraham Beame and their wives.

He planned to spend most of the afternoon at his Washington home and then go to the White House to ride with Ford to the Capitol for the inauguration ceremonies.

Rockefeller was to attend a reception tonight for the White House press corps.

The former New York governor's confirmation was cleared Wednesday by the House Rules Committee for final action over last-minute appeals by three House members to delay it until the new Congress convenes in January.

Liberal Democratic Reps. Bella S. Abzug and Elizabeth Holtzman of New York and Jerome R. Waldie of California contended that if Rockefeller is not to be elected by the voters, he should be approved by congressmen most recently elected by them.

The three also contended more investigation is needed of potential conflicts of interest from Rockefeller's wealth, and to determine if his gifts and loans to public officials violated New York law.

Reps. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio and John H. Rousselot of California, conservative Republicans, also urged more investigation.

The Senate already has approved the nomination. The House Judiciary Committee recommended confirmation 26-12 after nine days of hearings, focusing primarily on the conflict-of-interest question.

THE FAMILY REUNITED—Heidi, a black Labrador Retriever, which Luetta Brown raised from a puppy for Pilot Dogs, Inc., in Columbus, is once again at home with the Brown family on Albin Avenue. Heidi was returned home last week when Pilot Dogs informed the Browns she had failed the program due to fearful reactions upon meeting her blind master. Lu's identical twin sister, Joetta, posed with Heidi at the left, will work with her as her 4-H club project this year. Lu, who worked with Heidi last year for 4-H, will work this year with the family Keeshond (pictured with her at the right), named "Kola."

Heidi returns

By MARK THELLMANN

The telephone call from Pilot Dogs Inc., brought tears of joy, along with disappointment to the Brown family on Albin Avenue last Wednesday.

Sarah Brown, mother of Luetta and Joetta Brown, waited until after dinner that evening before she broke the news to the identical twins. "Heidi didn't make it. We can pick her up in Columbus tomorrow."

Lu said she really wanted her back. She had received the black Labrador Retriever from Pilot Dogs in early October of last year after applying and deciding to make the dog her 4-H club project; understanding full well that after Heidi's obedience training, which Lu provided, she and the dog would have to part.

"I cried with joy when mom told me," Lu admitted, "but after thinking about all the money and time which had been invested in Heidi so she could become someone's eyes, I was really disappointed in her."

No one really knows what happened. Heidi completed her intensive training at Pilot Dogs over the last couple months and was then introduced to her blind master.

"The people at Pilot Dogs told me her master took her into a store and she started acting very frightened," Sarah Brown explained, "and that did the trick - she was expelled from the program."

Unfortunately, Heidi had no comment, but she seemed pleased to be home again with the people who raised her and loved her as pup.

Jo is planning on working with her this year for 4-H and Lu will work with the family's Keeshond named "Kola."

About 75 county residents attend

Drainage problems of U.S. 35 project eyed at public meeting

Approximately 75 Fayette County residents attended a public hearing Wednesday and expressed their concerns over the proposed improvement of U.S. 35 across Fayette County, which is to be constructed at an estimated $28,456,000.

One major question voiced by the audience was over the problems of drainage and concern that the highway construction from the western end of the Frankfort bypass in Ross County through Fayette County to the Greene County line would disturb existing farm drainage tile systems.

SEVERAL FARMERS related unpleasant experiences from the construction of the Interstate 71 freeway with some drainage effects still showing up.

Fayette County engineer Charles P. Wagner and four representatives of the local engineering office explained some of the drainage problems encountered during the I-71 project.

Richard Keiser, of the county engineer's office, cited various instances in the interstate highway construction where the drainage system problems could have been avoided and expressed his desire for closer cooperation between the U.S. 35 project engineers and contractors with the county engineer's office in studying drainage systems.

Wayne Kauble, of the Ohio Department of Transportation, assured those attending that if the department could receive the cooperation of local officials and farmers who knew where the drainage systems were, the department engineers would restore the systems to their former conditions.

The first of several public hearings to be held on the proposed route and various planning aspects of U.S. 35 through Fayette County was well received by the public, according to J. Herbert Perrill, chairman of the Fayette County Commissioners and Fayette County Action Plan group.

The two-hour hearing was the culmination of a two-day session at the Mahan Building on the Fayette County Fairgrounds in which over 100 persons attended afternoon sessions to view charts, engineering drawings and speak with officials from the Ohio Department of Transportation over the proposed highway construction.

Although transportation officials stated the project would take a minimum of four years to complete plans for construction, it could be set back another four to five years due to a questionable section in the Greene County portion of the proposed route.

Members of the Greene County Historical Society just recently expressed opposition to a section of the project in that county due to a covered bridge situated in the proposed routing, said Bernard Hurst Jr., deputy director of the Ohio Department of Transportation.

He said should the bridge and area be declared an historical site, the project could be set back another four to five years for rerouting.

The engineering project of the total U.S. 35 route is divided into three parts through Fayette County: extending from the Greene County line to Harmony Road; from Harmony Road to the present U.S. 35 bypass at Palmer Road; and from the eastern end of the bypass to the Ross County line. These three portions of the project were outlined by engineers: William Young of Eriksson Associates, H.H. Bohm of Rackoff Associates, and W.K. Wallace, representing Berger Associates.

The overall proposed route is expected to be completed at an estimated cost of $28,456,000 with $3,400,000 expended on the Greene County section.

The proposed U.S. 35 will be a four-lane divided highway with a 60 foot median strip and an overall width of 300 feet. The total length of the highway is to be 32.04 miles, including 2.56 miles in Greene County. It is expected to increase the traffic capability almost two-fold, according to calculations made by the transportation department.

Officials explained that roads being affected by the proposed route in Fayette County would be Pleasant View Road, which will go over the new highway according to present plans; West Lancaster Road, also to go over the new road; Interstate 71, where the proposed U.S. 35 will be located ½ mile north of the interchange with direct access to the I-71 highway; Ohio 729, proposed to go over the new road; Milledgeville-Octa Road, which plans have not yet been completed but is not expected to be closed off; Fichthorn Road, also not yet planned and not expected to be closed off; Harmony Road, proposed to go over the new road; Ford Road, to go under the proposed route; Bush Road, to go over; Palmer Road, to be under the new road; Old Chillicothe Road, to be shut off; Bogus Road, to go under the new road; Camp Grove Road, to be shut off; Cisco Road, to go over the new road; Mills Road, to be shut off; and Fairview Road, to go over the proposed U.S. 35.

Several streams would also be affected with riverways to be bridged and one railroad in the proposed course of the highway to be located under the new U.S. 35.

Other concerns expressed on the proposed highway were over the planned closing of the Old Chillicothe Road. One farmer explained that it would be difficult to reach a portion of his farm on the north side of his property and continue his farming operations if the new route shut off the Old Chillicothe Road.

Another remark over the school bus route on Old Chillicothe Road was answered by stating it could easily be rerouted.

SEVERAL OFFICIALS of the Miami Trace School District, being represented by transportation coordinator Cecil Coates, pointed out their concerns over the intersection of Fichthorn and Milledgeville-Octa Road that neither should be closed with the proposed U.S. 35 project. The Ohio Department of Transportation officials assured school officials that the major access route from Milledgeville to the new high school would remain open.

Perrill said the Wednesday hearing was only one of several public hearings to be held by the Ohio Department of Transportation in making a final

Grandma wins $300,000

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP)— Jacqualyne C. Hall, a Dayton grandmother, won the $300,000 grand prize in the Ohio lottery's Buckeye 300 drawing today and said she would use part of the money in helping the needy.

She actually was $300,000.01 richer after the draw. Someone in the crowd found a penny on the ground and gave it to her just before the drawing was made.

"This is my lucky penny," she said.

Mrs. Hall, who has two children and two grandchildren, has been helping needy people on a regular basis most of her life.

The $60,000 second prize went to Carl D. Augustine of Malta and $30,000 went to Merritt Q. Colton of Union.

The other five contestants in the draw each won $15,000. They were Sally I. Antral, Barberton; James J. Schroeder, Lima; Gerald E. Roth, Defiance; Ralph M. Nicastro, Warren, and Ralph E. Gang, Salem.

The lottery's weekly winning single number selected today was 429 and the winning double number was 008 345.

Economic distress signals fly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economy has turned in another set of distressing signals as more Americans are going to lose their jobs, paychecks shrunk and the balance of payments deteriorated.

The gloomy economic indicators Wednesday were led by an announcement that the government was hit with the second largest deficit ever in the U.S. balance of payments in the third quarter, largely as a result of the high cost of foreign oil. The deficit of $3.6 billion compared with $2.5 billion for the second quarter and an all-time high of $3.9 billion in the first quarter of 1972.

In the midst of the new woes, President Ford appealed to steel producers not to boost prices as high as the 8 per cent hike announced by the industry leader, U.S. Steel. Acting under Ford's order, the Council on Wage and Price Stability has asked U.S. Steel to justify its price increase.

Some industry leaders say U.S. Steel may be forced to roll back at least some of its increase in light of the White House pressure.

Meanwhile, the government reported that 693,000 persons began filing new claims for unemployment insurance benefits during the first week of December. The claims, representing an increase of 169,500 over the previous week, were in addition to the 2,982,600 persons who already were receiving jobless benefits during the last week in November.

With more persons out of work, overall personal income declined two-tenths of one per cent during November, or $2.2 billion at an annual rate, according to the Commerce Department. That compared with an increase of six-tenths of one per cent, or $7 billion, the previous month.

The Commerce Department also said that industrial payrolls fell 2.5 per cent last month, representing a $7 billion drop at an annual rate. The falloff was blamed on the coal strike and job layoffs in auto and other industries.

By the end of January about one-fourth of the blue-collar work force of the biggest automaker, General Motors, will be let go indefinitely. GM announced 6,000 more layoffs Wednesday, which will put 91,-000 of its employes out of work by the end of January.

The number of hourly auto workers now set for indefinite layoff throughout the industry in January is at least 141,000. Their troubles are compounded by rapidly shrinking unemployment funds that will leave thousands of jobless workers with fewer benefits than expected.

The government's latest estimate of U.S. unemployment is for 7.5 per cent next year. But a group of Western economists predicted Wednesday that U.S. unemployment will hit 8 per cent by the end of the 1975 as part of a pattern of economic stagnation for most countries in the non-Communist world.

In another development, negotiators for striking coal construction workers and the industry reached tentative agreement on a new contract, which later was approved by a union bargaining council. The agreement now faces a vote by rank-and-file workers Saturday, a union official said. Results may be known as early as Sunday night.

Picketing by the 4,500 constructions workers, members of the United Mine Workers, has kept nearly half the nation's soft-coal miners away from their jobs.

George Winkle, manager of the Dayton Power and Light Co., office in Washington C. H., said that some commercial and industrial customers in the Washington C. H. area have already received notification they are over their allocations.

However, he could not give an exact number of these customers, which includes churches, schools and the commercial and industrial customers.

"It is difficult to say how many were over their allocations with letters going out from several departments to customers in a 6,000-square mile area," Winkle said.

"Now, we are encouraging everyone to conserve. If the home owners use less natural gas, it means that much more for industries. When you're talking about shutting down a plant for using too much gas, you're talking about taking away jobs," Morgan said.

He added that home owners can not reduce their natural gas consumption by turning off extra lights but by turning down the thermostats in their homes.

"It is very difficult for people to understand there seems to be an adequate supply of gas and electricity but a great shortage of natural gas. It is even more complex to comprehend that the same company (DP&L) has an adequate supply of coal to produce electricity for this winter and yet not enough natural gas," Morgan said.

"All sources of energy are controlled differently and these controls and the supplies of the sources must determine the price," he continued.

Morgan said he knows the natural gas shortage is real and not contrived and the only recourse can be made by using alternate sources of fuel and energy.

Not only must the price of natural gas at the well-head be raised to compete with other fuels but newer sources of energy will also be required so there will not be a great demand for one single source, he said.

The DP&L is now in the process of constructing a nuclear energy plant on the Ohio River, 35 miles southeast of Cincinnati in Moscow.

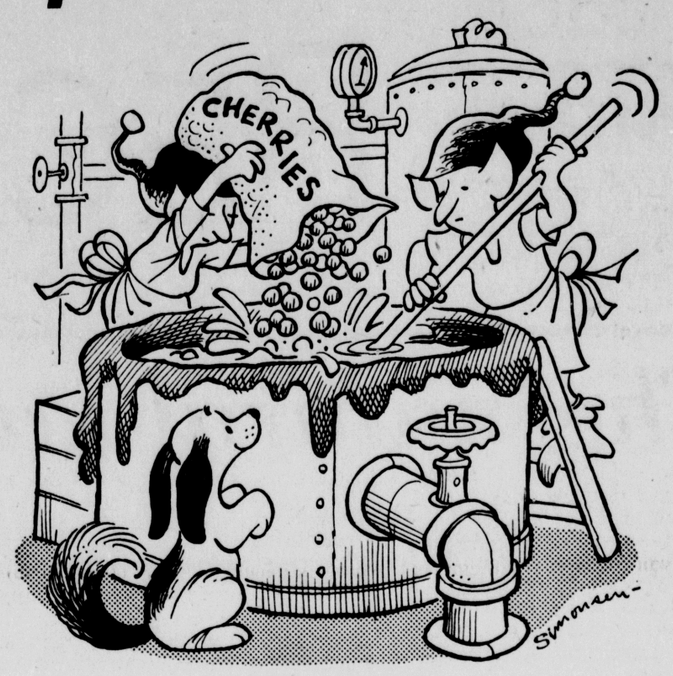
MORGAN BELIEVES there is a very bright future for nuclear power. "Nuclear power now supplies six per cent of electrical power in the United States — it is projected to supply over 50 per cent by the year 2000," Morgan said.

He noted other sources of energy were also being experimented to provide a supplemental energy system, such as by solar energy, geothermal energy (tapping geysers in the western U.S. and using the steam stored in the earth to operate power plants), wind power, hydropower, and a few exotic methods of "harnessing tidal waves" and bettering storage batteries.

But these are all in the future and this winter, domestic and non-domestic users alike of natural gas will be feeling the harsh effects of the gas shortage in the present.

Santa's problem pup

CHAPTER 9
By Bob Boyle



Peako started to beg.

Santa put Peako on the floor and said, "Come on, Peako, you can come with me this morning as I make my rounds. I don't believe you ever have been around the North Pole."

The elves wiped their mouths with the napkins, placed the napkins on their plates, and then marched out singing "Santa Claus is Coming to Town."

Mrs. Claus laughed and said to Santa, "They're certainly happy now that Peako will stay with us."

"I know," Santa said. "But when we give Peako away to some good boy or girl on Christmas Eve they'll be sad. I think Miss Kay Nihn is right. It's not good to get too attached to a dog that you will have to give away."

He turned to Peako and said, "Come on, pup, let's start our rounds."

Santa opened the huge heavy door and Peako ran out ahead of him. He jumped into a snowbank and worked his way up.

Santa laughed. "Peako, you have a big snowball on your head."

He reached down and gave the dog a loving pat.

Peako raced to a chocolate brown building.

Peako ran to the door and started to lick it.

"Peako, that isn't candy," Santa said. "It just looks like candy. Come on inside."

Santa opened the door and Peako followed him in.

Inside vats of rich, creamy chocolate were cooking. Orange, cherry, lemon, apple and banana trees were growing along side the vats. Nearby were strawberry and raspberry plants.

"These elves are making candy," Santa said to Peako.

The dog ran toward one of the elves.

"What do you want, Peako," the elf Jandy said.

Peako started to beg. He sat up and licked his lips.

"I think you want a piece of my candy," the elf said as he picked up a strawberry cream cluster.

Peako gobbled it up.

He then ran to the cherry man and gobbled up another piece. And then to the banana mixer where he had a chocolate chip banana drop, and then to the pineapple pincher where he chewed on a chewy pineapple carmel.

"If Miss Kay Ninh knew we were giving Peako candy, she would hit the roof," Jandy said.

"Come on, Peako," Santa said. "We better leave the candy factory. It's too much temptation for you here."

"Let's visit the superscopes room now," Santa said.

They walked over to a huge building with a round dome. Inside the elves kept a watch for good boys and girls. In a big book they wrote the names of the children who weren't behaving.

Peako looked into the superscope.

He saw a little girl playing with a worn out doll.

"Would you like to live with her?" Santa asked.

Peako turned up his nose.

Peako looked again as the elf switched the channel to "boys."

A rough little boy was pulling his sister's hair.

"That's Billy," Santa said. "He wants a puppy, but I believe he would be too rough. Look at the way he pulls his sister's pigtails."

Turning to an elf he said, "Did you write that down?"

The elf said, "I sure did, Santa. I hope that little Billy begins to behave or his Christmas list will be quite small."

"We've seen enough here," Santa said to Peako. "Let's go over to the Christmas ball factory and see Juniperperper.

Santa pushed open the door of the Christmas ball factory.

Inside balls of all descriptions and colors were greeting them.

Peako ran to Juniperperper and started to beg.

"What's he want?" Juniperperper asked Santa.

"I think he believes the Christmas balls are candy," Santa laughed.

Peako went from table to table looking at the Christmas balls. Finally his nose told him they weren't meant to eat so he went to the front door.

"He wants to go," Santa said to Juniperperper. "I guess he is a little disappointed because those Christmas balls do look good enough to eat."

Santa went to the door, turned and said, "You're doing a good job, Juniperperper."

"Thanks, Santa," the elf replied.

Santa and Peako started toward the ski lift and toy factory.

They were walking along when Peako stopped, sniffed and started to growl.

"What's that," Santa said. "What could that be?"

Steel price rollback seen

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Many steel industry leaders say privately that they feel U.S. Steel Corp., in the face of White House anger, may have to roll back at least some of its newly announced price hikes.

And one insider said President Ford's angry reaction staved off — at least for the moment — similar price hikes planned by several other major producers, including No. 3 National, No. 6 Jones & Laughlin and No. 7 Inland Steel.

So far, only 13th-ranked CF&I Steel Corp. of Pueblo, Colo., has followed top-ranked U.S. Steel in raising prices.

"It's a bad time for price increases," one source said. "The market is softening, and I just thought U.S. Steel's new prices were out of line."

Another source said, "I would expect some time in the next few days that U.S. Steel will reconsider at least some of its new prices and withdraw them."

No top steel company executive would speak for attribution, although many agreed to talk after being assured they would not be identified.

The price hikes average about 8 per cent over two-thirds of U.S. Steel's line, and Board Chairman E.B. Speer said Monday that "the largest portion of the increases represents a catchup of U.S. Steel's prices with those already being charged in the market."

But a comparison by The Associated Press shows the new prices have vaulted U.S. Steel past its major competitors on most lines.

U.S. Steel said Wednesday it would respond by letter on Friday to the President's request for justification for the price increases.

A spokesman insisted increases were "fully justified," but other industry leaders disagreed.

"From a public point of view, I don't think they can make it stand up, and I don't think they'll be able to convince the President they needed it now," said one.

Another steel executive explained that the steel industry generally plays "follow-the-leader" in announcing price increases.

"You move and then you wait to see who follows," he said. "I think U.S. Steel is going to find its limb a lonely one this time."

decision in the routing of the U.S. 35 highway. All comments, suggestions and oppositions to the projects have been taped at the public hearings to be studied by the department in deriving a conclusion.

Perrill added he was very pleased with the active participation expressed by Fayette County residents at the hearing and said he felt the transportation officials were "extremely cooperative and genuinely concerned how the people feel about the project."

Watergate trial ending

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate cover-up trial is about to hear final arguments from opposing lawyers, the last step before the historic case goes to the jury.

Chief Prosecutor James F. Neal was scheduled to lead off with a summation expected to take at least three hours.

But first, defense attorneys planned today to question Kenneth W. Parkinson, the last of the five defendants to testify. Then the trial will hear brief testimony from six character witnesses for Parkinson and two rebuttal witnesses for the prosecution.

Parkinson, former White House aides H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, exAtty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former assistant Atty. Gen. Robert C. Mardian are charged with conspiring to obstruct the investigation of the Watergate break-in.

Parkinson testified Wednesday that officials of Richard M. Nixon's re-election committee, particularly Mardian and Mitchell, didn't tell him all they knew about the Watergate break-in.

"I did not have facts. I didn't know certain things, all I had was third-or fourth-hand information, much of which was hearsay," Parkinson testified under cross examination by Assistant Special Prosecutor Jill Wine Volner.

Parkinson said that Jeb Stuart Magruder, deputy director of the Nixon campaign committee, told him on July 13, 1972, less than a month after the break-in, that he was involved, along with Mitchell, Haldeman and White House aides John W. Dean III and Gordon C. Strachan.

But Mitchell and others later told him Magruder's story was untrue, Parkinson said.

At the time, Parkinson, a Washington lawyer who said he'd never been involved in politics, was representing the Nixon re-election committee in civil suits stemming from the break-in.

Snow spread across Ohio Wednesday night, but was expected to end today as quickly as it began. A low pressure center moving out of the southwest touched off the snow.

The low center formed in Oklahoma Wednesday, and by dawn it was in southwest Michigan and was weakening. Cooler, drier air was drawn eastward in the wake of the low, and the drier air had begun to end the precipitation this morning. All significant snow was expected to end by early this afternoon.

But another storm was expected to develop in Oklahoma or northern Texas today.

6 Ohio cities eyed for test of water supply

WASHINGTON (AP)—Six Ohio cities are among 80 selected by the U.S Environmental Protection Agency for tests aimed at learning the organic chemical content of their public drinking water supplies.

The EPA said Wednesday that tests will be conducted in detail in 10 cities but only for certain chemicals in the others, including those in Ohio.

The tests were prompted by recent discoveries of chemicals in the water supplies of Cincinnati and New Orleans that are suspected of causing cancer, said EPA Administrator Russell Train.

The Ohio cities are Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton, Indian Hill, Piqua and Youngstown (Mahoning Valley Sanitary District).

Mass slaying suspect dies in shootout

DOUGLASVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Paul John Knowles, charged with seven murders in three states, was shot to death when authorities said he grabbed a gun and tried to escape from a police car. His lawyers claim he was executed.

Authorities said the 28-year-old Florida native was killed Wednesday as he drove with two officers to show them where he had disposed of a gun allegedly used to murder a Florida state trooper.

Douglas County Sheriff Earl D. Lee said he and Ron Angel, an inspector for the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, were escorting Knowles when their prisoner got free from his handcuffs. Authorities later said he had picked the lock, possibly with a paper clip.

Knowles reached over the seat and "jerked my sidearm from the holster," Lee said. He said he grabbed Knowles' hand and the gun went off. As the car swerved off the highway, several more shots were fired "which resulted in the death of Paul John Knowles." Lee did not say who fired the fatal shots.

Knowles' two Miami lawyers rejected the official explanation and headed for Atlanta today to discuss the incident with authorities.

"The least they could have done was to wait until he was convicted to execute him," said attorney Ellis Rubin.

"I can't believe he attempted to escape," said attorney Sheldon Yavitz. "He didn't want to die. Where would he go with chains on?"

Knowles, arrested Nov. 17 in rural Georgia, had been charged in Georgia with killing a Florida state trooper and a Delaware businessman, a Milledgeville, Ga., man and his teen-aged daughter; a Lima, Ohio, accountant in that state; and women in Jacksonville Beach and Atlantic Beach, Fla.

In addition, Connecticut authorities said Wednesday they had been preparing to charge Knowles with the Oct. 15 strangulation deaths of Mrs. Karen Wine of Marlborough and her 16-year-old daughter, Dawn.

Stock list takes dip

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined slightly today, wavering inconclusively in a pattern it has followed most of the past several weeks.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 1.41 at 602.08, and declines outstripped advances by about 3-2 in quiet trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said a good many investors had settled back to wait until after the holidays for indications of what steps the government might take to counteract the recession.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index slipped .05 to 60.16.

Market watchers said what activity there was mainly represented tax-selling and portfolio adjustments by investing institutions with the end of the year approaching.

Six of the cabinet members had served on Rhodes' cabinet when he served as governor from 1963-1971.

Richard L. Krabach of Lima, who was Rhodes' first finance director and is a former Cincinnati city manager, was named director of administrative services.

John M. Stackhouse, 45, of Wakeman, director of agriculture under Rhodes from 1963 to 1971, will again head the Agriculture Department.

Howard L. Collier, 41, of Toledo, former budget director and finance director under Rhodes and now vice president of the Medical College of Ohio at Toledo, will serve as director of budget and management.

Gordon Peltier, 57, of Columbus commerce director under Rhodes from 1963 to 1971 and a key Rhodes' campaign aide this year, will head the Commerce Department.

Donald D. Cook, 60, of Bexley, former director of liquor control and now an industrial security consultant, will be director of highway safety.

Denver L. White, 62, of Athens, former welfare director, and from 1970 until last Jan. 31 administrator of the Ohio Rehabilitation Services Commission, will again head the Department of Public Welfare.

Three of Rhodes' major aides who served during his last administration will return in similar capacities.

Roy A. Martin of Portsmouth will serve as executive assistant along with John M. McElroy of Columbus while Miss Emma Scholz of Columbus will be an administrative assistant.

Martin, 59, served as Rhodes' 1974 campaign manager and was an assistant to U.S. Sen. William B. Saxbe.

McElroy, 65, an attorney, was associated with the firm of Topper, Alloway, Goodman, DeLeone and Duffey of Columbus since 1971.

Miss Scholz has been with Rhodes' industrial development firm, James Rhodes & Associates since 1971.

Chan Cochran, a 32-year-old reporter covering state government for the Columbus Dispatch for the past five years, will serve as an administrative assistant. He formerly worked for the Yougnstown Vindicator.

Other appointments announced were:

James A. Duerk, 44, communications consultant for the Rhodes campaign and former aide to Saxbe in Washington, will direct the Department of Economic and Community Development.

Duerk served as press secretary to Rhodes from 1969 to 1971. He is also a former public relations director for Republican state headquarters.

Helen W. Evans, 69, of Marysville, who was deputy director of industrial relations in the previous Rhodes administration, will serve as director of the department. Mrs. Evans has served as executive secretary of the Ohio Republican Council since 1952.

Harry Jump, 59, of Willard, clerk of the Ohio Senate since 1971, will direct the Department of Insurance. He served as deputy insurance director under Rhodes during the last Republican administration.

Jump previously served five terms in the Ohio House of Representatives and a term in the Ohio Senate.

Clifford E. Reich, 54, of Westerville, director of research and development for the American Automobile Association in Columbus, will head the Department of Liquor Control.

He is a former assistant superintendent and chief of staff of the Ohio Highway Patrol in which he served from 1941 to 1973.

Opinion And Comment

Aiken will be missed

Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont is a man who will be missed. The aged solon's departure after 34 years in the Senate occasions sadness.

Characteristically, Senator Aiken offered interesting reflections and some good advice in his farewell speech. We find ourselves somewhat consoled by his remark that the problems the nation faces today "are not new but are far more expansive than ever before." The happy implication is that the problems can be dealt with if only we attack them sensibly.

Congress must be the spearhead. It can be a good one if it acts on Aiken's counsel: don't try to recover authority from the executive branch unless you're willing to assume the responsibility that goes with it.

A WORD EDGEWISE. . .By John P. Roche

Missile superiority strategy

The more we learn about that great Vladivostok "breakthrough," the more it sounds as though President Ford got tackled behind his own goal line. However, one of the problems is: What precisely did he sign? Apparently the Soviets were to prepare a memorandum, but then some snags developed over the exact wording of certain sections which — government spokesmen said — did not "deal with matters of great consequence." These snags required a supplemental aide-memoire (a sort of clarifying footnote). Press Secretary Ron Nessen allowed as how the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. had agreed to the wording of the aide-memoire (which was supposed to clarify the wording of the memorandum), but later a White House official said "The language of the aide-memoire is still under discussion." Next perhaps there will be a mini-aide-memoire to clarify the aide-memoire to clarify the. . . well, let's drop it.

To drop the drunken fire drill that concerns the language is not, however, to pass over the substance of the "breakthrough." Although the complexifiers are busy trying to make the issue seem impenetrable and attacking critics for their frivolity in disputing how many warheads can sit on the head of a missile, a commonsense reading of the terms makes it clear that either (1) we had better launch a crash program in strategic weapons systems, or (2) genially permit the Soviets to gain preponderant strategic power. Each side is permitted to have 1,320 missiles with multiple warheads, but no reference was made to the crucial matter of throw-weight. To use an oversimple analogy, but one that is nonetheless accurate: "Strategic parity" under these ground rules could amount to the U.S. having 1,320 BB guns and the U.S.S.R. 1,320 hunting rifles.

This vital difference is a consequence of the different ways that we and the Soviets have developed our nuclear arsenals. Unrealistically assuming that we would hold a monopoly of MIRV technology for some time to come, we have never gone in for the huge missiles the Soviets have specialized in. We assumed that our qualitative lead would compensate for their quantitative advantage in throw-weight. This was the underlying premise of the SALT I agreement, a premise which a number of us, led by Senator Henry Jackson, treated with great skepticism at the time.

A missile that is MIRVed is capable of carrying a number of warheads, each one independently targeted. That is, one missile with four MIRVs is the equivalent of four discrete missiles. Thus, if we assume that each of our 1,320 missiles carries four MIRV passengers, we end up with a total of 5,280 warheads for potential use. On the other hand, if we assume that each of the Soviet missiles carries eight to 10 MIRVs, they wind up with a total somewhere between 10 and 13 thousand of those technological monstrosities. Given the fact that they have always specialized in giant missiles (their first ICBM was so heavy, it was an operational disaster), there is every reason to believe they can carry this load.

As if this wasn't bad enough, there is another variable to be considered: The tonnage of the MIRV, i.e., its destructive power. While the data here is inconclusive, experts (who have to assume the "worst case") hypothesize that each Soviet MIRV will be much larger than its U.S. equivalent. So, as we move to SALT II, we are confronted by the Soviets potentially holding both quantitative and qualitative strategic superiority. There are no restraints on their "military-industrial complex": They are busy replacing the huge SS-9 missiles with huger SS-18s.

The reaction of a number of people is, "So what? Doesn't this merely amount to increased, useless overkill? How many times can they kill every American?" In the literal sense, the answer is, "Yes," if one thinks only on the military level. But if you understand the Leninist concept of war, you realize that force or the threat of force is firmly placed in a political context. With the U.S.S.R. holding overwhelming strategic superiority, what would the U.S. do in the event of an invasion of Western Europe? Even more inportant, perhaps: What would the NATO powers think the U.S. would do? To get closer to home, if the Soviets launched a preemptive first strike against our missile installations, would the President — knowing their reserve power — order the Polaris subs to let go at Soviet population centers? This interrelationship between political and military goals should never be forgotten.

Safe drinking water bill approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has signed a bill setting up the first U.S. safe drinking-water standards, and environmentalists want its emergency powers invoked in five communities whose water systems may contain cancer-causing chemicsls.

After Tuesday's bill-signing ceremony, the Environmental Defense Fund petitioned the Environmental Protection Agency to use the emergency powers because of the "imminent health hazard" posed by chemicals found in the drinking water of the five communities.

The chemicals were found in the water supplies of New Orleans and Jefferson Parish, La.; Evansville, Ind.; Cincinnati, Ohio; and Duluth, Minn.

"Emergency action by the EPA is clearly warranted and urgently needed in the communities named in our petition," said Dr. Robert H. Harris, an environmental group staff member.

After the suspected carcinogens were found, the EPA began a nationwide survey of the nation's water supplies to determine the extent of the problem. The new law requires that study be completed within six months.

The law also directs the agency to promulgate interim drinking water standards and arrange with the National Academy of Sciences for a study leading to establishment of permanent standards.

In Pittsburgh, an EPA team of investigators is testing the drinking water drawn from the Monogahela River after hundreds of suburban South Hills residents became ill.

The West Penn Water Co.'s President, William Harris, says no one has proven the water caused the sickness.

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democrats in the 111th General Assembly may well have difficulty next month in shoving through within a cramped six days three major pieces of legislation, including a congressional redistricting plan.

Even some of their own legislative leaders have begun squawking publicly about the bills that party chieftains would like to see pushed through between Jan. 6 and Jan. 13—the period in which Democrats will control both houses and the governor's office.

Rep. Barney Quilter, D-47 Toledo, already has told newsmen he doesn't like most of the package or the hurry-up approach necessary to ram it through.

Quilter will be second-in-command of the House in the upcoming legislative session.

"I think that as far as ramming a congressional redistricting bill through, it would leave a bad taste in everybody's mouth," he said.

If district boundaries should be redrawn, said Quilter, Democrats should do it in a routine, orderly manner and send it to the governor. If James A. Rhodes is in office and vetoes the bill he would have to justify his actions, Quilter said.

Many lawmakers have complained privately that they believe outgoing Gov. John J. Gilligan's advisors are "thinking with their blood rather than their heads."

One target is John E. Hansan, Gilligan's chief of staff.

"He blew the election and now wants to get us in trouble," said a representative from northeast Ohio. "Hell, he and the rest of that crew down there (in the governor's office) will be gone from the state in three months. If Gilligan keeps listening to them he'll be lucky ever to be elected county commissioner."

Besides redistricting, Democrat partisans want to take income tax collection from the administration and give it to Democratic Treasurer Gertrude Donahey, securing jobs for at least 300 Democrats.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

She has yellow teeth and a heavy heart

DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married, 28-year-old woman with a problem I've never seen in your column.

All my life I've been unhappy with my teeth. They are strong and healthy, but very yellow. I can't tell you how much I want lovely white teeth. Abby! I've tried everything I've seen advertised, but nothing has worked for me.

Last evening I sat next to a dentist at a dinner party, and I mentioned that I would love to have my teeth capped for vanity's sake. He laughed and said, "Forget it. No ethical dentist would destroy healthy teeth for cosmetic reasons."

Abby, why not? They're MY teeth, and if I want them capped for cosmetic reasons, why wouldn't an ethical dentist do it? After all, plastic surgeons "destroy" healthy noses every day to reshape them to make people happier with their appearance. What's the difference?

HATES TO SMILE

DEAR HATES: Your dinner partner should have told you that some dentists are reluctant to tinker with Nature's original work, because it increases the possibilities of problems. However, my dental experts do not agree that "no ethical dentist would perform cosmetic dentistry on healthy teeth that are unsightly." When skillfully done, such dentistry does not "destroy" teeth. Many ethical dentists practice cosmetic dentistry to the delight of grateful patients who have learned to smile again.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, Jane, is 25, attractive and holds a responsible position. She is also quite naive and unsophisticated.

For that last two years Jane has been seeing a young man who could easily get married if he wanted to. He has Jane eating out of his hand, but this relationship seems to be going nowhere.

Jane refuses to date anyone else, but this young man openly dates others, which hurts Jane deeply.

Every time we attempt to discuss this one-sided relationship with Jane, it results in an emotional outburst and she tells us to please stay out of her affairs.

What can we do? My husband would like to tell this young man to either fish or cut bait, but I don't think we should interfere. What do you think?

JANE'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I think you're right. Any pressure on father's part would send the young man running for the hills. Let Jane handle it, and don't compound her problem by attempting to discuss it.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Second Thoughts" prompts me to write. (She wanted to know whether to go ahead and marry a man who had beaten her up in a fit of jealousy because she danced with another man.)

I'm glad you advised her against marrying him. I spent 20 years as a detective with Scotland Yard, and as such I've had a lot of experience with emotionally unstable persons.

Obviously, a man who would beat a woman is in need of help, and he should be helped, but it is definitely wrong for a woman to be legally chained to such a person.

My own observations have led me to believe that persons with uncontrollable tempers have a basic emotional defect, and the certainly will not improve after marriage. They sometimes improve, however, when thay see someone with a slighter bigger stick than the one they wield.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, December 19th, the 353rd day of 1974. There are 12 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1946, the Indochina War broke out as troops under Ho Chi Minh launched widespread attacks against the French.

On this date:

In 1675, British colonists defeated Narragansett Indians in Rhode Island in the last battle of King Philip's War.

In 1732, Benjamin Franklin began to publish his "Poor Richard's Almanac" in Philadelphia.

In 1842, the United States recognized the independence of Hawaii.

In 1939, in World War II, the crew of the German liner, "Columbus," scuttled the ship in mid-Atlantic to avoid capture by the British.

In 1950, General Dwight Eisenhower was named commander of military forces under the North Atlantic Treaty organization.

In 1968, a Socialist who had run for President six times, Norman Thomas, died at the age of 84.

Ten years ago: Representative Gerald Ford of Michigan announced his candidacy for Minority Leader of the House, attempting to depose Charles Halleck of Indiana.

Five years ago: Thirteen U.S. servicemen were injured when militant students in Turkey stoned American cars in a protest against a visit by U.S. Navy ships.

The Blue Lines

A commercialized Christmas

By SUE MOORE

What is Christmas? Is it tinsel and toys and the bright glitter of the shop windows? Is it the frenzied people running up and down the streets in an effort to complete their last minute shopping? Or is it the artificial Christmas trees that people have stuck in their windows for their neighbors to see?

Is the true meaning of Christmas really any of these things? Christmas should be a celebration of the day that Christ was born. But people seem to forget this.

The holy message, "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men," seems to get lost in the artificial brightness and glitter. People think more about presents than peace, and "Good Will" is just some organization that helps needy people. Stickers bearing the message, "Merry Xmas," also cause us to forget what Christmas is all about.

This year let us not have an artificial Christmas. When you say, "Merry Christmas," say it from your heart. And when you sing carols, truly sing for "Joy to the World."

Don't be an Ebenezer Scrooge and think about how many presents you want. Instead, remember that this is the day Christ was born so that peace and good will shall reign over the earth.

Sock hop rules changed

By BRIAN COOK

Because of some recent discrepancies in dress codes and procedures concerning sock hops at WSHS, the Student Council felt it necessary to change regulations governing social activities.

The following new rules were approved by the faculty and supported by the council to be in the best welfare of the students and guests:

For all remaining sock hops, either the date or guest must be signed up one day prior to the dance; the number of dates or guests will be limited to one per dance, per student due to limited space; two doors will be opened at the dance — one for students of WSHS only and the other for WSHS students with guests or dates; all guests, regardless of other school dress codes or personal dress codes if out of school, must conform to the WSHS dress code for admittance; and all those attending must pay the admission charge except varsity athletes participating as a team member for the activity.

Olive PTO buys 2 tape recorders

A Christmas program was presented by the Olive Elementary School at the recent Olive PTO meeting held at the school.

Mrs. Sue Rockhold, president, presided over the meeting and made the motion for the purchase of two tape recorders at a cost of $150 for the Olive School. Treasurer Mrs. Shelby Greenlee reported the group had received $204 from the bake sale.

The club also voted to donate $25 to the advertising committee for advertisements on the recent operating levy.

Mrs. Rockhold announced volunteers would be needed Jan. 5 to paint fifth grade classrooms at Olive School and bring materials such as ladders, paint brushes, etc.

Four drivers volunteered to take underprivileged children from the school to the American Legion Christmas party Friday and members agreed to sponsor a chili supper in January.

Seniors of the Week

Four Washington Senior High School students have been selected to be featured as seniors of the week. Those chosen were Tammy Walls, Doug Wheat, Kevin Blair and Mary Ann Rudduck.

Tammy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Walls, 511 Comfort Lane. She lists her main school activities as AFS and Y-Teens.

Tammy attends the First Christian Church and enjoys reading but is still undecided about her future plans after graduation. She had just one comment for the underclassmen, "Good Luck."

Doug Wheat, the second featured senior, is very active in school and extracurricular activites. The son of the Rev. and Mrs. Gerald Wheat, he is vice president of the National Honor Society, secretary-treasurer of the Lettermans Club, a member of Hi-Y and athletic trainer for the football and basketball teams.

Doug lists his main interests as "basketball, riding the strip and air hockey at the bowling alley." He plans to attend Miami University following graduation.

Kevin Paul Blair, son of Kenneth Blair, 846 Kohler Drive, is chaplain of Hi-Y, a member of the Lettermans Club and reporter for the Blue Lines and enjoys playing football, basketball and baseball. He is also a member of the South Side Church of Christ.

After graduation Kevin plans to continue his education either through college or joining one of the armed forces. His advice to underclassmen: "Take advantage of your high school years because you only go around once in life and these are the greatest years you will have."

The last featured senior is one of the most active seniors at WSHS, Mary Ann Rudduck. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Rudduck, Mary has been active in Y-Teens three years, AFS two years, National Honor Society, GAA, two years on the Sunburst staff, four-year cheerleader serving as varsity captain her senior year and the girl's interscholastic softball and volleyball teams.

She was also selected to be honored in the latest edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students and enjoys all types of sports.

Although she is yet undecided of her plans after graduation, Mary cautions underclassmen, "Be an individual because you learn a lot about yourself and others. Make the best of high school because it is over before you are ready for it to be."

Telephone calls on Yule eyed

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Bell telephone system officials expect their Ohio customers to place 1.3 million calls Christmas Day.

Christmas is the busiest time of the year because of the volume of calls and because many of the calls are made from homes instead of businesses, overloading normally low-volume routes, explained J. E. Ensign, assistant vice president for network operations. Christmas calls also average twice as long, he said.

Bell experts suggest placing calls before 5 p.m. Christmas Eve or after 11 p.m.; before 10 a.m. or between 3 p.m. and 6 p.m. Christmas Day. If that's not possible, they suggest calling the next day.

NHS rules altered

Fred Cluff, National Honor Society advisor at WSHS, has announced a higher grade point average will be necessary for admission in the society.

Several other qualifications have also been modified in order to raise the standards for those chosen as members in the honor society. New adoptions approved by the WSHS faculty and the honor society include:

—each candidate must have completed two semesters at WSHS;

—each candidate must be a member of the junior or senior class;

—any student who has been adjudged an unruly child by a juvenile court is ineligible for membership;

—any student who has been suspended from school and the suspension is recorded in the student's permanent school record is ineligible;

—and student who has received a legal notice and warning on attendance is ineligible; and

—juniors must maintain a 3.25 accumulative average on all credits excluding physical education, band and choir through the first five semesters of high school.

The new standards become effective for the class of 1976 when they first become eligible for membership in 1975 and will continue for each succeeding class.

Fayette Garden Club topic 'Christmas is sharing'

The December meeting of the Fayette Garden Club took place in the home of Mrs. Edwin Thompson, with Mrs. Robert Meriweather, Mrs. Wash Lough and Mrs. Ralph Hays assisting. There were 24 members and three guests present. Guests were Mrs. Howard Perrill, Mrs. Gerald Wheat and Miss Cindy Thompson.

Mrs. Thompson conducted the business session, and read the poem "Christmas Lullaby." Reports were made by Mrs. Maryon Mark and Mrs. C.S. Kelley, and Mrs. A.L. Fishback was welcomed as a new member of the club.

Mrs. Kenneth Craig gave the horticulture report, and spoke of the winter care for begonias, poinsettias and evergreens.

Mrs. George Stitt will be responsible for making two Christmas door swags for the Fayette County Children's Home.

Mrs. George Trimmer gave Christmas devotions and said that the real purpose of giving is giving one's self. She suggested sharing one's talents and being thoughtful in giving gifts people really need.

Mrs. Larry Lehman announced the afternoon would be for sharing Christmas music, poems, traditions and memories.

A vocal trio composed of Mrs. Wheat, Mrs. Milbourne Flee and Mrs. Thompson, sang several Christmas selections. They were accompanied by Mrs. Donald Schwaigert at the piano. Songs included Roundelay Noel, the Bells on Christmas Day, A Christmas Folk Song-Christmas Is and We Wish You a Merry Christmas.

Members and guests told what they remembered or liked about Christmas. Some said they liked the time of sharing, the old traditions such as caroling; the belief of children in Santa Claus, the music of Christmas, religious Christmas services, remembering of Christ's birthday, receiving news from friends at Christmas time, and being home with one's family to celebrate the holiday.

The club enjoyed the exchange of homemade gifts. The hostesses served refreshments from a beautifully decorated table.

'Impressions of Christmas' holiday party theme

Wagner Circle No. 1 and the True Blue Class of Grace United Methodist Church met in the home of Mrs. C.F. Lucas for the annual holiday party. The home was aglow with Christmas candles, wreaths, holly and a tree decorated with white doves and red birds.

Mrs. Wagner welcomed the 43 present. Mrs. Cecil VanZant gave impressive devotions and read Scripture from the Book of Luke. She gave interesting comments pertaining to the theme, "Inside of Christmas" and closed with prayer.

Mr. Donald Riber presented a beautiful program, "Impressions of Christmas" which were slides and songs of many varieties depicting Christmas amid a background of organ music by Dennis James at the organ in the Ohio Theater.

A gift exchange followed.

Refreshments of delicious holiday cookies, mints, nuts, punch and coffee were served from a beautifully appointed tea table which was centered with an arrangement of red carnations and red candles.

Assisting hostesses during the evening were Mrs. Forest Ellis, Mrs. Jeannette Weaver, Mrs. Dena Haines, Mrs. Robert Case, Ms. Mina Gidding, Mrs. William Lovell, Mrs. McKinley Kirk, Mrs. Paul Elliott, and the Misses Helen Slavens, Lida Grace Wissler, Lena Smith, Leona Hewitt and Elizabeth Horney.

Twin Oaks Club dinner-party

The spirit of Christmas was everywhere when the Twin Oaks Garden Club members and guests arrived at the "Red Boot" for their annual Christmas Party and program. The banquet room was aglow with lights and a ceramic musical Christmas tree. The country-style dinner was served from a long beautifully appointed table with candles, and at each place setting was a Christmas napkin holder, a gift from Mrs. Willard Bonham.

After the meal, a program was presented by Mrs. James Braun, assisted by Mrs. Eugene Thompson, who read a Christmas Story. Two contests were conducted by Mrs. Braun and guests took part in the story "Twelve Nights of Christmas." She illustrated with a shadow box of figures, and when finished had a lovely gift.

Necklaces made of buttons were presented to each present. They were made by Mrs. Wilbur Hoppes, Mrs. Virgil Garringer and Mrs. Bonham

A gift exchange was held by all and Mrs. William McFadden was the winner of a special gift.

During the social hour Mrs. Hesler, owner, took all on a tour of the rooms, as all admired the lovely Christmas decorations. Mrs. Hesler was formerly a flower show judge.

Enjoying the event were Mrs. Harold Bonecutter and Mrs. Kenneth Bonecutter, Mrs. Jay Bonecutter, Mrs. Braun, Mrs. Ted Knisley, Mrs. Paul Pope, Mrs. Tom Braden, Mrs. Harold Bakenhester, Mrs. Bonham, Mrs. James Bonham, Mrs. Joe Bonham, Mrs. Don Bonham, Mrs. Dana Kellenberger, Mrs. Walter Boyer, Mrs. Tony Hicks, Mrs. Everett Baird, Mrs. Howard Barney, Mrs. Virgil Garinger, Mrs. Charles Blizard, Mrs. Wilbur Hoppes, Mrs. William McFadden and Mrs. Francis Clark.

HOLIDAY FONDUE FUN

Planning some informal entertaining for the holidays? Give a fondue party! Build an entire meal around a main-dish fondue or serve a dessert fondue to start or finish an evening of entertainment.

You'll need one "fondue pot" for each 4 to 6 guests. Fondue must be served hot, so a "fondue pot" includes a container for the food plus a heating unit. This may range from a simple casserole dish on a candle-warmer stand to a specially designed fondue set. You might use Grandmother's old pewter chafing dish or even an automatic skillet. The heat source may be a sterno or a alcohol burner, a candle or electricity.

Everybody gets in the act at a fondue party. Each guests needs a long fork or pick to reach into the pot, a plate for the dipped or cooked food, and another fork for eating. That's to avoid licking the cooking fork and dipping it back into the fondue! Don't forget large sturdy napkins or fondue bibs — fondue is drippy!

For a main dish fondue, cheese is the number 1 choice — Swiss cheese, cheddar, cream cheese, or a combination of two or more cheeses. Most cookbooks have at least one or two cheese fondue recipes. Zooming into popularity are fondues using small meat items cooked in hot oil. Small meat balls or thin strips of beef or poultry are excellent. For this type of fondue, controlled electrically heated pots may be best to keep the fat at the proper temperature and to minimize any fire hazard resulting from dripping oil into a flame. Some recipes suggest using a seasoned meat broth instead of oil for cooking raw meat or heating cooking meat pieces.

If you are doing a whole meal, you might also cook frozen potato products in the hot oil. Large french fries and frozen balls of shredded potatoes can be cooked this way.

For dessert, try a chocolate or carmel fondue. Use either milk chocolate or semi-sweet chocolate, thinned with milk or cream. Chunky peanut butter makes a good addition to chocolate or try a little instant coffee for a mocha flavor. For a caramel fondue, melt caramel candies or butterscrotch bits in milk or thin cream.

The usual "dunker" for cheese and some meat fondues is cakes of French bread, each with a side of crust to help keep in intact in the dipping process. Or try unsliced dark rye bread, cut the same way, or English muffins. Chunks of boiled potatoes, good with many cheese fondues, are a nice alternate to bread.

For dessert fondues, try pieces of fresh fruits — apples, bananas, strawberries, peaches, oranges. Or use very well-drained canned fruits — mandarin orange pieces, pineapple chunks, peach slices. Angel food cake is a food dessert. "Soft, very tender cakes break too easily in the dipping process.

If a fondue fun-do appeals to you, try it. If you need gift ideas, consider the various fondue pots, forks, plates, and recipe books. Maybe you'd like to put these items on your own Christmas wish list!

Bookwalter Aid

Members of the Bookwalter Ladies Aid assembled in the home of Mrs. Marvin Stockwell for the annual holiday party, gift exchange and carry-in luncheon. A lighted Christmas tree was the focal point in the living room. The entire house was lovely with lighted candles and greenery.

Members and guests were seated at the beautifully decorated dining table for the luncheon.

The business meeting was conducted by vice president Mrs. Dan Warner, in the absence of Mrs. Russell Garringer. Mrs. Marvin Stockwell read "Christmas Spirit", "Faith for Today" and closed devotions with prayer.

Mrs. Marilyn Marks, secretary, called the roll which each member answered with a favorite carol. A Christmas card was received from Mrs. Mary Kessler Miller containing a check for $25.00 as a donation to the Aid.

Cards, fruit plates and flowers were to be sent to shut-ins in the community. A poem, "I Keep a Part of Christmas," was read by Mrs. Marks for the closing.

The gift exchange and visiting concluded the afternoon. Those present were Mrs. Jean Warner, Mrs. Leola Allen, Mrs. Esther Stockwell, Mrs. Leona Edwards, Mrs. Opal Ellers, Mrs. Louise Vannorsdall, Mrs. Faye Armstrong, Mrs. Lillian Ervin, Mrs. Florence Seibert, Mrs. Marilyn Marks and guests Mrs. Ocie Huffman and Mrs. Martha Allen.

Holiday treats prepared

The Missionary Prayer Band of the Rose Avenue Wesleyan Church met in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Johnson Tuesday for a covered dish luncheon. Mrs. Georgia Hidy led the devotions. After the luncheon, they packed the Christmas treats for the Sunday School scholars and a social hour followed.

Those present were Rev. and Mrs. Donald Pollock, Mrs. Joseph Martin, Mrs. Georgia Hidy, Mrs. Ethel Wilson, Mrs. Herbert Eckle, Brian Dunn, and the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson. Additional guests were Mr. and Mrs. Norton Burnett.

Good Hope MYF

The Good Hope United Methodist Women observed 'Family Night' at the annual Christmas get together in the social rooms of the church recently. Greenery and candles were on the decorated tables, from which a potluck supper was enjoyed.

A Christmas program was presented by the MYF (Methodist Youth Fellowship) afterwards. They presented the Christmas story from the Book of Luke in a candlelight service.

Comrades 'party' in Biddle home

The Comrades of the Second Mile held their annual Christmas meeting in the beautifully decorated home of Mrs. Gilbert Biddle in Bloomingburg. Mrs. Gordon Cowdrey and Mrs. Eli Craig were the assisting hostesses. Three guests and 19 members joined in the festive holiday party.

A social hour preceded the covered dish dinner with members being seated at tables throughout the home covered with red cloths and gaily decorated in keeping with the season. Mrs. Loren Noble gave the invocation.

Following dinner, members wrapped toys purchased by them for Church Women United to distribute to needy families under the direction of Mrs. Craig.

Mrs. Grace Iden, president, conducted a brief business meeting at which time many thank yous were read for Thanksgiving plates which had been distributed to shut-ins in the community.

Mrs. Mary Foster and Mrs. Craig were appointed to prepare Christmas baskets of food in connection with the Lions Club for needy families of the community.

Mrs. Noble was in charge of the program, and read a Christmas story. She reminisced of past Christmas meetings and of former members, and closed with the group joining in singing the familiar traditional Christmas carols, accompanied by her at the organ.

The meeting was closed with the Comrades benediction. To the surprise of all, Santa Claus made an unexpected visit in the person of Mrs. Biddle and each received a gift.

The hostesses served punch and the remainder of the evening was spent in visiting, and viewing the hostess' many beautiful antiques displayed throughout her home.

Guests sharing the evening were Mrs. Norman Schiering, Mrs. Joe Giebelhouse, and Mrs. Lucy Randolph, along with members Mrs. Jack Sollars, Mrs. Edgar McFadden, Mrs. Richard Snyder, Mrs. Glenn Heistand, Mrs. Charles Cunningham, Mrs. Richard Thompson, Mrs. Dale Thornton, Mrs. Roger Rapp, Mrs. W.P. Noble, Mrs. Hugh LaFollette, Mrs. Rex Bloomer, Mrs. Ervin Baumann, Mrs. Malcolm Bloomer, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Iden, Mrs. Noble, Mrs. Cowdrey, Mrs. Craig and Mrs. Biddle.

During the winter heating season, remember to keep house plants away from drafts, heat registers and heat radiated by fireplaces. Most blooming plants will do best in a cool room (about 70 degrees) with bright light, while foliage plants can usually take a somewhat higher room temperature.

NATIVITY SCENE — These figures, all made from Olive wood, were purchased by Mrs. Avanell Zimmerman during a trip to Israel in November. They are all hand carved and stand six to eight inches tall.

Special gifts ready for Eastside pupils

A kindergarten teacher at Eastside Elementary School has a special Christmas gift for each of her 63 pupils.

Mrs. Avanell Zimmerman, who has been a kindergarten teacher at Eastside Elementary School for the past three years, had the opportunity to travel to Israel through the United Methodist Church in Jeffersonville, of which she is a member.

"Myself and Elizabeth Satterfield attended the Convocation for World Methodist Evangelism in Israel, representing our church, but a total of 500 people went from Ohio and a total of 2,500 people attended from all over the world," Mrs. Zimmerman explained.

It was on the trip, Nov. 16 through Nov. 23, Mrs. Zimmerman found camels made from olive wood for sale. She bought 70 of them and hung them on the Christmas tree in her classroom and she plans on giving them to her students right before vacation.

Mrs. Zimmerman also displayed a nativity scene of carved olive wood figures which she also purchased in Israel. She's not sure whether the camels are hand-carved or not, but the nativity scene definitely was and by a very skilled craftsman.

Lebanon won't rehire workers

LEBANON, Ohio (AP)—The 18 city workers who were fired for violating the state's law forbidding strikes by public employes will not be rehired.

City Personnel Director Karl Detwiler said the city would not take the workers back although it could under provisions of the Ferguson Act.

Detwiler said he will hire new employes to replace the strikers who, despite the firings Tuesday, maintained picket lines.

The strikers were all employed by the city power plant and waterworks. They walked out Nov. 19 demanding recognition of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers as their bargaining agent.

Copter crash kills Ohio man

NEW SMYRNA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Authorities sought today to determine what caused a helicopter crash near here Wednesday which claimed the life of an Ohio pilot.

Richard Lynn Riegger, 26, of Medina, Ohio, died in the accident. Witnesses said the craft, owned by Doan Helicopter Service of South Florida, appeared to come apart in flight.

The same company owned a sight seeing helicopter which exploded last summer off Daytona Beach, killing three persons, the sheriff's office said.

Solon's wife hurt in purse snatch

Mrs. Seiberling received a black eye when a youth struck her while another grabbed her purse on a Washington, D. C., street, capital police reported.

Religious group loses damage suit

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Two Toledo brothers who sued an Idaho religious group for alienating the affections of their wives were awarded $48,000 apiece in damages by a common pleas court jury Tuesday.

After five hours of deliberation, the eight-person jury awarded $33,000 compensatory and $15,000 punitive damages each to Joseph A. Radecki, an anesthesiologist, and Henry M. Radecki, vice president of Owens-Illinois Glass Co.

The verdict, against Bishop Francis K. Schuckardt, leader of the Tridentine Roman Catholics and Christ the King Priory, Inc., the corporate name of the religious group, followed two weeks of evidence and testimony.

The lawsuit alleged that Joseph's wife, Catherine, and Henry's wife, Emily, were induced by the group and its teachings to desert and abandon their husbands and destroy their marriages.

Evidence in the trial showed that the two Radecki women, after following the religious teachings of the group, left their husbands in 1973 and took their children to live and go to school in Coeur D'Alene, Idaho, home of the group.

The defense contended that the Radecki women merely were following their religious beliefs.

Bishop Schuckardt said the Christ the King Priory, Inc., would file an appeal asking that judgments won by the Radecki brothers be set aside.

The bishop said he was confident an appeals court would overturn the jury's findings on grounds that the church's beliefs were on trial, in violation of the constitutionally-guaranteed freedom of religion.

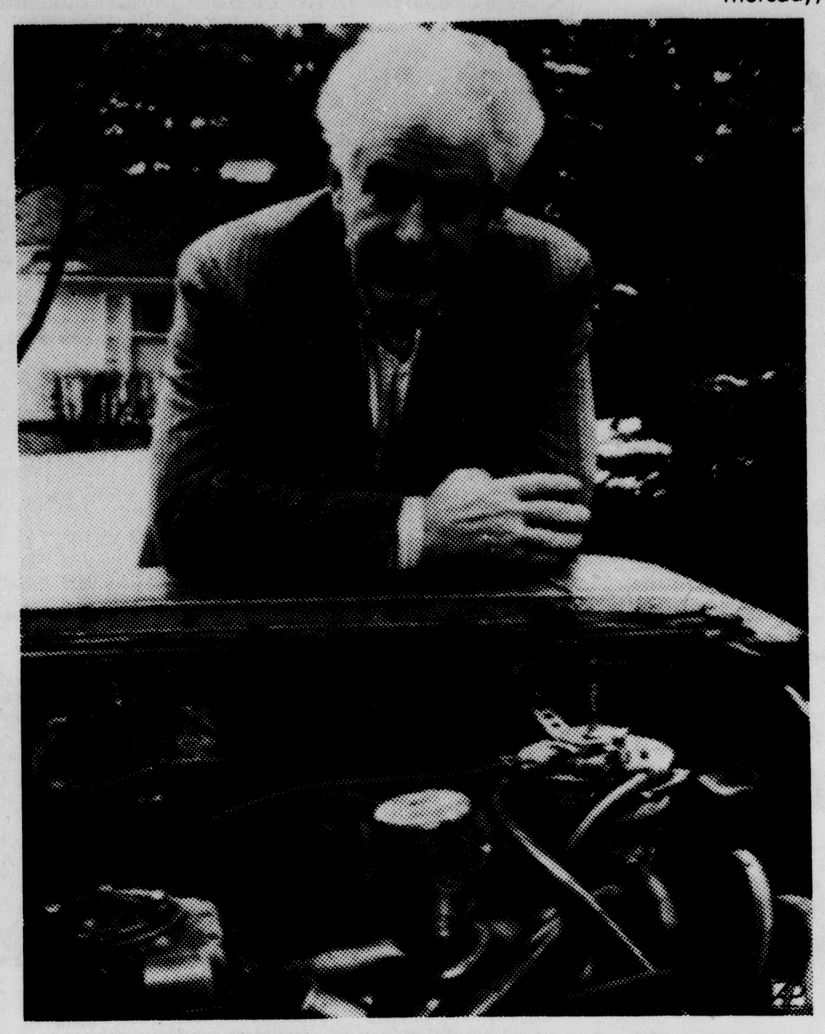
Judge Reno R. Riley Jr.'s action made Ohio the "first state that has allowed a church to be put on trial" for teaching its beliefs, he said.

Tridentine Roman Catholics adhere to the decrees and doctrines set forth by the mid 16th Century Council of Trent and reject modernism, including Pope Paul VI, Schuckardt said.

The bishop said the defense was hampered because the judge, jury and attorneys, including the group's own, were not knowledgeable in Tridentine doctrines.

Schuckardt said the Tridentines do not recognize divorce, nor counsel the breakup of marriages, but do recognize separations.

The Radeckis are "wealthy men" who are disappointed that their families did not choose to share their ways of life, he said.



LEANING WITH FORCE — Robert LaForce leans on the fender of his car and talks about one of the devices used on the engine that he and his brother have modified, which they say increases fuel economy. The engine, in his personal car at Beaver, Pa., contains the device, below his right arm.

News pact vote slated

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Striking editorial employes at The Plain Dealer will vote Friday on a new contract that could end their 48-day walkout.

The pact, which is being submitted to employes without a recommendation from the Cleveland Newspaper Guild, was hammered out after 11 hours of negotiations late Wednesday and early today.

A spokesman for The Plain Dealer said that if the package is approved, publication could resume Sunday.

Jack Weir, executive secretary of the Cleveland Newspaper Guild, said the package does not increase the basic wages over a contract offer which guild members rejected by a 111-94 vote last week, but does include some changes including a better cost-of-living package.

Negotiations continued today with The Cleveland Press in hopes a similar agreement could be reached with the city's other major newspaper.

Rubber rail ties wave of future?

ASHTABULA, Ohio (AP)—If Nelson K. Moses, 71, had his way, all the world's trains would ride on rails mounted on rubber—and his two firms here would be at the head of the world's largest industry.

Moses, who first put rubber under rails 33 years ago, sees vindication of his belief in the recent award of $1.76 million in contracts calling on him to do it again.

The larger pact, $1.36 million, is for track in a $200 million automated underground railroad in a molybdenum mine near Denver, Colo., being developed by Climax Molybdenum Co., a division of AMAX Inc. The other contract, for $400,000, came from the New York City Transit Authority for subway tracks.

Moses' concept involves fitting rails within a wide rubber pad and then bolting the whole assembly to concrete. Acceptance has been slow in coming, though Moses says Boston and New York subways have used the system successfully and that a main rail line in Florida has been without a derailment in the six years since it installed his design.

Railroad men "are terribly afraid to put rubber under rails," he says over the thunder of trains roaring past his office throughout the day. "They think the train is going to tip over."

But Moses, not only convinced they are wrong, argues that since their track failures cause 10,000 major derailments each year, use of rubber under rails would save railroad companies billions of dollars annually—and help return them to profitability.

Maintenance of "Liberty Tracks," as Moses calls his system, is inexpensive, he says. Moses believes their use would permit such reductions in freight rates as to make rails highly competitive with road and water freight.

A NICE PLACE TO WALK — Washington C.H. has proven to be a very nice place to walk — there have been no pedestrian fatalities in the city for the past five years. To commemorate this fact Robert A. Craig, left, president of the Fayette County Automobile Club, presented the two plaques shown to Dan Wolford, city manager. Wolford graciously accepted on behalf of the city and the Washington C.H. Police Department.

Demo leaders ready remap steamroller

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Democratic leaders have mapped a tentative congressional redistricting plan designed to destroy Republican strongholds in Cincinnati and Columbus.

An ad hoc House-Senate committee came up with the plan to create three or four new Democratic districts at a closed meeting Wednesday.

The key areas of interest to the Democrats are the 12th and 15th districts in Columbus and the 1st district in Cincinnati.

However, State Sen. Tony Hall, D-6 Dayton, who is coordinating the effort, said "as many as six or seven districts will be changed" substantially if the plan is adopted.

Democratic legislators will have to move with clockwork precision to get the bill through the 111th General Assembly during the second week in January while Gov. John J. Gilligan is still in office.

Gov.-Elect James A. Rhodes, who will be sworn in on Jan. 13, would presumably veto any plan that weakened Republican held districts.

Gilligan began pushing for a redistricting effort after Republicans maintained a 15-8 edge in Ohio congressional districts in the November election despite sweeping Democratic gains in the state legislature.

The secretary of state does not keep registration figures by party, but primary voting records indicate Democrats are in a majority in the state.

The Democrats believe they should have at least one congressman in Columbus and the plan would shove Republican Reps. Sam Devine and Chalmers Wylie into one district, probably in northern Franklin County. That would create a vacancy for a Democrat like Councilwoman Fran Ryan who narrowly lost to Devine last month.

Another priority for remapping is the 1st District in Cincinnati where Rep. Thomas Luken was defeated by Republican Willis Gradison in a close contest.

Luken had become the fourth Democrat this century to hold the seat after he won over Gradison last March in a special election with overtones of voter reaction against Watergate.

Gilligan who formerly held the seat claims that a Republican redistricting effort cost him his job in 1966.

The tentative plan would also further strengthen the already generally Democratic 3rd district in Dayton where Rep. Charles W. Whalen Jr., a liberal Republican, was unopposed in November.

The committee hopes to carve a new Democratic district north of Dayton stretching up to Mercer County and including parts of Springfield, Xenia and Fairborn.

Hall said several Democratic districts in northeastern Ohio would be "shored up," particularly the 23rd where State Sen. Ronald Mottl, D-24 Parma, has been elected to a seat vacated by Rep. William Minshall, a Republican who retired.

The problem for the committee, Hall conceded, is that the "adding to" also involves "some taking away" from Democratic districts. He estimated that at least minor adjustments will be made in fourfifths of the state's 23 districts.

Changes in Summit County, for instance, will likely weaken Rep. Charles A. Mosher, a Republican, in the 13th District, but also erode Democratic strength in Rep. John F. Seiberling's 14th District.

Hall was in Washington on Tuesday to discuss redistricting with Ohio's Democratic congressional delegation.

The 10 committee members will now take the proposal back to county leaders for consideration before meeting in caucus with fellow legislators for final shaping of the man.

If a consensus can be reached, Hall said, "by New Year's we should be ready to go." The legislature convenes on Jan. 6.

Traffic Court

Three persons were fined on traffic charges Wednesday by Municipal Court acting Judge Omar Schwart.

Larry V. Wilson, 21, Sabina, was fined $25 after pleading no contest to a charge of unsafe bumper height; Ernest L. Perry, 18, of 823 Conley Court, was fined $13 when he pleaded no contest to a charge of speeding; and Kim E. McCoy, 18, of 678 Robinson, was fined $18 after pleading guilty to a charge of speeding.

Those forfeiting bonds were: Eric M. Chester, 22, Jeffersonville, $35, unsafe vehicle; Bruce Butler, 20, of 711 S. Main St., $25, speeding; and Linda E. Cornett, 22, Greenfield, $25, unsafe vehicle.

Congress OKs jobs bill, pushes for adjournment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, acting to combat the unemployment that now affects nearly six million Americans, has passed a bill authorizing 330,000 public service jobs.

The $5.5 billion bill cleared both House and Senate on Wednesday and went to President Ford for his expected signature. The bill also extends unemployment compensation to those not covered by existing programs, such as farm laborers, domestics and government employes.

The House also passed a supplemental appropriations measure carrying $4 billion for the job program and for supplemental unemployment compensation benefits for the jobless.

The Senate is expected to act on this money bill promptly. The Senate Appropriations Committee approved it Wednesday night. The House is expected to take final action today on another measure authorizing $1.1 billion to extend the period for paying jobless benefits to 52 weeks.

Democratic leaders were pushing for final adjournment of the 93rd Congress by Friday night, with some expressing hope the windup might be possible late tonight.

The House plans to debate and vote today on confirming Nelson A. Rockefeller as vice president, with approval apparently assured by a big margin. Rockefeller is to take the oath in the Senate chamber soon after the House vote.

One of the major bills left for final action is the international trade measure, a top item on President Ford's agenda for this Congress.

Senate-House conferees late Wednesday tentatively approved the bill which includes a provision aimed at insuring freer emigration of minorities from Communist countries.

Both chambers also plan to complete action on legislation extending antipoverty programs but phasing out the Office of Economic Opportunity, the antipoverty agency.

The legislators sent to the White House a $2.7 billion foreign aid authorization bill, which would allow military aid for Turkey to continue until Feb. 5.

Slow delivery of materials stalls discotheque opening

By MARK THELLMANN

Slow delivery of materials has delayed the opening of the Sounds Unlimited Discotheque, 131 S. Fayette St., the former location of Washington C.H.'s only theater.

Owner and operator Harry Chakeres explained, "It's the lighting which is really holding everything up. It's coming in slowly from a place in New York called 'Capitol Stage Lighting' which handles stage lighting all over the world. In fact, I've had to delay the sound and lighting engineers who are coming from Cincinnati and Kentucky, three times now. I've decided just to call them everyday and let them know if the stuff has come in."

Chakeres was ready to go with all the sound equipment and various games at the end of last month.

"Most everything came in on time and I do have 75 per cent of the lights now, but I can only hope the rest arrives soon so we can open the first part of January," Chakeres stated and exclaimed, "I'll be more than happy to open New Year's Eve and have a one great big party if I can!"

IF THAT should happen, don't be disappointed when you arrive — Chakeres will serve no alcoholic beverages on the premises. Instead he will stock three items which taste like the real thing but are impostors: Near Beer, Champaign-o and a non-alcoholic Cold Duck.

"I could have gotten the full license to serve anything, but I feel I'd be getting into unnecessary problems by serving alcoholic beverages. I want my patrons to have a good time without the crutch of alcohol," Chakeres stated.

He also feels alcoholic beverages would defeat his purpose and the image of the establishment he is creating. Sounds Unlimited Discotheque is aimed at no real age group, but is expected to draw much of the under 18 crowd, which can't drink legally under Ohio law.

"You remember how school functions became you're whole life before you were legally allowed in bars for social entertainment?" Chakeres asked and continued, "When my place is open, the kids will have an alternative. There's no other place which offers five solid hours of entertainment for the price of $2."

Chakeres' "solid entertainment" will consist of a multi-thousand dollar sound system playing all the latest hits, flashing lights, 35 games in the backroom and pizza and sandwiches served with soft drinks. An addition to this agenda will be occasional live bands and old-time movies shown on the walls.

Chakeres figures the whole remodeling job, together with the sound and lighting, will run him around $100,000.

A HOPEFUL SIGN — Although "Sounds Unlimited Discotheque" is running a month behind schedule due to the slow arrival of the lighting equipment from New York, owner and operator Harry Chakeres is shooting for a New Year's opening date. Pictured is Gary Grim, of Grim Sign Service in Washington C.H., installing the new name. Chakeres explained the arch which says "Fayette" will be replaced by curved musical staff lines with music notes running down them.

Work release plan given court's OK

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— More inmates at Ohio corrections facilities may take advantage of community activities, and the State Corrections Department may establish similar work release programs under the provisions of a court settlement reached this week.

Imon Mobley, director of outside educational programs at Lebanon Correctional Institution, said he hopes settlement of a lawsuit filed by Franklin County Prosecutor George Smith—to halt work release programs of the state department of correction and rehabilitation—would set the stage for further inmate participation.

Corrections Department spokesman Joe Ashley said Smith had contended in the suit the department could not legally release inmates into the community without legislative amendment of state law.

Under one of the most rewarding community programs, Mobley says, nine inmates from Lebanon work five days a week with brain injured children.

"For the first time, the men believe they are doing something good, and they feel good about it. It gives them a new perspective. We have nine men working five days a week—I could use 25," he said.

Clinic work is one type of work release. Others include college and vocational courses, speaking engagements, athletic events, church activities and drug abuse programs.

Screening for the program is strict, and will get tighter under terms of the court settlement. The department will have to keep more detailed records, but won't necessarily restrict the programs, Ashley explained.

About 800 inmates took part in work release activities last year, out of 7,000-8,000 eligible, Ashley said.

Maximum security inmates at the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility are ineligible, he said.

MARRIAGE APPLICATION

Raymond D. Harlan, 19, of 710 E. Paint St., unemployed, and Cathy L. Haynes, 16, Rt. 4, London, at home.

JUVENILE COURT

A 17-year-old Fayette County girl was found to be unruly after her parents filed a complaint in Juvenile Court. The petition stated that the youth had run away from home and refused to be disciplined by her parents. Judge Rollo M. Marchant ordered that she be placed on probation.

PROCEEDS DISBURSED

Proceeds from the Sheriff's sale of four properties involved in a foreclosure suit have been disbursed by the court. Four parcels of land in Fayette County owned by Jim and Joyce Emrick, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., were sold by the Sheriff at public auction. Two parcels were purchased by Silver Dollar Inc., of Washington C. H., for $16,900; the other two were purchased by the plaintiff, Thurman W. Plummer, Rt. 4, Washington C. H., for $10,200.

Some $700 of the money from the sale was turned over to the clerk of Common Pleas Court to cover court costs. The remainder was given to Plummer toward the debt owed him by the defendants on a promissory note. Another $1,881 is still owed on the mortgage note.

The proceeds were insufficient to provide any revenue for William and Wanda Frasure, of Lucasville, who are owed some $5,000 by the Emricks on a second promissory note. The note held by the Frasures was found to be a second lein on the properties which could be paid only after Plummer received full payment of the first lien, according to the petition.

Ohio layoffs still rising

The number of Ohio workers furloughed or facing layoff after the first of the new year rose to 44,479 Wednesday with announcement that General Motors Corp. would cut back more jobs next month.

About 650 workers were scheduled to be laid off Jan. 20 at the Assembly Division plant at Lordstown, a GM spokesman said. In Dayton, Frigidaire Division was to release 514 employes Jan. 3.

Both layoffs were for indefinite periods, GM said.

The auto assembly plant was reducing production of Chevrolet Vegas and Pontiac Astres from 100 to 85 an hour, the spokesman said.

Frigidaire officials said it was necessary to bring inventories in line with sales and that duration of the layoffs in Dayton would depend on customer demand for appliances.

The Lordstown complex was to close for the Christmas holiday from Dec. 23 to Jan. 2. GM said 5,300 assembly division employes would be out of work again starting Jan. 13, when the lines are to be shut down again for one week.

Man must seek donations to provide lighted display

VIOLA, Del. (AP) — Last year the energy-shortage lighting ban almost ruined Olin Dill's annual message of Christmas cheer. This year he's worried about the cost of electricity for the 10,000 Christmas lights that adorn his home.

For the first time in more than two decades, Dill has been forced to ask for donations from the thousands who come to view his home, about eight miles south of Dover.

"Inflation's hit me just like everyone else," he said. "I called the electric company the other day and found out it's going to cost me three times as much to have my lights on this year."

Until now the most Dill and his family had accepted from the thousands who annually tour their 55 acres was a fruitcake and $2 from a drunk who stuffed it in Dill's pocket and refused to take it back, Mrs. Dill said.

In the pre-energy crisis years, Dill said he could run the lighting display for 120 hours from the week before Christmas until New Year's Day for about $120. If it is run at the same level this season, it would cost about $700, Mrs. Dill said.

Last year, because of a presidential request to forego decorative lights, the display was lit for only 44 hours and used 2,000 fewer lights. The electric bill was about $100, but that same display would cost about $350 this year, Dill said.

Since the display opened on Sunday, donations have been enough to meet the bills, Mrs. Dill said. Last year 9,500 cars and buses visited the farm grounds, but the Dills say they hope the donation box doesn't make anyone feel obligated to pay for the tour.

"If people want to pitch in a coin, maybe we'll run it longer," Dill said.

To face winless Wilmington

Lions search for confidence

BY LARRY WATTS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

"Being 2-4 at this point of the season is a big letdown for us," explained Gary Shaffer, head basketball coach at Washington. "I had expected our season mark to be better than this after six games. We are just going to have to buckle down and play a lot harder."

Before the Blue Lions take their holiday break, Wilmington will be in town for a Friday night visit. The young Hurricane will be looking for an upset as they are carding a mark of 0-4 on the season.

To pinpoint a starting lineup for the Hurricane is nearly impossible. Fighting through a rebuilding season, Wilmington coach Larry Bartram only has one senior on his squad. The remainder of his team is composed of six juniors, three sophomores and a freshman, who has been recently sharing his time between reserve and varsity duties.

Gary Williams, Wilmington's highly talented freshman, has just been brought up to the varsity level for experience in the last two contests. Williams has seen action in three quarters and scored a total of 17 points. It is very possible Williams will spend all four quarters with the varsity unit this week, since Wilmington does not have anyone averaging in double figures.

Lack of experience is quite evident on the Wilmington club as the Hurricane rank last in both offensive production and defense among the seven league teams. The Hurricane have been averaging 45.5 points per game, while their opponents have been blistering the nets for an average of 80.5.

"Confidence is the big thing we need right now," Shaffer indicated. "We can not afford to be down. This is a good shooting ball club and we are going to prove it once we become relaxed on the court."

Much of the offensive load has fallen on the shoulders of Doug Phillips, Chuck Byrd and Craig Shaffer this season. Coach Shaffer said if all three of them ever got hot one of these nights, they are going to blow some team right off the court.

At the present time, Phillips is leading the club in scoring with a 17.7 scoring average. He has scored 19 points or more in his last four games, but the junior forward is still not shooting up to his capabilities.

Byrd and Shaffer are each averaging in double figures. Byrd is collecting 13.8 points per game and Shaffer is scoring 11.5 points. Although he has been having problems running into foul trouble, Byrd is the only Lion to hit double figures in each game. With his leg showing a lot of improvement from the pulled thigh muscle, Shaffer is now starting to sharpen his shooting eye.

Freshman center John Denen continues to show improvement with each game. Denen, who is averaging just over nine points per game, was impressive in the 73-60 loss to Greenfield. Showing some excellent moves inside, he picked up 11 points and hit the boards for 11 rebounds.

However, the fifth spot in the starting lineup has been a problem for coach Shaffer. As of yet, the Lion mentor has yet to find the right person to work in with the other four starters for the Lions.

"We just have not been able to figure out who can do the job," Shaffer replied. "We are in need of a defensive man who can rebound. Right now, our starting five depends on who we play. If we play a smaller team, we will use a third guard. If we play a bigger team, we will use another forward."

Shaffer has been trying several combinations with his lineup. Against Greenfield, nine players saw action. Shaffer feels that he has 10 players he can use at any time without hurting the team too much.

"Our defense has also been giving us a lot of trouble," remarked Shaffer in noting his team has given up over 66 points per game. "It is hard to run a full court or half court press when a couple of guys are not setting up."

In the Greenfield game, the Lions' defense broke down on several occasions and gave the Tigers layups. Many of the defensive mistakes were attributed to mental errors.

"The fourth quarter really got to us in Greenfield, but I still think we played good enough to win that game," he added. "It is just a matter of overcoming the things which get in our way."

With Circleville still undefeated and Greenfield and Miami Trace each with one loss, the Lions find themselves trailing the pack early in the season with a 1-2 record in the league. Although the Lions have two losses in league play, they can not be counted out as long as they start receiving some help from other teams in the SCOL.

Hayes admits Trojans stronger

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Woody Hayes is saying little about Southern California, but concedes Ohio State's Rose Bowl football opposition is improved over a year ago.

The explosive coach of the Buckeyes, who takes a 60-man squad to the West Coast Friday, said, "They (Southern California) are better defensively this year. They are a great team.

"I'm not going to say anything else about them," he said before the Big Ten cochampions wound up their home practices today.

Ohio State will practice nine times on the West Coast preparing for a third straight shot at the Pac-8 champions on the Rose Bowl Jan. 1.

Southern Cal won two years ago 42-14 and Ohio State prevailed last time 42-21.

Hayes, leading his seventh Rose Bowl team in 24 seasons, said of his 10-1-0 squad, "We're a little more versatile, but our defense wasn't as good until the last game."

In the finale, the Buckeyes Edged Michigan 12-10 to share the conference title with the Wolverines for the third successive season.

Hayes attributes his team's yield of 111 points to a rash of injuries. "We had six or seven regulars out at one time or another," he said.

The latest injury struck AllAmerican center-guard Steve Myers in practice this week. The 6-foot-2, 244-pound senior broke his right wrist in the same spot for the second time this season.

"He will play," Hayes said of Myers, "and you can be certain of that. He'll play damned well, too."

Myers has swapped positions again with right guard Dick Mack. The two pulled the same maneuver for five games of the regular season. Myers played the other six contests at center.

The son of the Kent, Ohio, police chief missed the 1973 Rose Bowl because of mononucleosis, but started the 1974 contest at center.

Hayes plans the first of his workouts Saturday at Citrus Junior College.

Ohio State turnovers spell 72-71 defeat

By The Associated Press

Virginia Tech's Gobblers made the most of costly Ohio State turnovers and the exit of Bill Andreas with a knee injury Wednesday night and emerged with a 72-71 interstate basketball victory.

Andreas, hurt late in the first half after scoring nine points, sat out the second and watched as the visiting Virginians broke open an attempted Buckeye stall with about three minutes left on the clock.

Virginia Tech, trailing 68-57, scored 12 straight points to overtake Ohio State, 69-68, and go ahead for the first time. Larry Cooke and Dave Sensibaugh had key baskets after stealing the ball from the slowed down OSU team.

Russell Davis, the Gobblers' 6-foot-5 forward, calmly laid in a pair of free throws to clinch the victory after being fouled by Mark Bayless with seconds left.

Elsewhere, Toledo came off losses to highly ranked Indiana and Marquette by belting California State at Hayward 97-61 on the Rockets' home court.

It was a warmup for Toledo's Mid-American conference opener Saturday night at Eastern Michigan.

Jim Brown, Toledo's 6-foot-9 center, scored a career high 36 points and pulled down 19 rebounds to lead both teams in that department. Stan Williams had 16 points to pace the Pioneer scorers.

Toledo won the game on the backboards. The Rockets nabbed a total of 65 rebounds, compared to only 26 for the shorter Californians.

In Cincinnati Xavier lost to Morehead 68-63. Contributing to the loss were 18 fouls called against the Cincinnati team in the second half compared with six against Morehead.

Panthers trip Marquette

The Marquette Warriors have been hard to swallow for an awfully long time, but the Pittsburgh Panthers gave them a taste of their own medicine Wednesday night.

The Panthers, looking more like Marquette than the Warriors themselves, gave their opponents a good dose of defense and then provided the knockout drops at the foul line.

The combination provided them with an upset 65-58 victory over the nation's seventh-ranked basketball team.

"This is kind of like Christmas coming early," said Pittsburgh Coach Buzz Ridl after the upset. "It was a great win for us."

An infrequent loser, Marquette has won more than 88 per cent of its games in the last five years — the top record among independents. The defeat was only the Warriors' 18th loss in that time.

The Panthers used the frantic Marquette style to pull off the upset, a clutching defense that barely allowed the Warriors breathing room. That's been Marquette's trademark under Coach Al McGuire.

Jim Bolla gave unheralded Pitt its triumph with two crucial one-on-one conversions in the final two minutes. When Bolla fouled out with a minute to play, he was given a standing ovation.

"I was happy but I don't think it was for me," said the 6-foot-8 senior. "I think it was more for the team."

In the only other game involving a ranked team, No. 4 Louisville routed Clemson 90-75.

Bolla, who dominated the backboards and scored 12 points, put the Panthers, 3-3, ahead for good at 52-51, despite several desperation comeback efforts by the Warriors, 3-1.

Pitt started strong, leading 16-4 early in the game, and owning a 40-30 halftime lead. But the Panthers fell victim to Marquette's pressure zone defense early in the second half, and with nine minutes to go in the game, the Warriors had grabbed a 49-46 lead.

Kenneth Starr and Kirk Bruce led the winners with 13 points apiece.

Lloyd Walton led Marquette with 17 points and Bo Ellis chipped in with 16.

Phillip Bond scored 12 points in the second half, rallying Louisville over Clemson. Bond's second-half surge after scoring only four points in the first half helped bring Louisville back from a 39-33 halftime deficit.

Wayne Rollins led Clemson with 14 points.

Louisville trailed by as many as 11 points in the first half, 25-14, but then in the next three minutes scored 12 straight points to take a 28-27 lead. Then Rollins scored six points in the last minute to send Clemson ahead at the half.

Elsewhere, New Mexico beat Abilene Christian College 85-63, Virginia Tech nipped Ohio State 72-71, Stanford whipped Wisconsin 89-67, LSU topped Tulane 84-82, Minnesota smothered Loyola of Chicago 66-53, Temple edged Navy 64-63 and Canisius downed LaSalle 70-69.

Komets rip Des Moines in IHL, 5-2

By The Associated Press

Brian Walker was a busy hockey player Wednesday night.

The Fort Wayne skater scored two goals and assisted on three others as the Komets swept past Des Moines 5-2 in International Hockey League play.

Pat Russell and Cam Botting scored the Capitols' goals, but their efforts were not good enough to touch the 3-0 lead held by Fort Wayne after one period. The lead was stretched to 4-1 after the second period.

In other games, Dayton and Flint played to a 4-4 tie and Columbus topped Muskegon 4-2.

Doug Manchak of Flint and Steve Self of Dayton turned in twin performances, each scoring two goals and getting credit for an assist in the tie game.

The tie keeps Dayton in first place in the IHL's Southern Division with a record of 20-7-2. Flint is 19-9-3.

Columbus never trailed, thanks to two goals from center Ed Kenty.

Muskegon did manage to tie the score at 2-2 in the second period on shots by Bill Kestell and Pat DeMarchi, but Owls winger Harry Casey put in what turned out to be the winning goal in the final period.

21 teams fishing for 'Catfish'

OAKLAND (AP) — Twenty-one major league baseball teams have their lures out for Jim "Catfish" Hunter. Twenty want to sign him and one wants to keep him.

And the teams trying to reel in the Catfish got the green light Wednesday from Alameda County, Calif., Superior Court ... at least until Jan. 3.

While one team after another was burning up the telephone lines to Hunter's lawyers in Ahoskie, N.C., Judge Spurgeon Avakian refused to grant Charles O. Finley a temporary restraining order that would have prevented the clubs from making Hunter offers he might not be able to refuse.

However, Avakian set Jan. 3 for a hearing of the case on its merits.

In refusing to grant the temporary restraining order, Avakian said:

"I don't think realistically any club will sign him with the court action still pending. I also think Hunter would want to wait to get the most he probably could out of any contract. I don't see enough basis to challenge the arbitration in the meantime."

On Monday, a three-man arbitration panel decided that Finley had failed to live up to a contract agreement with Hunter and ruled the star pitcher of the world champion Oakland A's a free agent. Hunter took his case to arbitration after the World Series, claiming Finley had failed to place $50,000 in a special deferred fund.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has ruled that no team can sign Hunter until midnight Sunday. However, 12 teams contacted Hunter's lawyers within three hours after the legal bidding war for his pitching services started at 9 a.m., EST, Wednesday. They were the New York Yankees, New York Mets, Kansas City Royals, Philadelphia Phillies, Montreal Royals, Atlanta Braves, Cleveland Indians, California Angels, Cincinnati Reds, Detroit Tigers, Pittsburgh Pirates and Boston Red Sox.

"We are making appointments to discuss the contract starting Thursday," said Joe Flythe, a partner in the law firm of Cherry, Cherry, Flythe and Evans. "He's not signing with anyone until we've had discussions with all teams showing interest."

Eight more clubs got into the act Wednesday afternoon but it was not disclosed which ones. However, two of the four teams which haven't been heard from — all teams have until Saturday to enter the race — are the A's and the Baltimore Orioles, American League East Division champs.

The Orioles have a club policy against multiple-year contracts and Hunter's lawyers told General Manager Frank Cashen one of the prime considerations being sought by the pitcher is a multi-year contract.

Hunter said he hoped to pick his new team — the courts permitting — by early next week.

"I'd like to give myself and my family a nice Christmas present," he said. "I want a cash bonus and I want a good salary and I want a guarantee that my family will be protected financially for the rest of their lives."

Hunter said he believes the bidding will go over $1 million.

12 new faces in Pro Bowl

NEW YORK (AP)—Twelve National Football Conference players, including St. Louis quarterback Jim Hart and Dallas receiver Drew Pearson, will be making their first appearance in this season's Pro Bowl.

Hart and Pearson, both having glittering seasons, were among those named Wednesday to the NFC's all-star team that will meet the AFC in Miami's Orange Bowl next January 20.

In addition to Hart and Pearson, the first-timers include, center Jeff Van Note of Atlanta; middle linebacker Bill Bergey of Philadelphia; receiver Mel Grey, tackle Dan Dierdorf and running back Terry Metcalf, all of St. Louis; guard Blaine Nye and free safety Cliff Harris, both of Dallas; defensive tackle Diron Talbert of Washington; cornerback Willie Buchanon of Green Bay and return specialist-safety Dick Jauron of Detroit.

Of the 12 new faces, Hart, Pearson, Van Note and Bergey will be in the starting lineup.

In addition to the 12 first-time selectees, six other players who were not on last year's NFC squad were chosen for the 40-man roster. There are 22 repeaters from last year's team.

The squad is chosen in balloting among the 13 NFC coaches, with none allowed to vote for players on his own team.

The AFC leads in the series, 3-1. The NFC won the inuagural game 27-6 in Los Angeles, but the AFC has won three straight times.

Tribe signs Perry; now look to Hunter

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The Cleveland Indians signed one top-flight pitcher Wednesday and jumped into a furious bidding war for the services of another.

Gaylord Perry, who had his fourth season with 20 or more victories last year, said Wednesday he was happy with a two-year "contract I can live with."

Other sources reported his salary would be $150,000 a year.

Meanwhile, General Manager Phil Seghi said he and Indians operating chief Ted Bonda would meet with Jim "Catfish" Hunter this weekend in Ahoskie, N.C.

Perry, who lives about 35 miles from Hunter, also was to talk to Hunter about joining the Tribe, the Indians said.

Hunter, top hurler in the American League last year, was declared a free agent Monday in a history-making baseball arbitration ruling. He is free to offer his services to the highest bidder.

The ruling said Oakland Athletics owner Charles Finley had failed to honor all terms of Hunter's contract for the 1974 season. Finley is expected to file suit to have the verdict set aside.

Perry, a former Cy Young award winner, said he signed his contract Wednesday.

"I'm relaxed and looking forward to playing a few more years with the Indians," Perry said.

The 36-year-old right-hander caused a furor last season when he insisted publicly he get $1 a year more in salary than new manager Frank Robinson.

In American League records, Perry's 2.51 earned-run average and 28 complete games placed him second in those categories. He was third in innings pitched with 322 and fourth in strikeouts with 216.

He won 15 games in a row last year after losing his first.

He and his brother, Jim, shared man of the year honors awarded by the Cleveland chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Cleveland Browns players win honor

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The Cleveland Browns, who just completed one of the worst seasons in their history, had two members named Wednesday to play in the National Football League Pro Bowl.

The two were defensive tackle Jerry Sherk and running back Greg Pruitt.

Frustrating seaway season ends

By The Associated Press

Winter has ended one of the most frustrating shipping seasons in the 16-year history of the Saint Lawrence Seaway.

The last scheduled freighter to pass through the American locks in Massena, N.Y., the Toronto-based Great Laker "Frank A. Sherman", headed for port Wednesday to close out the 1974 shipping season that interrupted the waterway's boom era.

The seaway was expected to finish the 1974 shipping season with its first decline in cargo and revenue after four-straight record-setting seasons, American seaway officials predicted.

"We had a real bad year, there is no question about that," David Oberlin said from his Washington, D.C., office. Oberlin is the administrator of the American governmental seaway agency, the Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corp.

The economic recession gripping the North American continent was not to blame for the seaway's troubles, according to Oberlin. The recession should not be felt on the seaway until next season, he said.

Instead, the seaway's bad year can be traced to a series of labor strikes that halted and slowed shipping throughout the season, as well as an accident that hampered traffic for two weeks on the Welland Canal, the American administrator said.

The labor disputes, which curtailed the 260-odd day shipping season for weeks at a time, were expected to result in a 23.8 per cent decline in cargo carried on the seaway after last season's record-setting 57.6 million tons, seaway officials said.

Revenues collected by the American seaway agency were forecast to drop $1.7-to $2.2 million from last season's record $7.7 million, Oberlin said.

The damaging strikes stretched from the seaway's Atlantic mouth to Lake Superior. The season opened with a seaway pilots' strike at the Atlantic entrance which prevented ocean-going vessels from entering the seaway. Crew members of the Canadian Laker fleet struck during the seaway's peak months of August through October to further damage the seaway season.

And strikes by Canadian grain inspectors, Welland canal pilots and grain elevator workers in Duluth, Minn., added to the seaway's woes, Oberlin said.

In addition to the labor problems, a freighter rammed a bridge, jamming traffic on the Welland Canal for two weeks last summer, he said.

"It was one thing after another, all beyond our control," Oberlin said.

Corps wins financing for bridge

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate conferees have agreed to authorize additional financing to permit the Army Corps of Engineers to proceed with the Markland bridge project across the Ohio River.

The agreement came during a meeting to work out differences in federal highway-aid bills.

The Army engineers have authority under existing legislation to contract up to $3.7 million to erect the bridge over the dam, but the project was postponed by the corps because the amount was insufficient.

At the request of Kentucky Republican Rep. Gene Snyder, whose 4th District includes the bridge site, the House Public Works Committee provided an additional $2.5 million in contracting authority in the new legislation.

During the conference session Tuesday, the Senate members accepted the House position. The agreement virtually assures the corps that it can proceed with call for construction bids in early 1975.

The bridge, when completed, will provide the only Ohio River bridge crossing in the 55-mile stretch between Madison, Ind., and Cincinnati.

Screwdriver 'weapon' case killed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Engineer Henrich Gusek wants to clear his record after being charged with a felony, carrying a concealed weapon—a screwdriver.

The charge against Gusek of Valley Stream, N.Y., was dismissed Wednesday after the prosecution claimed a lack of evidence.

Gusek was arrested Dec. 6 for attempting to board an airliner at Port Columbus International Airport with the screwdriver in his pocket.

"I'd like to get the record cleared up, totally erased," said the 36-year-old Gusek.

Normally his arrest record would remain on file with local police. However, the municipal judge who heard his case said he would consider a motion to expunge the record.

Gusek was taken into custody by airport security officers after failing three times to pass a metal detector test.

Set Rhodes festivities

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio Republicans are planning a round of activities Jan. 13 in connection with the inauguration of Gov.-Elect James A. Rhodes.

Kent B. McGough, the state GOP chairman, said tentative plans call for a $50-per-person inaugural ball in the Lausche Building at the Ohio State Fairgrounds that night.

Rhodes, 65, is to be sworn into office at 11 a.m. on the west steps of the Statehouse, weather permitting. Otherwise, the ceremonies will be held in the Statehouse rotunda.

Later in the day, a reception is planned in the Neil House Hotel for Rhodes and Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, the only other Republican elected on the statewide ticket Nov. 5.

The Press Club of Ohio said it plans a $10-per-person reception for Rhodes in the downtown Ohio Theater in the afternoon.

Rapist sought in Cleveland area

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A man who sexually assaulted four women in four days after stopping their cars with policelike flashing red lights was the target of a police alert Wednesday, authorities said.

In incidents Saturday, Sunday and Tuesday, the man turned off the lights, entered the woman's car and forced himself on her, police said. He left with each woman's identification papers, threatening to kill her if she went to police.

Murder suspect takes witness stand

Powell admits shooting incident

WILMINGTON — A former Wilmington police officer admitted under oath Wednesday that he shot Randall B. Goldie, 22, of Martinsville, last April.

Dale Powell, 26, of Wilmington, said, "I saw Goldie in the car. He brought his hand to his right side as if he had a gun when he saw me. I fired in his direction from five or six feet." Powell also stated that he "did panic" and could not recall how many times he fired.

WHILE BEING questioned as to why he left the scene and failed to immediately report the circumstances to the department, Powell said "I still have this feeling that someone (in the police department) worked for the criminal element. I don't have the occasion to trust anybody in the department. I felt I wasn't going to get fair treatment from anybody connected with this."

Powell was arrested and charged with aggravated murder two days after Goldie was found dead in his car on the parking lot of Scottie's Restaurant, Wilmington. The Clinton County coroner testified the cause of death was repeated gunshot wounds to the face and head.

Earlier testimony had disclosed that Powell was planning to meet Goldie at the restaurant at 11 p.m. the night of the slaying. A fellow officer stated under oath that he took Powell, dressed in civilian clothes, to within a block of the restaurant shortly before 11 p.m. so that e could meet Goldie and possibly make an arrest for possession or sale of drugs.

The officer, Ursel Webb, also testified that he later returned and took Powell back to his (Powell's) home. Another officer testified that Powell returned to the restaurant less than an hour later and said "I don't know who shot him, but they didn't do it soon enough for me."

While on the stand Wednesday, Powell said he ran from the scene because he heard a noise behind him and was afraid that he had been set up to be slain by Goldie and others.

Clinton County Assistant Prosecuting Attorney James J. O'Grady attacked Powell's story during cross-examination.

"What was your intent when Goldie drove up?" O'Grady asked.

"My intent was to get him out of the car and frish him," Powell responded.

"By what authority?" asked the prosecutor, referring to the fact that Powell was wearing civilian clothing.

"I thought I had a case," Powell said.

"Did you say anything?" O'Grady questioned.

"No, there was no time," the defendant responded.

As if in summation O'Grady asked, "Then all Randy Goldie saw was a man in dark clothes approaching his car with a shotgun."

Although Powell gave no explanation for his distrust of other Wilmington police officers, he did explain his fear of being set up by Goldie.

He said that Judy Benlehr, an 18-year-old waitress at the restaurant, had approached him about a meeting with Goldie for a drug bust. Her only explanation for the generous offer was that she wanted to stop Goldie's influence on her brother who was allegedly being supplied with drugs by Goldie, the owner of a Wilmington novelty import shop.

Powell said she told him the meeting would have to take place almost immediately as Goldie was scheduled to leave town the next day. He, said he feared the meeting might have been arranged by Goldie himself as a means to kill him (Powell) because the office had been investigating Goldie's alleged activity in drug trafficing.

Although Powell said that when he fired the shotgun "There was no doubt in my mind that he had a firearm," officers investigating the slaying said they found no gun or drugs in the dead man's car.

AGENTS FROM the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, London, said that ballistics tests of the shotgun Powell had in his possession showed it to be the murder weapon. They also said that there was evidence that someone might have attempted to alter the markings left by the inside of the barrel. Powell denied having tampered with the gun.

Security has been tight throughout the trial, and Wednesday two young persons were taken into custody for the pendancy of the trial. Debbie Goldie, 16, and Jeff Goldie, 13, sister and brother of the slain shop owner, were taken into custody after they attacked Ms. Benlehr outside the courtroom. She had arranged the rendezvous of Goldie and Powell.

Final arguments by attorney for both sides were begun Thursday morning, and the jury of six men and six women are expected to begin deliberations this afternoon.

Forfeits bond

In only one non-traffic case heard Wednesday in Municipal Court, a Columbus man forfeited bond for failure to appear in court on a charge filed by state game protector, Jerry F. Cremeans.

Theodore A. Pegram, 29, forfeited $25 bond on a charge of hunting upland game at a time other than between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. during open season.

Wrong people get the 'red carpet'

LONDON (AP) — The British Airports Authority (a government agency) is worried that the wrong people are getting the red carpet treatment at London, Airport—at the taxpayers' expense.

It is investigating a case where one of the four VIP lounges was opened for the butler of a South American embassy who arrived with his ambassador's silver cutlerly. He got the full treatment, chauffeur-driven car from plane to lounge, preferential baggage handling and free refreshments.

Said a BAA official, "Sometimes, the people we are told to expect do not arrive, and others who do not really qualify come in their place. It could be embarrassing to point this out."

Have a Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year

Every Penny Counts.

And when you put your cash on the counter, you may find things cost more than expected.

One reason is the price tag on shoplifting. Last year, shoplifting losses in Ohio totaled more than $488,000,000. Because stores are unable to absorb this entire loss, it costs your family $150 per year to pay for what shoplifters steal.

Half of all shoplifting occurs now, during the holiday season. How can you help? Simple. Just tell a store clerk if you see someone who may be shoplifting. You won't become involved.

Now more than ever we've got to make every penny count.

It's time to take shoplifting seriously.

Distillers deny use of grain heavy

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The distillery industry has disputed claims that lower consumption of alcoholic spirits would help solve world hunger problems.

Malcolm E. Harris, president of the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States, told a news conference Wednesday that a cutback in the liquor industry would produce a severe economic headache for the country.

Newsmen said suggestions that Americans should drink less so that more grain can be made available to needy countries has emotional appeal: "produce food, not liquor. Drink less and feed starving children."

He said the proposal has been made by Dr. Jean Mayer, Harvard University nutrition expert, and others.

"But this suggestion, in our opinion, is not the answer," Harris said. "It would just compound many of the economic problems we have in this country."

If distilleries were shut down, he said, nearly two million jobs worth $10 billion a year would be lost. He added that nearly all the 40 million bushels of grain used to make spirits is recycled back to farmers as livestock feed after distillers are through with it.

Harris said the amount of grain used by distillers represented only four-tenths of 1 per cent of the 1973 farm production of corn, wheat, and other grain.

The distilling industry recognized the problem of alcohol abuse and has recommended moderation, Harris said. "We're not urging people to drink, because we recognize that abstinence is an acceptible form of behavior — and that's a private, personal decision to make," he said.

Only coffee was served at the news conference.

Harris said there was no indication from industry figures that people are drinking more as a result of current unemployment and other economic problems.

"Some people say we're in a recession right now and our increase in sales is much lower than it was two or three years ago," Harris said.

Opening lead—queen of clubs.

Way back in the 30's a team known as the Four Horsemen, consisting of Willard Karn, Hal Sims, David Burnstine and Oswald Jacoby, dominated the world of bridge. For years they rode roughshod over all opposition, winning most of the important tournaments.

Karn, Sims and Burnstine have passed on to happier hunting grounds, but the memory of their exploits lingers on. Today's hand was played by Karn.

West led the queen of clubs, which held, and East won the continuation with the ten, cashed the ace and returned his last club. Karn ruffed with the jack as West discarded his second diamond in a row.

Karn played a spade to the queen and led a heart, winning with the queen. He now had the K-2 of trumps and guessed well to play the deuce and fell the ace.

East returned a spade to dummy's ace, on which South discarded a diamond, and Karn then made the key play of the jack of diamonds. East ducked and so did South, West contributing the ten to the trick. A heart to the king drew West's last trump and declarer's diamonds won the last three tricks.

When the play is analyzed, it is found that the deuce of hearts play, the spade finesse and the jack of diamonds lead were all absolutely essential. Furthermore, the timing also had to be perfect.

The spade had to be led at trick five so that trumps could be initiated from dummy, and the queen had to be finessed so that the South hand could not be ruffed down later on. Furthermore, the jack of diamonds had to be led to pin the queen and ten with one stroke.

No defense stops the contract. If West keeps his diamonds, South establishes the suit by ruffing one in dummy.

Stones in the Bladder

My brother and I have a tendency to develop stones in our bladders. What are the causes for this condition?

Mr. T. McF., Mich.

Dear Mr. McF..

I am sure that the thought has occurred to you that there may be some family tendency responsible. I doubt that there is any hereditary basis for this. Rather, I am inclined to believe that a dietary regime in the same household may, perhaps, predispose you both to the same problem.

Calcium and uric acid stones are frequently found in the urinary bladder Chronic infection and stagnation of urine may be responsible for the deposits of minerals and the formation of stones.

It is now possible, through a process known as "lithopaxy," to crush stones in the bladder. This is performed through a cystoscope introduced directly into the bladder.

Intensive study of the chemicals in the blood, in addition to X-ray studies of the kidneys, may reveal the underlying reason for stones in the bladder.

Preventive treatment can then be started to prevent the frequency and the severity of attacks.

* * *

Is it possible to eliminate wrinkles around the eyes with chemicals?

Mrs. E.C.P., Tenn

Dear Mrs. P.:

The use of harsh chemicals for this purpose has long been abandoned. And a good thing, too. Phenol, a harmful burning chemical, was formerly used by cosmeticians to "peel off" outer layers of skin.

Medical societies and Public Health officials have found legal means to restrain the use of this dangerous procedure.

Irreparable harm has been done to many people with this technique for "rejuvenation."

Extensive wrinkling of the skin can best be benefited by plastic surgery.

INJURY RESULTED — The driver of the car at left ran a red light at Clinton and Oakland avenues and struck the car at right which in turn rammed the home of Glenn Pettit, 731 Clinton Ave. Mrs. Lutricia Newton, 34, Jamison Rd., was injured during her collision with the porch and was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital where she was treated for a fractured collarbone and lacerations of the face. Dennest K. Thompson, 21, of Wilmington, was cited for failing to stop at a red light. The accident occurred shortly after 10 a.m. Thursday.

Two hurt in rural collision

Two persons were injured in a pickup truck-semi rig collision at 11:15 a.m. Wednesday, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Ohio 207 and Deer Creek Park Road No. 9, when a pickup truck driven by Thomas E. Adams, 52, Mechanicsburg, pulled in front of an oncoming semi driven by Lee McComas, 59, Delaware.

After the initial collision, the semi cab and trailer owned by General Casting Co., Delaware, jack-knifed in the roadside ditch, tieing up traffic on Ohio 207 for approximately one hour.

The semi driver, McComas, was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital by ambulance, where he was treated and released for upper leg injuries.

Adams' passenger, Ralph W. Garrison, 62, Rt. 1, who was riding in back of the pickup truck also claimed injury, but declined treatment. He suffered leg bruises.

Sheriff's deputies estimated severe damage to both vehicles and charged Adams with failure to yield right of way.

Washington C.H. police reported a minor mishap in the entrance driveway of the municipal parking lot on S. Fayette Street at 5:38 p.m. Wednesday.

The accident involved cars driven by Betty L. Penwell, 34, of 742 Washington Ave., and Helen L. Wagoner, 45, of Bainbridge. Neither driver was injured or cited for traffic violation.

Suicide attempt probed by police

A 19-year-old Washington C. H. man was treated and released at Fayette Memorial Hospital at 12:40 a.m. Thursday, after an apparent suicide attempt.

Washington C. H. police stated the man took valium tranquilizers because of despondency over personal problems.

Woman fined for false info
